Hold James Delaney After Elmora PRR Station Broken Into

Money Drawer Empty When Building Entered

A Bakerston man is being held for court for an attempted burglary at the Pennsylvania Railroad's Elmora (Bakerston) station located about two blocks from his home.

State police arrested James D. Delaney, 53, about 3:30 Sunday morning just about 10 minutes after the station was broken into.

Pfc. Leonard G. Washington of the Ebersburg detail of the state police made the arrest and lodged Delaney in the Cambria County Jail at Ebersburg.

The Bakerston man pleaded not guilty at a preliminary hearing before Mrs. Elizabeth C. Rowland, Ebersburg justice of the peace. However, he was held for court on the strength of Pfc. Washington's testimony.

Police said the burglary was unsuccessful. The station was entered by means of waiting room window, after which the burglar smashed a ticket-window panel to gain access to the office.

A money drawer—empty at the time—was pried open and an unsuccessful attempt was made to smash the safe.

False Alarm Cause Of 4 Arrests Here

Four persons got tickets Wednesday evening of this week here as the result of a false alarm in Patton.

A call was turned in at 9:30 p. m. saying that the Somerville home on Beech Ave. was on fire. However, this was not so and no one was more surprised than the occupants of the house when the firemen walked in.

The four arrests were made for another reason entirely—they resulted from cars following too close to a firetruck.

North Cambria fire companies have been warning against this practice, especially dangerous on icy streets, and on Wednesday night Patton borough police and fire police "cracked down."

Centuries of Mince Meat Pies Behind Present Delicacies

No holiday delicacy carries more of the old-time traditions and associations of good eating and festivity than mince pie.

Germany is given credit by some writers, while others claim that its beginning is lost in the annals of history.

English literature, dating back to the 15th Century, is full of references to the Christmas favorite. Considered essential as part of the Christmas observances in England, these early mince pies contained a large portion of meat.

According to a 15th Century manuscript the "mynce pye" served at the coronation of King Henry the Fifth were made of small pieces of boiled pork mixed with minced dates, cloves, mace, raisins, salt and ginger. Finely-shredded mutton was the chief ingredient of mince pies famous during the reigns of the Tudor rulers, Henry VIII, Edward VI, Mary and Elizabeth.

Originally the Christmas pies were baked in immense deep-sided dishes lined with thick rolls of pastry and filled with forcemeats, richly sweetened and spiced. Equally thick rolls of pie dough formed the top crusts of the pies.

When the pie recipes were brought to the new land, the Puritans added to the religious significance of the pie by baking it in a crust shaped like a manger. The oriental character of the spices and flavorings was said to represent the rich gifts of the wise men to the Christ Child.

They also served it as a dessert rather than a main dish as it had been in England, and made it of fresh apples, dried fruits, sugar, cider and spices, with only a small amount of meat for flavor.

Later the shape in which we know the mince pie today came into use and the cooks of early colonial days elaborated on the ingredients, each composing his own mixture of spices, fruits, meats and flavorings.

GET OUT AND GET UNDER—40 YEARS AGO! By Marguerite Michelsen

A goodly turnout of automobiles, their drivers and passengers togged out in linen dusters, caps and goggles, was observed on the autumn-tinted roads in our vicinity Sunday last, most of them laden with picknickers and families out for rides in the crisp fall air.

So reads an item of local news in a newspaper of nearly 40 years ago. It has a nice sound about it. "The good old days of adventurous motoring," is the way sentimentalists put it. But maybe you've forgotten, if you ever knew, what those days were really like for families with cars.

You started out pretty hopeful, in that open "touring car," trusting that it wouldn't rain, so that you'd get into that finger-twisting, temper-straining business of putting up those isinglass rain curtains—not to mention that balky top.

Your engine popped along (maybe) on four cylinders or less. Your klaxon was a "cow-born" with rubber bulb. Steering was a job for a man with strong arms, especially on rutted dirt wagon-roads, once you got out of town. If you stopped the engine, only manual spinning with a crank would start it again—and not always that. If it didn't, you were in for a grayish season under the car itself, not under the hood. That's where the song, "Get Out and Get Under" was born.

A puncture meant nightmares of tire changing. It meant getting the tire off the rim and—what was worse—getting it back on after you'd patched it and inflated it with a hand pump. Remember?

Maybe these are the "good old days" after all—these days when windshield wipers, self-starters, electrical systems, and the service experts at your new car dealer's are readily available.

Gone are the days when you found yourself stuck in a mud-hole on a country road at night, bearings burned out or your clutch mangled in the effort to shake loose—and facing a long hike to the nearest farm house for a mule team to haul you out, or to a blacksmith who might be able to make some repairs.

These changes are partly attributable to tremendous advances in automobile design and manufacture, of course, as well as the better roads drivers demanded. But even more important has been the fact that—in your own community and every community—the new car dealer has appeared. Now an important community business man, he has brought efficient car maintenance to a point at which you don't have to worry about it. The new car dealer who sold you your car, and whose service staff maintains it for you, is a far cry from the old days of horse-traders and blacksmiths.
