

Coal Production Off to Flying Start So Far This Year

New Annual Record May Be Made in 1947

District coal production is off to a flying start in 1947. Flow of "black diamonds" was stepped up to a banner output of 4,025,000 tons in January. Production could have hurtled far ahead if railroad cars had been available at all mines. Many operations of the region were forced to cut back schedules to three and four days a week due to lack of freight facilities. Few labor troubles cropped out during the month to sprag production. Miners were on the job working at top pace in getting out the stream of black fuel. A continued pace such as that set in January would push production for the year to a history high. Should the January stride be maintained through the spring, summer and fall, coal output would soar past 43,300,000 tons. Production in the Central Pennsylvania coal region reached its peak in 1944 when 45,179,502 tons were poured out to feed the war furnaces. Coal output slumped to the lowest mark in six years during 1946 with nearly 37,000,000 produced. Strip mining is adding a big chunk of coal to district production. Surface operations mushroomed through the region during the war and have been continuing their heavy tonnage. Industries are stocking big coal supplies to carry them through a fuel famine should there be a mine shut down during the spring or summer. This factor has provided a steady market for mines with the car shortage the only bar to full time production. Tonnage reports for the district provided by Secretary of Mines, Richard Maize, follow: Sixth—283,000; Seventh—414,000; 10th—418,000; 12th—414,000; 15th—358,000; 18th—317,000; 20th—340,000; 24th—495,000; 25th—331,000; 28th—249,000; 30th—446,000. —One way of disposing of that unneeded article is by a little ad.
