Legislation Topics Discussed At Meet In Chest Springs

Pleasant Hill Grange To Award Door Prize

Several items of legislation of oncern to farmers were considered at the regular meeting of Fleasant Hill Grange on Friday, April 1. Efforts are being con-tinued by the Grange and other farm organizations to have H. R. 3005, the bill extending the draft law, amended so that boys who have been deferred will not be liable for service after they reach the age of 26. House Bill No. 729 would license and bond dealers in farm produce which would give the farmer a good measure of protection, should he fail to receive payment for his products. House Bill No. 730 would permit the training of lay technicians for the drawing of blood samples in the Pullorum testing program of the poultry industry, and would pive relief to those poultryme who have trouble securing a ve inarian or who are paying exhorbitant fees. Opposition was volced to the Neely amendment to the Reciprocal Trade Agreement, which would decrease our supply of imported heavy fuel oil the effect of drastically curtailing farmers use to power their equipment. Opposition to any change in the milk control laws alse was in the milk control laws alse was poiced.
