Accident at Highland.

Charles Dougherty, a 17-year-old lad residing at Highland and employed as a driver, was crushed to death on Monday night. He was coming out from the face of the gangway with a loaded car and by some unknown way got caught between the car and the rib, where he was afterwards found dead by some of the miners who became alarmed at his long absence. He was a member of St. Ann's Pioneer Corps and a delegation of that body attended the funeral yesterday, interment taking place at Mauch Chunk, under charge of Undertaker Brislin.

Upon notification Mine Inspector Jonathan appeared and examined the scene of the accident, and yesterday morning ordered T. A. Buckley, J. P., to hold an inquest to ascertain the cause. The following jury was empaneled, and after viewing the remains adjourned to meet at 2 p. m. to-day: John M. Powell, John Burton, Jos. D. Myers, Jos. H. Lehigh, Condy O. Boyle and John B. Quigley.

A School Director Dead.

Austin Mochamer of Eckley, who was confined in the Episcopal Hospital, Philadelphia, for some time past, died on Sunday morning. He was suffering with a kidney disease, but reports received last week stated that he was in a fair way to recover, and his death was entirely unexpected. Deceased was a married man, and held the position of school director in Foster township during the past two years. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon, a special train conveying the remains to Hazleton. The P. O. S. of A. of Eckley and the Knights of Malta of Freeland, of which he was a member, attended. The township schools were closed yesterday as a mark of respect to the dead director.

Word Building.

The pupils of the Plymouth parochial school, says the Star, were given a short time ago, the task of seeing how many words they could construct from the letters contained in the two words "Kitty Rhoades." The lists of the contestants were examined last week and the first prize, a gold necklace, was won by a pupil named Mary Jones, who had 4,780 separate words constructed from the letters of the name. A similar contest was held here last winter, but the highest number of words constructed was 803. Plymouth beats Freeland in word building.

He Tossed the Bear.

For a wager of $1 a Poleander named Frank Socolowsky engaged in an hour's wrestling match with a great performing bear at Georgetown, near Wilkes-Barre, a few days ago. The bear was in the possession of two Italians, who stopped at the hotel of Joseph Feurth, where the contest took place. A half-drunk Hungarian first took a trial with the bear, and the man was thrown so quickly and so hard that it was feared he was killed. The Poleander then stepped up and made a wager of $1 with the Italians that he could throw the bear two out of three times, but the match was finally made to consist of five rounds. "Smile" Foley was referee, and Liveryman Peter Murray was timekeeper. The first fall was in favor of the Poleander, the bear took the second and third, and the man won the fourth and fifth. The contest lasted nearly an hour, and was witnessed by 200 people. It was most exciting throughout, and at its close the Italians grumbled viciously because they had lost their money.

UNITING THE MINERS.

Lewis' Progressive Union Wants to Join Hands With N. Y. L. 135.

A dispatch from Columbus, Ohio, says that it is very probable now that the two national organizations of coal miners, the Progressive Union and National District Assembly No. 135, K. of L., will soon consolidate under a new name. The Secretary of the Progressive Union has addressed the following letter to Secretary Watson of 135:

"Since our meeting at Pittsburgh I have laid the suggestions of Master Workman Rae, to unite the mining forces by having one set of national affairs and one national fund, before President McBride. He is thoroughly in accord with the opinions expressed. As instructed by me, I tender M. W. Rae and yourself a cordial invitation to attend the convention to be held at Indianapolis, December 18, 1889. It is my earnest desire for Mr. Rae, President McBride would like to meet him at Columbus on or about December 13, that they might interchange views on the subject, and adopt some method to be submitted to the convention and from it to the miners of the country."

The Progressive Union was organized less than a year ago by its present secretary, W. T. Lewis, who had been deposed from office in 1887 for misappropriation of funds. Its growth throughout Western Pennsylvania and Ohio was very rapid for awhile, and its leaders, who had always been kickers in 135, succeeded in getting several assemblies to go with them into the new organization. Last spring, however, the union inaugurated several strikes, most of which were failures, and since then it has been losing ground steadily. An attempt was made to introduce branches of it in the Schuylkill region, but the miners there did not take very kindly to it. N. T. A. 135 is the representative miners' organization in this country and it is hoped its leaders will have nothing to do with this Progressive Union as far as uniting forces is concerned, as the latter has simply nothing to unite, except a few officers who do not like the prospect of losing their positions. The rank and file of the Progressive has been back in 135 for long, but its leaders are not wanted there.

