Sartorial, Personal Charm As Finet Wheels His Model T

Soft-spoken George Finet, the Hastings Sunoco Service dealer, is certainly the leading exponent of bygone fashions. In truth he is old Sesquicentennial himself!

For what with his oldtime car—vintage about 1914—which almost reminds one of a "surrey" with a fringe on top. George sports personal and sartorial adornment to match. His hair is growth in the darkest hue, his flashy-striped shirt with high collar, stringbean tie, topped with a legitimate derby—are all the real thing.

When George chugs around the vicinity with some of his offspring one feels as if at least 40 or more years have been chopped off the century. We hope Mr. Finet will enter his "rig" in the coming Sequi parade.

He has already consented to take his car to Carrolltown this Saturday afternoon to help that community put on its regular weekly Kangaroo Kart activities and to date he related that he will participate at county Sequi events on at least two days in Bensburg next month.

St. Christina Day Stirs Memories Of Childhood Days

Saturday, July 24, is observed in the Catholic calendar as St. Christina Day—Virgin and Martyr Saint.

Well we remember how our own saintly mother—Mrs. Christina (Felding) Kline—celebrated her Namesday each year. In her estimation the Namesday was more important than a birthday. In fact she didn't even remember the exact date of her birthday, for, in her family as long as she could remember, the birth date was of unimportance compared to the date for the particular saint whose name each one bore.

As our sister Anne's Namesday fell two days later on July 26, there was usually a joint observance at our house. Naturally, everyone would attend early morning Mass. And a special treat would feature at dinner that day, such as a vegetable or vegetable of other dish we particularly relished.

Guy Weekend Earns Orchard For His Lottice

Because he has acquired the art of really raising head lettuce our friend this week goes to Guy Week.

Recently we were gifted with a prize specimen of the crisp succulent salad fodder from his garden which tipped the scales at 1 1/2 pounds. In fact it looked like a huge head of cabbage.

We understand Mr. Weekend sets the trail plants in rows that "foot watches and grow!" And "they grow high!"

Houck Tour Takes In Scenic Beauty Of Skyline District

There are a number of beautiful lakes in various parts of the Caverns of Luray, the largest of which is Dream Lake, a body of clear water in a setting of sparkling strata. These lakes are so diverse that visitors questioning the veracity of their guides have known to subject themselves to a wetting in order to be convinced of the genuineness of the water. Leading geologists from every part of the civilized world have made frequent visits to Luray since the caverns were discovered in 1878. It is a known fact, however, that the famous underground caves were originally created by underground rivers and streams, which, ages ago, bored their way through the limestone, hollowing it out as they went.

An outstanding attraction at Luray is the Singing Tower, where Carrillon Recitals are given four evenings each week. The tower contains a carillon of 47 bells, ranging in size from the largest bell to the smallest, 12 1/2 lbs.—total weight of bells being 36,170 lbs. On the large bell the inscription reads: "Glory to God, Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men."

Other places of interest to be seen at Luray are the Page County Courthouse, built in 1832. Architects and artists a-plenty have studied it; Mimsyn Hotel, one of the most famous hostels in the country. Its hospitable roof has sheltered many of our Nations "Great"; The Luray Museum, which has many curious Indian relics and mementoes of every one of America's Wars. It is the State's largest museum. One thing we noticed in particular was the friendliness of the Virginians. The proprietor of the Tower Cabins, where we stayed the first night, was usually genial and accommodating. In conversation with him we were inwardly amused by certain expressions which marked him as a Southerner, especially his "this-a-way" and "that-a-way."

Retracing the upward climb early next morning to Thornton Gap we continued up the Skyline Drive and we soon reached Skyline High Point on the Drive, 3,880 feet. Quenching one's thirst with ice-cold mountain water which is conveniently piped to a majority of the overlooks is an added pleasure along the way.

There are a number of havens, with coffee and gift shops, comfort stations, etc. At times nothing can be seen from the car windows on either side except sky, off glimpsed through treetops. And as one approaches a sharp curve the azure blue seems uniquely close to the steering wheel.

At other points the wayidesing with color. One of the noteworthy national attractions is the profusion of wildflowers which bloom everywhere from mid April to early November. It is not uncommon to identify as many as 80 different species of blooming plants in the course of a single day. As one tries to make the latter part of June when mountain laurel is at the height of beauty we enjoyed the glory of whole mountainsides transformed into masses of blooming flowers. We noticed yellow, eastern columbine, wild carrot, oxe-eyed daisy, black-eyed susan, fireweed, milk-weeds, snapweeds, and the turquoise lily.

And birds are quite plentiful. In addition to the numerous hawks, there are ravens, vultures, ruffed grouse, wild turkey, scarlet tanager, cardinal, bluejays, woodpeckers, and a host of others.

We marveled at the folded rock strata at several points which reveal the magnitude of the forces which wrinkled and broke the earth's crust, causing an overlap for several miles. And we were decidedly intrigued by the trees seen along the way several kinds of oak, blackoaks, American hickies, black locusts, black gums, maples, and walnuts. There are a number of evergreen, such as pine, red spruce, Canada hemlock, Eastern redcedar, Canada yew and bracted balsam fir.

The Skyline Drive for the most part passes through forests which prefer moist soil. Most notable exception is the dry soil forest in the south section of the park. The characteristically dwarfed appearance of the deciduous trees over topped by pine serves to distinguish the dry soil forest from the moist soil forest, which predominates.

