See Impossibility Of Completing All Civil Court Cases

Cambria County judges are preparing for a heavy civil court schedule next month and doubt that all the trials listed Monday, Feb. 27, will be completed, Civil court is planned for the week beginning Monday, March 10.

Judges John H. McCann and Ivan J. McKenrick said there are 52 civil cases on the trial list for that week. Fifty-one others, on the original list, have been continued to the June term or settled between the persons involved.

Judge McKenrick said the probability of the 52 scheduled cases being tried in "very remote."

Four judges will be on the bench during the week. In addition to Judges McCann, McKenrick and George W. Griffith, of common pleas court, Judge A. A. Nelson of orphans court will preside in one courtroom.

Judge McCann said this figures out to an average of 13 cases for each judge during the week. It will be virtually impossible for each judge to complete that many cases, he said.

Civil cases can not be extended over the following week because of criminal court which begins Monday, Mar. 17.

Magistrates Taking Fee Case to Court Hope Friendly Action Will Result in Ruling

Court action will be taken in an effort to determine a fee basis for Cambria County's minor judiciary.

Decision to seek legal action was made Monday night at the February meeting of Cambria County Magistrates and Constables Association in Ebensburg.

Alderman James T. Malloy, of 10th Ward, Johnstown, president of the county unit, was instructed to start mandamus proceedings against the controller's office in a friendly action to obtain a court ruling.

Recent passage of Pennsylvania's new alderman's fee act resulted in a question as to fees permitted for aldermen and justices of the peace already in office.

Under the law, an officeholder cannot benefit from any pay raises during his term of office. The new act provides certain increases which would benefit those taking office this year. Majority of the squares have been in office for a number of years, were left with no fee scale.

The association selected Apr. 24 for its annual banquet to be held in St. John's Catholic Church Hall, Summerhill. Representatives of the district attorney's office were guest speakers.

House Committee Gets UMW's Case On Mining Safety

Lewis Serves Notice That Law Must Pass

The United Mine Workers' case for a mine safety law calling for the forcible shut-down of unsafe coal mines is in the hands of a House labor sub-committee.

The group, headed by Rep. Kelly, (D-Pa.), ended four days of testimony on the proposal last Thursday after hearing John L. Lewis, president of the independent union, serve notice that "we'll think of something to do" if Congress doesn't strengthen the mine safety laws.

Lewis gave no hint of what he had in mind, but he added: "But we want to do this the orderly way."

Under its contract, the UMW at any time may call for "memorial" periods of tribute to men killed in mine accidents. During those periods the miners remain idle.

The mining industry, Lewis said, will continue to be "a moribund paradise" unless all states are forced to comply with the safety codes of the federal bureau of mines.

He said it took "four mine explosions and 1,500 men had to die" before Congress acted in 1941 to allow federal inspectors to go into mines.

But the law permits the bureau only to inspect and report their findings to state mining departments, the owners and the mine unions.

Senate Labor Group OKs Mine Safety Bill

The U. S. Senate Labor Committee Tuesday approved a bill to empower the federal government to shut down unsafe coal mines and jail their operators.

Under the measure, which is backed by the UMWA, the secretary of the interior would issue regulations aimed at preventing mine explosions, cave-ins, flooding, suffocation, accidents and other provisions—after notice from the interior department—would be subject to a maximum fine of $2,000 and 6 months in prison.

Present law permits federal inspectors only to make recommendations which the federal government has no power to enforce.

The proposed law would allow the interior department to order an operator to close a mine or withdraw men from a specified area if a federal inspector deemed conditions to be "an imminent danger to the life or safety of employees."

Under an appeal procedure an operator could demand reinspection and a hearing on a decision that a mine be closed.

Postmasters Hit At Postcard Ruling

Say Bulk Cost Causes Excessive Bookkeeping

Opposition to a new federal law concerning bulk purchases of postcards was voiced at a meeting of Cambria County postmasters at the Courthouse in Ebensburg last Thursday evening.

Under the law, postmasters are required to charge an additional 10 percent when postcards are purchased in full packs of 50. Thus the purchase of 49 cards costs 98 cents while the purchase of 50 cards costs $1.10.

Postmasters complained that the law requires an excessive amount of bookkeeping on postcard sales.

The Cambria County Postmasters Association will elect new officers at a meeting in Ebensburg Courthouse Apr. 15. It was announced that the Ft. Bedford Inn, Bedford, will be headquarters for the 1952 convention of the Pennsylvania Chapter, National Association of Postmasters in June.

Presbyterians Sell Church At Gallitzin

Membership Declines To Under 10 Persons

First Presbyterian Church, Gallitzin, whose membership was dissolved in Jan. 1950, because of small attendance, has been sold.

The frame structure, erected in 1888, was purchased from Blairsville Presbytery by Fred A. Nickel, a former member of the congregation, has not announced his plans for the property's future.

History of the Gallitzin church which dates back to 1861, is marked by membership struggles to bolster membership of the congregation.

The congregation was organized in 1861 and services were held in a Union Church where Methodist and Baptists also worshipped.

Blairsville Presbytery took over the church in 1870. But an extremely small attendance soon forced sale of the church to the Methodists. It was reorganized in 1888 and the present church later constructed.

History repeated itself in 1950. Rev. W. E. Lewis retired in January of that year and the congregation—less than 10 strong—soon was asked by the Presbytery to attend either of Gallitzin's two other Protestant churches—St. John's Lutheran or the Methodist.

Some former members attend the Cresson Presbyterian Church at present.

Sobol Is Candidate For Alternate Post

Attorney Leonard Sobol, Westmont, has filed for election in the Apr. 23 primaries as alternate delegate to the Democratic national convention from the 22nd Congressional District (Cambria, Indiana and Armstrong Counties).

The other candidate is James Trimarchi Jr., Indiana County Democratic chairman. Two are to be elected.

Mr. Sobol filed after it was learned that no candidate from Armstrong County was seeking the place. It had been agreed between Democrats that delegates would be Cambria Countians, while the alternates would be from Indiana and Armstrong Counties. The delegates will be Ransom Reeder, Johnstown, and George C. Hoppel, Patton.