Estimating for Next Year.

The commissioners of Luzerne County held a special meeting Tuesday. The chief business transacted was the submission of the following estimates for the year 1890: For ordinary county expenses, $150,000; for sinking fund, $12,000, and for other purposes, $12,000. These estimates will in all probability be agreed upon. The Volkshart, Needles and Shickshinny Mountain Echo were designated as the newspapers in which the mercantile appraisal will be published. Zila Van Loan of Plymouth was appointed Mercantile Appraiser of Luzerne County.

There is Something Wrong.

There is not a single night but from half a car load to a car load, and sometimes more, of Hungarian and Italian immigrants pass up the Lehigh Valley on passenger train No. 8, passing through Mauch Chunk at about 11 o'clock. All are dumped into the Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre coal regions. What are they doing to do with all these people, or what will become of them? Surely there is something wrong somewhere.—M. C. Times.

Suing for Damages.

The case of Buckingham against the Plymouth Water Company was called up in court Tuesday for trial. Mr. Buckingham lost some of his family during the epidemic at Plymouth in 1885, the cause being attributed to the water then supplying the town, hence the suit. ## The Road Commission Appointed.

Last March the legislature passed a joint resolution providing for the appointment of three senators, the speaker of the house and five representatives, to act in conjunction with five citizens, to be appointed by the governor, in the revision and consolidation of the laws relating to the construction and improvement of the roads and public highways of the state, and also to consider the advisability and practicability of the state assisting in the construction and improvement of the same. This commission will report at the next session. The members of the commission are: Senators Harlan, Mylin and Sloan, and Representatives Fought, of Westmoreland, McCullough, of Allegheny, Faulkner, of Bradford, Griffith, of McKean, and Shillito, of York, will represent the legislature, and Governor Beaver has appointed the following additional members: David McCargo, Pittsburgh; Jacob Bolard, Conneautville; Cyrus Gordon, Clearfield; H. S. Goodwin, South Bethlehem; Samuel K. Downing, West Chester. The working body of who was the moving spirit in the creation of the commission, being asked concerning the defects in the present road laws, said there were a number, but only two of considerable importance. "We have very poor roads all over the state," said the governor, "but they are not to be attributed to the fact that supervisors have no authority to make good roads. They simply do not carry out the laws. I think there are only two defects in the present law, and that is, the position of the road tax, as now provided by law, and the law now permits taxes to be 'worked out,' and the work is now done in a bungling manner by inexperienced men whose only object is to put in sufficient time to make up the amount of their tax. Where there is but one supervisor he could devote his entire time to the work and see that it would be done well. The most grievous abuse, however, is the working of the taxes on the road. The work is not done. One supervisor and cash taxes would be a capital beginning in the right direction."

"It is not necessary to revolutionize the entire system at once. I recognize the difficulty of the commission's task, for they must exercise a great deal of care to get a law that will operate for the advantage of all. The commission, however, represents all sections, and some of the members are practical engineers and road makers, and they will no doubt prepare an acceptable law."

Making Jersey Sausage.

Bologna sausages, big and little, have been turned out in quantities from a factory on Johnson Avenue, Newtown, a little village in New Jersey. The factory is a two-story frame building. It has always been a mystery to the people roundabout. Wagon loads of sausages were sent away daily, but no one remembered ever having seen any meat or cattle brought to the place. The rattle of the steam chopping and stuffing machines could be heard night and day. Henry Myer, the proprietor, and several other men were employed in making the sausage.

Health Officer Wickham made an investigation on Tuesday. He found suspended in different parts of the place large pieces of dressed meat. The doctor examined them and found that they were horseflesh. When questioned on the subject the proprietor did not deny that he used horseflesh in manufacturing his sausages, and as there is no law to prevent it, nothing could be done. There is no law, either, to compel people to eat his sausages, and it would be as well to let them alone.

A Nautical School.

