

Statewide Traffic Survey Will Give Sought Information

By Pennsylvania News Service
Harrisburg, Nov. 10—A huge statewide traffic survey—the first such survey to be undertaken in a decade—is now underway on rural and urban highways throughout the state.

Under the direction of the State Highway Dept., the project will take two years to complete. Traffic density counts will be taken on about 30,000 miles of state highways in rural areas with about 3,000 miles of urban roads scheduled for surveying.

A spokesman for the Highway Dept. says that while the survey is being undertaken, traffic will not be stopped. Data obtained will be from 105 portable machines which record traffic volumes by the hour.

A black cord found stretched across the highway, attached to a box with "eyes" alongside the highway, will indicate to the motorist that the road he is traveling is under survey.

The volume of traffic carried by any highway is the basic information required before any sound, long-range planning and designing can be considered by the department, the spokesman told a Pennsylvania News Service reporter.

Traffic density as determined by these traffic surveys, indicate to engineers the type of road to be constructed in the area. It determines the type of road construction to be used—two, three or four-lane, etc.

Only improved surfaced highways are included in the survey and stone roads have been excluded because of the normally low volume of traffic over these types of thoroughfares.

Harrisburg, Nov. 9—(PNS)—After the 15th of this month, smokers will please not light their butts and ropes on buses or larger stores of this capital city. At least so reads a new ordinance given the stamp of approval by the City Council. The fine for violation runs from $5 to $25 or 30 days in the local jug.

Advice can usually be had for nothing, and that's what it is worth.
