Agnes Farabaugh Is Eligible In Nation-Wide Crochet Test

Won First Prize at '48 Cambria Co. Fair

First prize winners in the crochet division at the Cambria Co. Fair who are eligible to compete in the Nation-Wide Crochet Contest have been announced by Mr. Walter F. Good, fair secretary.

Miss Agnes Farabaugh of Patton was awarded the Gold Sunray Trophy offered to the contestant whose crocheted piece was judged "Best of the Fair." Miss Farabaugh won first prize in the bedspreed, and edgings or insertions classifications. Other first prize winners were: Mrs. Floyd E. Mull, Ebensburg, tablecloth; Mrs. Jerome White, Ebensburg, luncheon sets; Mrs. Irene Davis, Ebensburg, dollies and scarfs; Mrs. Jennie Eppolito, Ebensburg, household accessories; Mrs. Frank Italiano, Ebensburg, hats and bags; and Miss Hazel Hollenbaugh, Ebensburg, chair sets classification.

The competition at the fair was extremely keen, making it very difficult for the judges to select the top winners. This was the first year that a trophy had been offered for the best crocheted piece, and this incentive, together with the desire to compete for the title of "Grand National Crochet Champion" in the Nation-Wide Crochet Contest produced some of the finest crochet work ever to be exhibited at the fair.

It was also announced that the Cambria Co. fair is making plans to participate in the national contest again next year.

The finals of the Nation-Wide Crochet Contest will take place in New York City during the week of November 20, where first prize winners from over 500 local and state fairs will compete. Following the judging, there will be an exhibition of all entries in the Winter Garden of the Hotel McAlpin from Nov. 29 to Dec. 3, which will be open to the public.

Halloween Pranks But No 'Goblins'

Don't be scared—It's Halloween. Goblins aren't necessarily "going to get ye or ye don't watch out."

Pranksters will misbehave on Halloween, and children will look for witches and goblins.

There may be some actual property damage by gangs of youngsters who mistake destruction for fun.

Halloween is associated with superstitions and charms and prophecies.

These are harmless indulgences up to a point.

Unfortunately, throughout the year, some people set much store in superstitions, charms and prophecies.

When health is involved with fallacies, danger threatens.

Carrying a horseshoe in the pocket to ward off rheumatism is not harmful, but when rheumatism attacks, the nut in the pocket should be discarded for more reliable help.

A child's fever cannot be cured by tying a frog to the left front bedpost.

A hair pulled from the tail of a black cat found in a graveyard at midnight will not charm away a sore throat.

Superstitions are innocent entertainment, as long as they do not delay proper care when serious illness comes.

Have fun on Halloween—it's time for let's pretend, and not for being serious.
