The U. S. Air Force has announced that the Aviation cadet training program is to be expanded to include the training of Navigators. It was announced today by M/Sgt. William Whitacre, commanding officer of the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station in Barnesboro.

The Air Force has not accepted any applications for Navigator Training since the end of World War II, and the first class is scheduled to begin on Nov. 1, 1949 at Ellington Air Force Base, Texas, with subsequent classes starting every 30 days thereafter.

The sergeant, in listing the qualifications for this training, emphasized the fact that applicants must have successfully completed at least one half of the credits leading to a degree at an accredited college or university, or they must be a High School graduate and successfully pass the Aviation Educational Examination.

Application forms and further information on this training may be obtained at the U. S. Army and U. S. Air Force Recruiting Station located in the American Legion Home in Barnesboro.

Sgt. Whitacre also stated that schooling in many fields is still open to High School Graduates who can qualify. These schools are granted before enlistment. Applications can be obtained at the Barnesboro Recruiting Station.

Vegetables Are More Unusual If You Serve Them on Toast

By ALICE DENROFF

VEGETABLES galore are in our markets, a nice consolation for those of us who can't go gardenwards and pluck a few tomatoes, radishes or beet greens, or pull up crisp, green lettuce.

To add even further value to vegetables, combine them with bread or serve them with toast. While green and yellow vegetables are rich in vitamins, they are low or lacking entirely in the food elements that supply energy. When you have leftover cooked vegetables you can often stretch them for another meal by scalloping them with bread crumbs, making for a nice luncheon or supper main course.

Vegetables on Toast

Creamed mixed vegetables, served between rounds of buttered toast, short cake fashion, is a pleasing addition to the menu, and a good way of taking care of folks that won't eat vegetables or salads.

To serve 6, wash 2 bunches each radishes and scallions, remove tops and roots. Cook radishes and scallions separately in boiling salted water until tender—about 15-20 min. Drain. Wipe and slice 1/4 lb. mushrooms; saute in 2 tbs. butter for 5 min. Combine mushrooms, scallions and radishes with 2 1/2 c.

white sauce; heat. With large biscuit cutter, cut rounds from freshly-made, buttered toast. For each serving, put 2 rounds together, short-cake style, with creamed vegetables between. Sprinkle top very lightly with curry powder or paprika.

A Tomato Dish

For a different tomato dish remove stem ends and cut 3-4 tomatoes crosswise in one-inch thick slices. Dip slices in flour, seasoned with salt and pepper. Brown quickly on both sides in shortening in frying pan. Remove from pan and keep warm. Blend one tbs. flour with tbs. brown sugar in shortening left in frying pan. Add 1/2 c. milk; cook, stirring constantly, until slightly thickened. Pour over slices of freshly-made and buttered toast. Top with hot fried tomato slices and garnish with curls of crisply broiled bacon. Serves 6.

Best Green Fondue makes use of healthful beet tops, only too often discarded and ignored. To serve 4-6, beat an egg and to it add 1 1/2 c. milk, 1 1/4 c. fine dry bread crumbs, one c. finely chopped, cooked beet greens, 2 tbs. melted butter, salt and pepper to taste. Mix lightly and transfer to greased baking dish. Dot top with tbs. butter. Place dish in pan of hot water and bake at 375 F. for 40 min.

Putty Substitute for Home Window Repair; 'New Electric Housewife'

News of Many Other Living Aids Released

A new substitute for putty is a transparent three-sided plastic strip which makes it easy for the amateur to put in a window. Paper plates won't soak up juices and gravies now that they are made non-absorbent with plasticizing. A "resuscitator" for newborns does away with the traditional spank to start the baby breathing and gives the infant a better chance to live. These are among the new aids to living reported in McCall's National News letter for July:

"News from New York City warns that you shouldn't wait when you're 40 for symptoms to have your eyes examined. About 8,000,000 persons are suffering from the eyeball hardening condition which leads to glaucoma, specialists say, and most of them don't know it.

"Cleveland, Ohio reports iron stay on the board and on't burn through the cloth when anchored by a new guard with heat resistant sides. It is built up so air circulates between iron and cloth.

"Syracuse, N. Y., says that amateurs can put in windows with a new transparent, three-sided plastic strip which does away with the need for putty. It can be mitered with a razor blade to make a corner and can be salvaged for re-use if the window gets broken. You can paint it to match the trim or leave it to match the glass.

"According to word from Chicago, Ill., a new paper plate won't soak up the gravy. It's plasticized on top and comes in colors. Other new items which make for a more orderly life: A self-cleaning door mat of aluminum slats, an aluminum pie can with grooved knife guides to make eight pieces.

"A new style overshoe made to fit over a slipper's bow or buckle is due on the market this fall. It's designed by a mid-western woman who found her slipper bows were crushed by regular overshoes, so she took an old galosh and a pair of scissors, cut out a rubber panel, shirred it and sewed it on the front of the overshoe.

"Washington, D. C., claims that the British have something they call an electric housemaid. Among other things it polishes shoes, scrubs pans up, peels potatoes and sharpens knives. They hope eventually to make it do the laundry.

"Tiny cameras which look like toys but make clear pictures are coming in from Japan and Germany. One shaped like a wrist-watch and worn on the wrist is made by the Germans, while the Japanese have a small box job about half the size of a cigarette package.

"Too little sugar in the bloodstream may be as bad as too much. If you are a dawdler who can't make up your mind, and always get a temporary spurt of initiative after you have taken food, maybe you need a sugar count. Ability to use your gray matter may be affected by lack of sugar before other changes are noticeable, some scientists believe. This is because the brain cannot manufacture its own sugar as most other body organs can in an emergency but must depend on the bloodstream.

"You can mail gifts to most Marshall Plan countries for six cents per pound, or about eight cents less than the usual international rate, if you write "USA Gift Parcel" plainly on the outside.

"News from Brooklyn, N. Y., has it that waffles can be on the back yard menus this summer. There's a new aluminum iron with old-fashioned long handles for use on outdoor ovens, as well as on tops of ranges. Another old-fashioned, long-handled iron being put on the market is one in which you can bake crisp wafers, or gaufrettes, just as the French do.

"Word from Collingswood, N. J., says that there's a new combination on the market: It's an electric clock with automatically defrosts the refrigerator. It turns the refrigerator off at 1 a. m. each night and switches it back on after the thin coating of frost melts off the unit.

"From San Francisco, Calif., comes a report of a machine which gives a new-born child a better chance to live will appear in hospitals soon. Called a resuscitator, the machine will eliminate the necessity for the traditional spank to start the baby's breathing mechanism. It adjusts automatically to the child's lung capacity and additionally provides the proper heat and humidity."

Early July is still time to plant a number of garden vegetables for late harvesting, reminds the Penn State extension vegetable specialist. These include carrots, beets, kale, rutabagas, endive, Chinese cabbage, head lettuce and bush beans. Use space where early crops have been harvested.
