

Joint School Plan To Be Aired Again At 7:30 Tonight

Spangler-Barr Joint School District and Barnesboro and Sunquehanna Township School Districts plan a new attempt to iron out the snag that has been delaying formation of a four-district jointure.

The problem—selection of a site for a junior-senior high school—will be discussed at a meeting of the board this Thursday evening in the Marsteller School Building.

Approval of the meeting was given at a session of the Spangler-Barr board last Thursday evening in the Marsteller school. The session will get under way at 7:30 p. m.

Spangler Borough and Barr Townships formed a jointure in March but thus far are a joint district in name only. By mutual agreement, the boards decided to operate as individual districts until the four-district jointure is completed.

Completion of the jointure has hinged on selection of a site for the proposed new building. Two sites—one in West Branch, Barr Township, and a second in north Spangler—have been suggested, but no agreement has been reached among the four boards.

The four districts would have a junior-senior high school enrollment of approximately 1,200 students, twice the number included in the Spangler-Barr Joint District.

Logue Truck Crashes Into Highway Vehicle

Damages estimated at $200 resulted about seven miles north of Ebensburg on Route 219 last Wednesday morning when a truck operated by Cyril G. Logue of Ebensburg crashed into the rear of a State Highway Department truck operated by Ernest D. Reese, also of Ebensburg.

State police said the accident occurred when Logue failed to see the highway truck in heavy fog. The truck had stopped behind a school bus which was picking up children.

There is every reason to believe by past and present experience that only repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act can bring substantial relief from the flood of pending and anticipated litigation and the attendant enormously increased costs involved.

Lewis, an outspoken foe to the labor act, has paid more than two million dollars in fines for court contempt based on anti-labor injunctions issued under T-H.

Few damage claims against unions have been collected. The miners' union reported a recent claim for $1 million dollars against the union had been dismissed at request of the employer plaintiff.

The miners' 41st convention during its second day accented the political note voiced by Mr. Lewis last Tuesday. He blasted Sen. Taft and had indirect criticism for Gen. Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee.

Wednesday the union heard a political situation report from John T. Jones, director of the "Labor's Non-Partisan League," the political organization of the mine workers.

"All in all," said Jones, "it ran around in circles baying for the moon, investigating anything and everything, ending with nothing accomplished except to saddle the nation with the greatest expenditures and highest taxes in history."

Lewis hinted a recent 10-cent increase in the union's welfare fund royalty won't be enough to satisfy the union.

UMWA Says Damage Suits Peril to Labor Movement

President Lewis Calls For T-H Law Repeal

The United Mine Workers Union said last week the entire labor movement is in peril from damage suits brought by employers under the Taft-Hartley Law.

The union's convention heard a report by John L. Lewis, the organization's president, and other union officers in Cincinnati, Ohio, estimating "at least" 200 million dollars worth of damage suits are pending against unions.

The barrage of money claims, the report said, amount to "an unparalleled threat to all labor."

The Taft-Hartley Law allows damage claims against unions for breach of contract and illegal boycotts. Federal courts recently upheld a damage assessment in Alaska against the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, headed by Harry Bridges, amounting to more than half a million dollars.

"During the past four-year period," the report said, "the expenses of litigation... have risen to unusually large proportions."

"There is every reason to believe by past and present experience that only repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act can bring substantial relief from the flood of pending and anticipated litigation and the attendant enormously increased costs involved."

New Veterans' Jobless Pay Plan Effective Wednesday

26-26 Club Taking Care of Korean GIs

Veterans recently discharged from the Armed Forces may be eligible for Veterans Unemployment Compensation, beginning yesterday, Wednesday, Oct. 15.

Thomas V. Hayes, manager of Johnstown Office of Pennsylvania State Unemployment Service, made the announcement.

He said VUC benefits, roughly similar to unemployment payments for World War II veterans under the GI Bill of Rights, were set up for men fighting in Korea and others serving in the military forces since June 27, 1950.

Provided under new law are benefits of $26 a week for a maximum of 26 weeks for jobless veterans.

Mr. Hayes explained, however, that applicants must satisfy eligibility requirements of the Pennsylvania Unemployment Compensation Law. These include registering for a job, being able to work and available for work and serving the regular one-week waiting period.

Veterans are ineligible for one week in which they can draw benefits of $26 or more under the state unemployment compensation program or the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act.

If the veteran is eligible for less than $26 under the state or railroad jobless benefit system, according to the PSES manager, he is entitled to the difference between that amount and $26 in VUC benefits.

Veterans, Mr. Hayes said, are not eligible for VUC benefits until after their mastering-out pay periods expire. They cannot receive VUC grants for any week in which they receive education, training or subsistence allowances.

The veterans, it was pointed out, must have served 90 continuous days in the armed forces, with at least one day on or after June 27, 1950. He must have been discharged or released under conditions other than dishonorable.

The PSES staff in Johnstown is now receiving claims. The number applying now is relatively small but will probably increase as time passes.

Mr. Hayes urged Korean veterans to visit the employment office promptly. He said the PSES may be able to make suitable job referrals.

1,000 Ex-Hunters In State This Fall

Hunting and trapping licenses of more than 1,000 Pennsylvanians have been revoked for varying periods this year, the State Game Commission has reported.

The commission said that 94 persons convicted of serious violations of the state game law, plus a number of others who had been charged or killed human beings with guns while hunting, had their hunting permits taken away this month.

Previously the commission had withdrawn privileges of 903 persons.

The commission announced that seven cases were recorded in October in which licenses were revoked by court action. It cited three in which two men were injured and another killed by hunters when mistaken for a groundhog, a fox and a gray squirrel.

Surgical Pioneer

Dr. F. John Lewis

RESPECTABLE Dr. F. John Lewis believes that a new avenue to heart surgery has been opened after a recent "deep-freeze" operation at the University of Minnesota hospital on a five-year-old girl. By freezing the child to 18 degrees under his direction, doctors were able to cut off the flow of blood for five and a half minutes and saw up a hole in her heart. It is believed that this is the first time refrigeration has been used to perform cardiac surgery. (International Scoutship)
