'Oiltown' Film to Be Shown Next Week At Coalport Church

Full-Length Feature Stars Billy Graham

Rev. Billy Graham, nationally known evangelist and producer of the world's first Christian western film "Mr. Texas," will be seen in another religious film, "Oiltown, U.S.A.," to be presented on Friday, May 6, in the Coalport Evangelical United Brethren Church.

The Coalport Ministerium, in charge of local arrangements for the showing, announced that the picture will begin at 7:30 p. m. with the doors of the auditorium opened at 6:45 p. m.

Graham's film features the evangelist and members of his team in their city-wide evangelistic crusade in Houston, Texas. Highlighting the film are scenes from the meeting in Rice Stadium where 60,000 gathered to hear Graham for one of the largest evangelistic meetings in American history.

Featured in the film are professional Hollywood players who have become Christians themselves, including Colleen Townsend Evans, Georgia Lee, Paul Power, Robert Clarke and the stars of "Mr. Texas," Redd Harper and Cindy Walker. "Oiltown U.S.A." is in natural color and is about 90 minutes in length.

Officials pointed out that there is no charge for admission, and that the seats of Coalport Church will be on a "first come" basis.

The Clearfield County Medical Society has not yet set a fee for inoculating private patients with the Salk polio vaccine, society officers announced early in the week.

It is quite probable that the society will not set a fee until May 19, the next meeting of the society. However, there is a possibility that a fee rate would be set earlier. Dr. Melvin C. Ferris, society secretary, said, if the groups in the Clearfield and Philipsburg areas agree among themselves.

At a staff meeting at Philipsburg State Hospital, Dr. Ferris said the Philipsburg group agreed on a $4 fee, but this will have to be put before the society at its full meeting.

204 Children Get Shots Here Early Tuesday

Exactly 204 children of the Beccaria-Coalport-Irona Joint Schools and Jordan Township received their first Salk polio vaccine inoculations on Tuesday morning, April 26, as the long-awaited mass program for first and second graders began smoothly in Clearfield county.

The youngsters, mostly six and seven years old, were among the more than 3,000 in Clearfield Co. and among the 470,000 in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to have the redidid protective fluid injected into their arms by teams of physicians, nurses, and assistants.

The children promptly reported to the Coalport Medical Center, located in the auditorium of the Coalport Elementary School, and took their first Salk vaccine injections with alacrity on Tuesday morning from Dr. C. L. Owens and Dr. Lawrence Ervin, both of Coalport. Most of them received their first draughts of the polio preventive shots with poise.

The youngsters' expressions ranged from indifference to apprehension to fear as they approached the auditorium where doctors, nurses and clerical assistants waited them with loaded syringes, record cards—and encouragement.

The young contingent will have to make a second visit to the inoculation chambers sometime in May for the second shot in the series, according to the present schedule. The third injection will come in seven or eight months.

The children, most unaware of the full significance of their good fortune, went through the inoculation mill in record time.

Most of the children received their shots with a "whimper" and scarcely any crying. Several said, "It hurt a little, but not much" and one said, "Ow!" when the needle broke her skin. Several held their arms protectively. Others hurried from the room (but not before they were presented with a lollipop) with relief lighting their faces.

Ira Owens and Ervin were aided by the following nurses and assistants: Thelma Hall, the school nurse; Isabel Hill, state nurse; Patricia Zulener, Kathleen McGonigal, Mrs. Ed Schenley, Josephine McCully, Margarette Cusberg, Ruth S. Beals, Patricia O'Shell, Mrs. Leo Fitch, Mrs. John McGill and Phyllis Eamigh.

Supervising principal John F. Smith, chairman of the Medical Center in the BCI Joint School District, wishes to thank Russell E. Whittaker, principal of the senior high school, who served as acting chairman during Mr. Smith's illness. He also expressed his sincere appreciation to the unstinting efforts of the entire medical staff and personnel.

Will This Hurt?

The man who bellows and blusters is less likely to develop ulcers.

Retaining pent-up emotion is a groundwork for ulcers.

Most ulcers can be warded off declares a University of Minnesota School of Medicine physician. An ulcer is the eating away of the protective lining of the stomach or upper intestine, the duodenum.

Through the trod hole, acid and digestive juices produced in the stomach wall seep in to attack the underlying tissue.

Dietary abuses tend to promote an excess of acid or gastric juice.

These substances attack a susceptible spot in the mucous membrane.

While faulty eating habits are usually present in people who develop ulcer a disturbed emotional state is a factor in the cause of ulcer.

The Minnesota doctor comes to the following conclusions:

He urges moderation in eating, drinking and smoking.

He suggests we do our best at work without over-straining what we do.

Constant emotional stress can institute an attack on the mucous membrane.

Emotion kept locked up inside is more influential in causing an ulcer than emotion openly expressed.

Harboring resentments, nursing grievances, concealing a sense of being unappreciated and insecure are the big ulcer causes.

The doctor's recommendation for avoiding an ulcer is to free the mind of situations that cause upset emotions—if necessary by sounding off.

Express it in words, knock a golf ball around, bust a rumpus room.

Work it out in words or actions!
