

LEGION AUXILIARIES UP AID TO ORPHANS

Expansion of work for the assistance of orphans at the Scotland School was planned at a meeting last Thursday of the Cambria Co. American Legion Council in the South Fork Legion Home.

The proposed expansion program was outlined by Mrs. Lee Wertz, state sub-chairman of child welfare, and every individual unit was urged to cooperate by raising additional funds for use at the school where hundreds of orphans of the World War II veterans are cared for.

Mrs. George Biesinger, of South Fork, western director, reported on the Auxiliary work at Valley Forge Hospital and told of the construction of a greenhouse there by the organization. The greenhouse is being used in a rehabilitation program for blind veterans.

The American essay contest will again be sponsored by the council this year among high school students and the various units will award medals to the winners next spring, according to an announcement by Mrs. Maude Sheehan, of Cresson, county president.

The winning essay in the county will be entered in state competition. Mrs. C. C. Shoemaker of Johnstown was appointed chairman of the county Americanism Committee. She succeeds Mrs. Clara Bostrom of Barnesboro, who resigned.

More than 6,000 students are enrolled in the present time. The college is staggering under an enrollment of unprecedented proportions at the present time.

About 800 returning veterans who were students at the college at the time they left for military service will be admitted, College President R. D. Hetzel says.

"Weather conditions, with light snow on the ground in most sections," the commission stated, "are ideal for this work. State officials are being assisted by sportsmen, Boy Scouts and other youth groups including Future Farmers of America."

The commission said wintertime is the season to remove "troublesome rabbits from garden areas" and persons interested in the program should apply to local game protectors for assignment as agents. The commission pays 50 cts. for each rabbit trapped.

"Even now, rabbits can do considerable damage to young trees," the statement added. "There is no better time to remove them than the mid-winter season, when the scarcity of natural food lures the bunnies into traps."

More than 40,000 rabbits were trapped last year throughout the state.

OSTEOPATHS ELIGIBLE TO EXAMINE SCHOLARS

Dr. Harry W. West, state secretary of health, was advised this week by the Justice Department that osteopathic physicians or surgeons may be appointed to examine school students under the health inspection law.

Interpretation of the law "in order to be on the safe side should a question arise concerning the eligibility of osteopaths."

Students must receive dental and medical examinations every other year beginning with the first grade under provisions of the law enacted by the General Assembly.

DR. HAAS SEES SOME REDUCTIONS IN AID TO SCHOOL DISTRICTS

Eventual reduction of special state aid to distressed school districts, was seen as a possibility by Dr. Francis B. Haas, superintendent of public instruction.

"We hope that the new school law will ultimately reduce very materially special grants," Dr. Haas stated, "but we cannot tell the effect of the new subsidy plan until it has been in operation at least a year."

Dr. Haas said 25 to 50 applications for such grants are now pending before the department from the $1,000,000 appropriated for special aid and the department will continue to approve them for districts showing inability to provide funds by other means for necessary education.

He explained the new subsidy plan, which places state grants for education on the basis of pupils taught instead of the number of teachers employed, as in the past, will become effective for the 1946-47 school year beginning next July.

Educational grants in the meantime are continuing on the old basis and there has been no change in the department's policy of helping distressed school districts.
