Kate Reffner, Glasgow, First Woman Reporting Deer Killed

The season's "opener" was good but since that time the kill of antlered deer has been comparatively light, as the 1955 Pennsylvania Antlered Deer season goes on its last lap this week.

According to reports by State Game Commission officials about 15,000 legal deer were bagged in the state Nov. 23, the first day of the buck season.

The wintry weather of snow and wind played favor to the hunters in the western and central counties. However, in the southeastern and the eastern counties no snow was reported and weather was rather warm.

State protectors reported that the deer this year are more abundant than last year. Antlers were described as being "good" to "fair." Bucks in most sections were described as fat and heavier, on the average, than in 1954.

However, this "more abundant" clause in the official state report, could be true in many ways. Hunters, hereabouts, say they have seen plenty of doe or antlerless deer, but not too many bucks. We suppose that come next Monday and Tuesday, the two-day deer season, the nimrod will see more buck than doe.

Irregardless of what is said and what the official reports say, the number of hunters taking antlered deer in this area is good. In looking over last year's reports of the same date of the season, the number of area hunters reporting kills to this newspaper this year, is about the same as at the same time in 1954.

And with the kill reports come these favorite and timely hunting stories. There are many, many tales coming out of the hunting experiences this season. And some of them are really good.

But perhaps the most unusual story, and it's true, comes from Richard Bauman, 23, of Pittsburgh who shot a doe deer during buck hunting but he's not going to get fined for it. The doe had antlers. That's right, six-point antlers just like a buck.

And what happened to this very unusual specimen. It's going to the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh. Dr. J. Kenneth Doull, curator of mammalogy at the museum, examined the animal and verified that it was a female. He said "a deer like this is about as unusual as a lady who grows whiskers." Bauman shot the doe the opening day of the season.

And before we go any further we would like to remind area hunters that with the doe again next week, we will again publish our favorite Deerslayer column Dec. 15. If you get a doe, let us know.

A complete story about the two-day doe season next week will be found on Sports Pages of this issue.

Getting back to the local area hunters making kills, let's get off until yesterday afternoon.

Seems like everyone's got into the act this season. Hastings, Carrolltown and Patton residents are all reporting good results. The Dean, Dyart and Ashville communities, also show good returns. But, as for the two members of the staff of this newspaper, who get out hunting when they can, (which isn't very often) the '55 deer season to date has been rather fruitless. And from those of us who don't hunt, these two gentlemen are sort of taking the bumps.

Bede Lantry of Spangler, brought home a fine 8-pointer the second day of the season. He made the kill in St. Lawrence area. And the buck was the largest specimen in the Edwards Food Lockers, Ebsenburg, to date—165 pounds, hog dressed. The 8-point span went at least 20 inches.

Bede's brother-in-law, Fred Sharbaugh, took an 8-pointer the opening day, also in the St. Lawrence area.

Four Carrolltown hunters had plenty of venison on the table this week. Alfred Lieb Sr., 31-year-old 7-pointer, Dr. Don Sharbaugh brought down an 8-pointer and Herman "Wimp" McNulty killed a 6-pointer, the first and second day of their hunt in Clinton Co. Mr. Lieb's son, Alfred Jr., better known as "Butch", downed a 3-pointer at the same place, the opening day. "Butch" was a day-hunter in the area.

Other Carrolltown hunters reporting kills were: Don Mohler, a spike buck the opening day at Lake Moshannon, Clearfield Co.; Fred Svidergol Jr., a 6-pointer last Saturday in Beaver Dams area; Joe DeSalvo a nice buck last week near Blandburg; Joe Shank, a 2-point, 100-pounder on second day of season at Clinton Co. camp, and his brother Frank Shank, a 2-point, 180-pounder on Saturday at Beaver Valley area.

The Owl Hollow Camp, also

Clinton County, reported 3 kills last week

Clinton County, reported 3 kills last week. Ben Beayer of Carrolltown downed a 4-pointer Tuesday of last week. His two uncles also made kills. Harry Beayer of Carrolltown killed a spike buck, also on Tuesday, and Earl Beayer, Patton, downed a 9-pointer last Thursday.

