Aid for Crippled Children
A bit of brightness was noted last week in an otherwise dull and gloomy world picture. It was announced that the State Department of Health has scheduled 56 orthopedic clinics for various sections of the state to help crippled children try to inflex is wrong with them.

"AS I SEE IT . . ."
By STATE SENATOR JOHN J. HALUSKA

Now that the Governor's Cabinet has been confirmed, with the exception of Admiral Drameel, acting secretary of Forests and Waters, it is now hopeful that the Legislature will go underway that the present session can, someday in the near future, be adjourned sine die.

Mr. Margotti has graciously resigned his position, Judge Woodside of the Common Pleas Court of Dauphin County, has been appointed as the new Attorney General and confirmed by the State Senate.

Now, let's look at the local picture in the County. We are happy to announce that Harry A. Engelhart, chairman of the Unemployment Compensation Board, at Harrisburg, will receive confirmation just as soon as the Governor submits his name to the State Senate. As we were previously stated, no person appointed in the County of Cambria will receive confirmation unless he is first thoroughly screened.

It is very gratifying to say the least, to note the interest displayed by outstanding Republican leaders, in Mr. Engelhart's case. We have received numerous telephone calls, personal calls and letters asking us to confirm this appointment. We are highly pleased with the outstanding recommendations given Mr. Engelhart. Therefore, we feel it is a job well done and, as stated before, confirmation will be given to this candidate.

The writer has always taken the position that no one mind is capable to decide all the issues of State. If this statement were not true, there would be no need of electing 435 men to the United States Congress and 96 Senators. Nor would there be a need to elect 206 members to the House of Representatives and 50 Senators to represent the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Only by a meeting of minds is it possible to help solve all the mysteries of life and to bring to some happy conclusion important matters pertaining to the welfare of the people of this great Commonwealth.

Nicktown Boy, 15, Off On Second Spree Within Year
Spangler Companion Admits to Burglary
A 15-year-old Nicktown boy last week in a wooded section of Franklin Twp. in Huntingdon County after his second "spree" and series of lootings within a year.

Records were obtained from a total of 438 families scattered through the state's five major types of farming areas. One of the conclusions in the report states that the need is not one of building additions, but rather of change within the house to make more effective use of existing space and at the same time to provide flexibility to meet changing family needs.

From Spangler they travelled back through Eckenrode's Mills, Chest Springs and Ashville and down the Buckhorn Road, stopping near Altoona long enough to collect another $25 to $30 at a service station at Red Hill, just this side of Altoona.

The caretaker at the camp surprised the duo at noon last Wednesday as they tampered with the truck. The boys ran into the woods and the caretaker called state police.

They finally ventured out onto the highway but were spotted by a state police patrol car. Police said the Spangler boy admitted tampering with the Redford Bradford Service Station in Spangler on Feb. 1.

The boys have been lodged in the Cambria County Juvenile Detention Home. The necessity for being extra alert in crossing streets on rainy days is the theme of the safety education program being conducted this month in the Cambria County schools with the aid of the Cambria Motor Club, an affiliate of the AAA.

Extra Care During Bad Weather Is Urged By Posters
In urging adults as well as the children to be extra alert on bad weather days, Mr. Davis pointed out that one out of every seven motor vehicle accidents occur on rainy, foggy or snowy days.

Ebensburg Boro Cuts Income Tax
Ebensburg's one percent earned income tax divided in size recently. Through councilman voted to reduce the tax to one-half percent when it was noted that the levy was exceeding expectations.

Fuel Tax Funds To Be Sent Soon By Comptroller
Cities, boroughs and townships that have filed reports in compliance with legislation authorizing a quarterly payment of $2,500 in full tax refunds will be certified for payment, Fred P. Lloyd, Comptroller of the State Department of Highways, said this past week.

Most Pennsylvania Farm Dwellings Not Suited to Need
Farm houses of Pennsylvania are predominantly large, old, frame structures not particularly suited to the present needs, according to results of an extensive research study just published. The study, made at the Pennsylvania State College, is reported in Bulletin 5344, published by the Pennsylvania Agricultural Experiment Station.

Palton GI's Deeds Cited In Recent Korean Dispatch
According to a dispatch from the 14th Division in Korea, it's the infantry that has to secure a bridgehead after an assault crossing, but combat engineers have to make the assault boats trip after trip through a hail of enemy bullets to ferry the doughboys and their supplies across.

