ANNOUNCE NOW NEW CARS NOT RATIONED

The only thing standing between you and a new car are money and time. You don't have to worry about a permit. In an article two weeks ago, the Press-Courier stated new cars would require a ration certificate, according to the Altoona OPA office. However, during the past week the OPA and WPA at Washington announced that new autos will not be rationed. They will be on a first-come, first-served basis, which is especially good news if you know a dealer. "Naturally," said Chester Bowers, price chief, "some individuals will be inconvenienced by their inability to buy new cars immediately. We ask, however, that dealers everywhere give special consideration to unusual hardship cases." Auto rationing started early in 1942, when the new car production halted, and ended in July. A decision not to resume it was reached after months of deliberation. Prices of the 1946 models will be only slightly more than that of the 1942 models at the time they were new.
