Thomas J. Herbert, governor of Ohio, and James M. Rhoades, the mayor of Columbus, O., will roll out the red carpet in that city to welcome 25,000 Moose delegates at the 59th Annual International Convention of the Loyal Order of Moose, Aug. 17 to 21.

In the heart of the city a life-sized Moose will proudly stand on a 35-foot pylon signifying that for one big week Columbus, O., will be Moose City.

A familiar sight to many Moose will be the Ohio State Capitol after which the famous Mooseheart, Ill., Laboratory for Child Research, a gift from the Moose of Ohio, was designed.

Although the convention has been planned to include important business sessions, there will be many social events to provide the throng of visitors with a glorious holiday.

Reservations have been made in Columbus and suburban hotels, private clubs and tourist homes. Even the National Guard quarters will be used.