PROPERTY BOUGHT
Tony and Mary Amadio of Patton, Pa., was assigned as leader of a boat crew on a ferry during a recent crossing. As the crew approached the waters edge, an enemy machine gun opened up and the boat was hit.

The Time Is Now At Hand

One week from today is the deadline for the filing of income taxes for millions of Americans. These taxes have increased tremendously in this country in the past 11 years and the man who has borne a heavy share of the burden is the increase in the taxpayer.

As government gets more expensive, and taxes go up, these incentives in our tax law give one man an even greater advantage than another man. And more than ever it becomes necessary to do something about them. Agreeing on the principle that we all have to pay more taxes, and being 100 percent united on the purpose for which the money is being spent, still as Americans we reserve the right to protest when the law that raises the money is unfair.

The tax law was written by Americans to extract money equitably from Americans. When it fails in its purpose, it is high time not only to protest but to get a new law. One of the things that ought to be changed is the forms themselves. When a man is asked not only to keep tabs on what he owes and to pay it in hard cash, but has to go through a set of mathematical computations that would baffle the average atomic scientist in order to do it, then it is time to call a halt and simplify the tax returns. It can be done. It has been done for some of us. Let's get it done for all of us.

Unpleasantly business gets many breaks in deductions over individual cases. One of the greatest of all is the medical expense allowance. As you know, you're allowed only the medical costs over five percent of your income as a medical deduction, and so a man with a $5,000 salary has to spend $250 in which he pays a tax before he is able to deduct himself, or his family, for this. This is a very real burden on the individual. It is the most ridiculous thing of the kind that the government can do to apply the same logic in taxing the cost of keeping his citizens in good repair which it uses in handling the maintenance costs of machinery in factories.

A business is allowed to deduct the full cost of repairing any and all of its equipment from taxable income. If an executive uses his car for business he can deduct the cost of a smashed fender—all of it—from his tax base. But if one of his employees becomes seriously ill, the man is not allowed to start deducting the cost of his operation and hospital bills until he has spent five percent of his already tax-paid income on curing himself.

There are many incentives in the income tax laws that should be repealed. Some of them don't hurt individual taxpayers as much as they hurt all of us together. For instance, charity deductions are limited by law to 15 percent of adjusted gross income. Many wealthy people would give much more than that if their deductions were not limited. And many people would like to help others directly but the law forbids any except certain charities from receiving gifts if the donations are to be tax-deductible. So, many deserving individuals never get the help they need.

One reason why the small taxpayer gets so many bad breaks is simply that he is not organized. Of all the lobbies in Washington, the most powerful is the one that represents the business and professional organizations. Unlike the organized labor, or unless some organization takes up the cudgels in his defense, the small taxpayer will pay more than his share of our ever-growing tax burden. However, by all this as it may, you'll have to have your 1950 income tax filed with the Collector of Internal Revenue by March 15.

The Present And the Future

Here in Patton, as well as elsewhere, there still remains much uncertainty. We read the newspapers but we are prone to think nothing will happen to us. Korea should give us a real basis for change in attitude toward our responsibilities and toward defense. After World War I we tried disarmament as a means of peace, but that failed. Then we had World War II, and apparently that has taught us that it is believed that Americans are willing to try real peace. It is believed that Americans are willing to try real peace. It is believed that Americans are willing to try real peace.

How we're beginning to understand that the survival of America is not a permanent gift; it is something that will be earned by our own efforts. Every man, woman and child in this country has a share in the responsibility. We must remember the words of the poet and realize that his personal interests no longer come first, for America has now entered an era of life which has long been familiar to other nations. We've grown up as it will take patience to make the needed adjustments. We've grown up as it will take patience to make the needed adjustments. We've grown up as it will take patience to make the needed adjustments.

You Never Can Tell

It's hard to tell how the public will react, as the experience of the past few days would indicate. Waiting to stop some of the things that had happened. The main message in the ad was "There's nothing more to be done. To keep the things that you love, you must be willing to give up everything else. To keep the things that you love, you must be willing to give up everything else. To keep the things that you love, you must be willing to give up everything else."

HOW TO GET "IN SOLID" as a party-line neighbor
When you play fair and square with your party-line neighbors, they'll give you a break, too—and that means good service for all concerned!
Here are two suggestions on party-line courtesy: 1) on finding the line in use, hang up gently and give the other person a few minutes to finish his call; 2) when talking, you realize that your neighbor is waiting to make a call, hang up in a few minutes and free the line. Easy, isn't it?