As always, Owl Hollow camp always makes a nice catch.

Moving over to Dark Hollow Camp, also in Clinton County, two more kills were reported the first of last week. Dick Adams of Carrolltown fell an 8-pointer, and Fred Farbaugh of Bedford, formerly of Carrolltown, downed another nice buck.

Paul Miller of Ebsenburg R. D. killed his buck early last week at Davis Bottom. Tom Controchick of Carrolltown R. D. felled his 9-pointer last week at the Mescal Bottom.

Patrick McAndrew of St. Boniface didn't go too far from bringing down his 6-pointer. He felled the 136-pound buck last Saturday at about 1:00 p. m. near Thomas Mills.

Eight residents of Fallentimber reported kills, up until last Saturday

Eight residents of Fallentimber reported kills, up until last Saturday. They were: Donald Gates, 7-pointer; Owen R. Lovell, 6-pointer; James Lovell, 6-pointer; and Chester L. Keith, 8-pointer, all last Monday, opening day. Heavin Frye, 8-pointer, Norfolk, George Downs Jr., 5-pointer, last Wednesday; John W. Jenkins, 2-pointer, last Thursday and John A. Rafazak, 4-pointer, last Saturday.

In the Hastings community one local news reporter, Mrs. G. M. Houck, again has come forth with that annual list of Deerslayers as posted in Stubby Tavern.

She says, "Now, there are some we hear, who stamped the woods and beat the trail, hunted and hunted, day after day, always hoping to get a shot at a fleet and wily white tail." How about it, Stubby? We hope your success has been the same.

Perhaps more than one Hastings area nimrod was successful the first day of hunting season shortly after setting forth, but Betty Roeske of Hastings is reported to have claimed his 5-pointer about a half hour after he started out.

Stubby's Tavern in Hastings has quite an extensive list posted. The list, up until Tuesday of this week, follows:

Joe Woodley and Frank Restie, 10-pointers; Will Kibler and Geo. Smith, 9-pointers; Mike Koral, Hen Tobie, Bill Woodley, Tiny Miller, Lou Carpio, Joe Kurtz, Henry Woodley, Raymond Weakland, Carl Miller, Hack Holtz, Ed Forberger, Ed Sitts, Stanley Bakkoewicz, Walter Molitay, and Bob McMurray, all 6-pointers.

Lesley Weakland, Louis Lloyd, Eugene Cunningham, Lucien Verdavoir, Eugene Yeager, George Hnatkovich, James Hambley and George Chigas Jr., all 5-pointers; Mike Ewanek, Vince Carpinello, Mike Kovach, Bill Kelly, Tony Banik and Dick Rogal, all 4-pointers; Nick Carpinello, Harry Carpinello, Norman Malmes, Don Eastbourne and Barney Huber, all 3-pointers, and Archie Yeager Jr. and Bill Abel, spike bucks.

From the Laurel Run Sportsman Club, Inc., of Dyart, the "successful" flags are flying in Dyart, Dean and Ashville, as 29 members of the club from the three communities reported deer kills the first week.

And here they are:

Dyart—Telford Grimes, spike; Elmer Crossman Jr., spike; John Vincent, 6-pointer; Regis Hertzog, 8-pointer; Eugene Cuomo, spike; Alfred Cuomo, 6-pointer; Gerry Ratchford, 6-pointer; Joe Matish, 3-pointer; Sam Passonetti, 3-pointer; James Herzon, spike; George Zeughardt, 4-pointer; Joseph Caponizelli, 3-pointer; and George E. Mansfield, spike.

Dean—Richard Conzo, 7-pointer; Raymond Judd, 4-pointer; Wm. Judd Jr., 4-pointer; Ray Funnell, 6-pointer; Clarence Johnston, 3-pointer; Joseph Johnston, spike; Paul Steves, 7-pointer; George Jacobs, 6-pointer and
