Dates Announced For State Hunters Of Game Birds

Pennsylvania nimrods will have an opportunity to hunt migratory game birds this week as the season opened on Monday for rails, gallinules and doves.

Woodcock and doves become fair game October 10, the State Game Commission announced last week in releasing the opening seasons and limits for the birds.

Coots, wild ducks, American and redbreasted mergansers and wild geese and brant will not be legal game until the first of November and for those ending November 19, and woodcock and doves on October 24.

The commission said the season will be closed for the shooting of Wilson's snipe, Ross' geese and swans.

The wild duck limit was set at four more than one wood duck, while the daily bag for American and redbreasted mergansers will be 25.

Each hunter is limited to 15 rails and gallinules combined, 25 snipe and 25 coots daily. The day's limit on woodcock is four and that on doves 10. Only one goose is allowed if it is a Canada, Hutchings or white-fronted bird.

A two-day's bag, including only one wood duck, is the possession limit for ducks, while there is no such limit after the first day on American and redbreasted mergansers.

Shooting hours from the season's opening until October 31 are from 8 a. m. to an hour before sunset daily for woodcocks and doves; from sunrise to an hour before sunset for waterfowl, coots, rails and gallinules, except the first day when shooting must wait until noon.

On November 1, hunting hours are from 9 a. m. to an hour before sunset and from November 2 to the end of the season from 7 a. m. to an hour before sunset.

The only exception of the hours is the open waters of Lake Erie and the tidal waters of the Delaware River where hunters 100 yards from shore may shoot under federal regulations from sunrise to an hour before sunset, except on November 1, when shooting before 9 a. m. is illegal anywhere in Pennsylvania.
