

State Turkey Men Supply Large Part Of Holiday Birds

By Pennsylvania News Service

With Thanksgiving being observed this week throughout the state and the Nation, it might be well to keep in mind the slaughter that has been going on in turkey houses in Pennsylvania.

For the past several weeks, turkey growers throughout the state have been sending the birds to the slaughter houses in ever growing quantity.

There they have been killed, dressed and packed, ready for the housewife.

In fact, the business has grown to such proportions in Pennsylvania that the industry in this state now places Pennsylvania sixth in turkey production, according to the State Dept. of Agriculture.

This year, a spokesman for the department estimated, a total of nearly 1,300,000 big birds were produced within the confines of the state. Production of turkeys throughout the entire United States has been set this year at around 32,000,000.

The department said that word reaching its ears through channels indicates that there will be a sufficient supply of the fowl to meet both Thanksgiving and Christmas demands.

Early marketing this fall from Pennsylvania turkey farms was due in large measure to the high cost of feed during the summer months and through September. Some producers report difficulty in obtaining the proper "finish" and are holding such birds for marketing later in the year, officials explained.

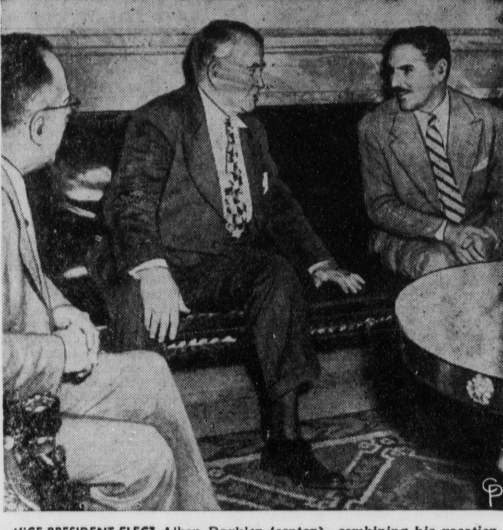

There appears to be greater demand than usual for the smaller size hen turkeys this year, they added. On the other hand, the hotel and restaurant trade prefers the larger tom turkeys.

Sponsor of Milk Control Law Now Favoring Repeal

Cites Cambria District's Good Job Since 1935

The sponsor of Pennsylvania's revised milk control law, John A. Smith, former state house member and dairy farmer from Cumberland Co., has joined the ranks of those who want the law repealed.

He says Milk Control Commission efforts "are now largely superfluous" due to federal intervention in the metropolitan milksheds to set farmer prices for milk. "We're just adding to the confusion of an already complicated situation by having two control agencies."

"It is my opinion that dairy farmers favor federal control which now extends through Pennsylvania's northern tier counties in the New York City federal milkshed and far west as Bedford and Warren Cos. in the Philadelphia area under federal control."

Smith says he hopes the federal government "also will establish milk marketing control in the Pittsburgh metropolitan district, but will leave inland areas now controlled by the state commission to locally established marketing compliance committees."

A tri-county Cambria-Indiana-Somerset milk marketing control committee of three milk dealers and three dairy farmers has operated successfully since 1935, he said. "The chief virtue of federal milk marketing control," Smith said, "is that its stabilizing influence extends over state lines, assuring uniform treatment for all producers serving the same metropolitan market."

Tasty, Nutritious Desserts

By ALICE DENHOFF

IF the family considers that the main course pickings have been a little slim, all will be forgiven if the meal topper-offer, the dessert, is something special. The wise homemaker sees to it that the dessert, as well as being good, is rich in nutritive values, too, which is the case with the recipes offered here.

First, a quick and excellent prune whip; the recipe for 4. Combine 3 egg whites, tsp. grated lemon peel, 2 tsp. prune juice, tsp. lemon juice, ½ c. sugar and ¼ tsp. salt in top of double boiler. Place over boiling water and beat with wire beater until the mixture fluffs up high and holds its shape when beater is lifted (about 5 to 7 min. of cooking). Fold in ½ c. chopped cooked prunes. Heat in 4 dessert dishes; chill. Serve with top milk, cream or a specially good chilled custard sauce, sprinkled with cinnamon.

Making the Sauce
To prepare the sauce: mix the 3 egg yolks with 3 tsp. sugar and ½ tsp. salt; stir into 1½ c. scalded milk in double boiler; cook, stirring constantly until the mixture will coat a metal spoon. Strain; add ½ tsp. vanilla and a few drops of lemon extract. Chill.

Another prune sweet that is toothsome and healthful comes next. Prune Crumb Pudding for 6 starts off this way: Heat 2 tsp. table spread, ½ c. sugar, ¼ tsp. salt and ½ c. milk together in top of double boiler. Stir in 3 beaten egg yolks; cook, stirring until well blended and thickened. Add ½ tsp. vanilla, ¼ tsp. lemon extract, ½ c. chopped, cooked prunes, 2 c. fresh bread crumbs and ¼ c. chopped nuts. Whip the 3 egg whites until stiff; fold in. Cover and cook over boiling water 40 to 60 min. Serve, sprinkled with ½ tsp. powdered cinnamon, and with plain top milk, cream, whipped cream, or the aforementioned custard sauce.

Favorite Recipe
Apple Potpie is a favorite of favorites in that region of fine, hearty cooking, the Pennsylvania Dutch section. To serve 6, pare 4 large apples, core and cut into eighths. Cut ¼ c. shortening into 2 c. sifted flour combined with ½ tsp. salt; add water to make a stiff dough (about ½ to ¾ c.). Roll thin, like noodle dough and cut into 2-inch squares. Arrange alternate layers of apples and dough in a kettle, sprinkling each layer generously with sugar to sweeten (according to sourness of apples) and ½ tsp. cinnamon. Dot the top layer of pastry squares with 2 tsp. butter; pour in 2 c. boiling water, and cover. Cook over low heat 25 to 30 min., or until apples are tender. Serve hot or cold with cream. How the menfolks go for this one!
