WHAT NEXT?

By Ruth Taylor.

Admire the exuberant rejoicings at the end of the Second War of the World, amid the heartfelt prayers of gratitude over the victory, there is one fact which is pre-eminent.

The atomic bomb that preceded the final outcome marked the end not only of a war but of an era.

The old order changeth, yielding place to new; And God fulfills Himself in many ways.

Lest one good custom should corrupt the world." So wrote Tennyson at the turn of the century.

The devastation wrought by the atomic bomb and the revelation of the terror it can make of war, demands an equally great invention for the preservation of peace, a thoughtful, purposeful meeting of a new way if life.

V-J day marks not merely the end of a period of destruction, but the beginning of a period of construction. Like old buildings blasted away by bombings, so have old ideas, old prejudices, old misconceptions been blasted away under the spiritual bombings of war.

Now we can begin to clear away the rubble and build not merely a new community but a new world.

War has blasted a pathway uniting the peoples of the earth. We must level this pathway into a road upon which humanity, of all creeds, all races, all tongues, even though they start at different places and move at different rates of progress, may march along in the full stature and dignity of free men—to a goal of peace and security.

It is time, not space that has shriveled. We have learned that our world is but a succession of small communities, all linked together, all interdependent, like the parts of a great chain. We have learned that one cannot have prosperity and peace unless all have it. Peace can never be merely the absence of war. Victory does not guarantee lasting peace and prosperity. It only wins for us the right to work for those ends. There can be no peace unless justice is also present.

It will take time to build the new world of united nations, to forge a unity so strong in understanding that occasions for war cannot break it. It will take many steadfast men to build this world of men who will give to peace the same unselfed devotion they gave to the successful prosecution of the war. It will need men who will "use the goods of God's earth for the good of God's people."

FEWER HORSES IN STATE WITH DROP IN PRICE

Reduction in numbers of horses on Pennsylvania farms has been accompanied by a drop in prices, the State Department of Agriculture announces following a recent survey by the Federal-State Crop Reporting Service.

An average price of $112 per head was reported for July 15, a drop of $8 from the price received a month earlier. This price compares with an average of $130 per head on the same date a year earlier and with $139.50, the average price over the five year period, 1935 to 1939.

The department added that the number of horses on farms in this state on January 1 was 220,000 compared with 275,000 for the ten year average, 1934-44.

Total value of the horse population is estimated this year at approximately $22,700,000, a considerable drop from the peak value of $75,000,000 reached in 1914. Officials pointed out that with the war time scarcity of labor, farmers have relied to a greater extent upon available tractors and trucks to meet their needs.

The mule population on farms this year is down to 31,000 head compared with 49,000 for the ten year average, 1934 to 1944. The price per head averaged $137 on July 15th, which compares with $142 average for the five year period.

ANOTHER ARMY, THE SCHOOL CHILDREN, TO SOON BE CALLED UPON

Another army will soon be called. The army of children going back to school.

Between two and three million children will be going to school for the first time.

To them it will be a great adventure.

Are they prepared for this new experience.

It will be a distinct change from the pattern of life to which the child has been accustomed.

He will need encouragement. Obedience and respect for authority will be expected of him.

Punctuality and regular attendance should be encouraged in the child.

School should be portrayed by the parents as a pleasant, desirable place.

Physical handicaps should be corrected in so far as possible before the child first goes to school.

Children of first year of school age are particularly susceptible to the communicable diseases.

Every child long before reaching school age should have been immunized against diphtheria, tetanus and small-pox.

Defects of teeth and vision are to be corrected.

The first year school child needs the best of health.

Nutrition Chief Asks For Richer Bread

ong Pennsylvanians. Anemia and B complex deficiencies especially are marked and occur in over half the people tested.

"Enriched bread is the easiest and cheapest way to add dietary essentials which can help to greatly reduce anemia and the fatigue and low vitality which results from B complex deficiencies. Such conditions contribute to absenteeism and accidents at home and in industrial plants.

"Eighteen states have already passed laws to continue the benefits of enriched bread for their citizens in the post war period. New York and West Virginia, our neighbors, are among those who took favorable action. Pennsylvanians are not yet so protected."
