It is funny—how a businessman will sit patiently and fish by the hour, checking his bait every 3 minutes and reeling it every 12, go home again without a thing, and go back again eagerly the next day to try it over again—and on the other side, this business man will put a small ad in the newspaper, run it 3 times without change, and if he isn't swamped with directly traceable returns will swear that advertising doesn't pay. It isn't funny, is it?