Continuously as we drove along a thread of time kept repeating over and over in my inner consciousness—throughout the long days when, as a young girl, I sang then, popular tune of the day—"In the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia, on the Trail of the Lonesome Pine." At the end of the 105 mile Drive which, at Afton continues under the name of Blue Ridge Parkway, we branched to the East, heading for Charlottesville to visit Monticello and Ashlawn. As its name implies, Monticello, an Italian word meaning, "Little Mountain," is magnificently situated atop a mountain which commands a sweeping view of the surrounding country on all sides. Designed and built by Thomas Jefferson, it was started in 1769, but was not completely finished until after 1809. It has three stories and basement with a total of 35 rooms. The bricks were made and the timber hewed on the property, even the ashlawn hardware was made there under Jefferson's direction. It has two partitioned entrances, the East Front and the West Front. The kitchen and service quarters are concealed from view and connected to the main house by promenade beneath which are subterranean passages. Monticello was passed on to the hands of Jefferson's descendants in 1828, and is now owned and maintained by the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation. Ten entries keep the estate in perfect order the year round.

Local Couple Wed Saturday Morning

A pretty Socially wedding took place in St. Bernard's Church here Saturday morning when Miss Joan Strittmatter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Strittmatter, became the bride of Kenneth F. Holtz, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Holtz, all of Hastings. The Nuptial High Mass was at 9 o'clock and Rev. Father I. A. Strittmatter, pastor of St. Aloysius Church, Cresson, an uncle of the bride, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a floor-length gown of white chanelly lace over taffeta, the dress being accented with a finger-tip veil of illusion was edged with lace and secured by a band of orange blossoms and seed pearls. She carried a bride's missal with white carnations and a cascade of ribbon and maiden-hair fern, and placed a bouquet of white asters on the Blessed Virgin altar.

Mrs. Thelma Baker, as her sister's matron of honor, wore a floor-length gown of pastel pink lace and net. Her picture hat was of matching shade and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white carnations. Paul Baker, a brother-in-law of the bride, served as best man.

Allars of the church were adorned with pink gladioli and white hydrangeas. Teddy and Timmy Holtz, brothers of the bridegroom, served as altar boys. At the ceremony of the Mass the "Ave Maria" was sung by Miss Doris Dietrich.

A wedding dinner was served at the Strittmatter home in East End, where a reception also took place. Following a northern wedding trip, the newlyweds will reside in their new home in East End.

Clematis Is Treat At Weekend Home

Each summer we anticipate our first glimpse of the royal purple to be seen from a porch of a residence on the Hastings-St. Boniface highway.

We refer to the clematis vine which blooms riotously each year at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Weiland. Its starlike, deep purple flowers are a beautiful sight. And each year when we behold their beauty we muse "How to get one of those vines started. But the years slip by and as each summer rolls around we regret our procrastination—and from a distance admire the Weiland blooms. Oh well, perhaps one of these days . . .

Hastings Couple Married In Ohio

The marriage of two Hastings young people, employed the past few years in the neighboring state of Ohio, took place Saturday morning in Cleveland.

At a pretty Socially event in St. Joseph's Church, Miss Elizabeth Ann Gueguen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gueguen, became the bride of Paul J. Dillon, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Dillon, all of Hastings. The Nuptial High Mass was at 9 o'clock and Rev. Father O'Reilly officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Miss Margaret Gueguen was her sister's maid of honor and John Wyland, cousin of the bride, served as best man.

Both the bride and her attendant were attired in Fall suits of light gray, with white accessories. White roses edged with carnations, while the maid of honor's corsage was of red roses.

Following the ceremony the bride, carrying a bride's missal, was accompanied by her attendants on the Blessed Virgin altar and she knelt in prayer, the choir sang "Ave Maria."

Mrs. and Mrs. Morris Wyland, uncle and aunt of the bride, were host and hostess at a breakfast at their home in Cleveland to the members of the wedding party. After a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the newlyweds will reside in Cleveland.

Mrs. Dillon, a U. S. Navy veteran, is employed by Goodyear Aircraft in Akron, Ohio, while Mrs. Dillon is an employe of the Electric in Cleveland. Both are graduates of Hastings High School.

Dorothy Koelsch Weds Alfred Kline

Alfred Kline, son of Mr. and Mrs. U. R. Kline of Hastings R. D., and Miss Dorothy Koelsch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Koelsch of East McKeesport, were joined in matrimony Saturday morning before a Nuptial High Mass at 10:30 o'clock in St. Robert Bellerophon Church, East McKeesport. Officiating at the double-ring ceremony was Rev. Father Noel Rothrauff, OSB.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina-length gown of white nylon lace and net over satin. Her finger-tip veil was lace-edged and was secured by a coronet adorned with seed pearls. She carried a white orchid on her bride's missal.

Miss Kathryn Koelsch was her sister's bridesmaid, and another sister, Miss Betty Koelsch served as bridesmaid. They were similarly attired in gowns of pastel blue and white. The bride's usual bouquet of white and pink shades. They carried colonial bouquets of mixed blooms. Aurelius Kline served as the bride's best man, and Herman Kline of Nicktown was usher.

Breakfast was served at a neighborhood restaurant and a reception took place at the Koelsch home in East End, where a wedding in the Peconic was Mr. Kline will reside on Hastings R. D.

CULTIVATE CAREFULLY When cultivating flower borders do not dig too deeply, cautions A. O. Rasmussen, Penn State extension ornamental horticulturist. A wheel hoe can be used to advantage where flowers are grown in long, straight rows in formal borders, a small hand cultivator of hoe can be used around the plants.

PREVENT RADIATOR GUST Inhibitor treatment of water will reduce rust formation in the tractor cooling system at least 95 per cent. Burton Horne, Penn State extension agricultural engineer, reports two types of rust inhibitors in use—the soluble oil and salts. Remember, the inhibitors do not remove rust already formed.