The legislature at its last session passed a law establishing a board of directors of a nautical school and to provide and maintain a nautical school for the education and training of pupils from the various counties of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in the science and art of navigation. Subsequently in the same session a bill was passed, and $20,000 was made for the support of the school. The government has placed a vessel at the disposal of the school and it is now in Philadelphia harbor where it will remain till next spring, when it is the intention to take a trip into foreign waters in order to give the boys some experience in the science of navigation. The pupils for this school are apportioned among the different members of the legislature and distributed over the state.

The Tramps' Convention.

Some waggoner reporter played a huge joke upon the daily paper a few days ago by giving a report of a Tramps' Convention, which he said was held at the old Dundee Breaker near Nanticoke. The report as published attracted the attention of the proprietor of a dime museum at Chicago and he telegraphed the president of the supposed convention as follows: "Will give fifteen of your party three hundred dollars per week to sit in museum here." When the telegram was received it could not be delivered, but as the convention will meet again in May, the operator here will hold it till that time.—Nanticoke Tribune.

Backed by the D. & H.

The Wilkes-Barre and Williamsport Railroad, which was incorporated at Harrisburg recently, turns out to be a much more important line than was at first supposed, inasmuch as it is chartered in the interest of one of the larger railroads to give access to Williamsport and the soft coal territory beyond. It is generally believed that the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company is back of the project, since surveys were made from Plymouth on the Delaware and Hudson line. A. S. Orr, one of the directors, has admitted that the Wilkes-Barre and Williamsport Railroad will not stand alone.

Mrs. Stephen Knorski, a Polish woman of Plymouth, was killed yesterday afternoon while picking coal on the railroad.

Pat Mulvey of Mahanoy City was lodged in jail at Pottsville on Monday. He was caught in the act of robbing the house of Coal and Iron Policeman Rowbottom.

Mrs. Margaret Dillard, who with W. H. Bartholomew, was convicted of the murder of her husband in September, at Biersville, was sentenced on Monday to be hanged.

A policeman of Williamsport was compelled to take the pulpit in the Shiloh Colored Baptist Church, on account of the warring factions, who threatened to get into a general fight.

Bishop Tuigg of Allegheny City died on Saturday at Altoona. He had been an invalid for six years. The funeral took place yesterday morning, and was attended by Bishop O'Hara of Scranton.

E. E. Higbee, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, was stricken with paralysis at Millin, on Tuesday afternoon, and was removed to his home in Lancaster. There is no hope of his recovery.

Railroad men have dubbed the Pennsylvania, Poughkeepsie and Boston Railroad the "Pickled Pork and Beans Road," the name being of course suggested by Boston's traditional fondness for pork and beans.

A despatch from Scotland says that ex-Representative Callaghan has again sworn out warrants charging T. V. Powderly and two local members of the Knights with conspiring to defeat him at the recent election.

During a performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," in the opera house at Johnstown, Tuesday night, a cry of fire was raised, and there was a terrible run down the narrow stairs. 10 persons were killed and about 75 injured.

Stephen Steffel, one of the victims of the Hazle street crossing accident at Wilkes-Barre last week, died on Monday. He has been hovering between life and death since the fatal day and little hope was entertained for his recovery.

A mechanic named James A. Noose of McKeesport has invented a perpetual motion. It is a wheel six feet in diameter and works with an elevator running up the centre, carrying balls which when carried around the wheel to the bottom are again taken to the elevator.

The large sugar refinery of Claus Speckels at Philadelphia, which was built to enable him to compete with the sugar trust, was opened for operation on Monday. It has a capacity of refining 2,000,000 pounds daily. Preparations are being made to duplicate the works and double the capacity.

At a meeting of the Central Labor Union of Pittston on Sunday night a full and frank discussion upon the affairs of the union took place, particularly in view of almost every representative present. A set of stirring resolutions were adopted, after which the Scranton delegates asked to withdraw to effect an organization of their own in that city. The desired permission was cheerfully granted, as it evidenced the rapid growth of the union.

HALF A MINUTE, PLEASE.

Though you were a Jay Gould or a Vanderbilt, it is worth thirty seconds of time to learn that "Ideal" Tooth Powder will preserve your teeth from decay, and by so doing save dentists' bills and hours of agony from your old enemy, the toothache. Dr. R. E. Giebler, Pa., says: "When I first began using 'Ideal' Tooth Powder I could not use a brush on my teeth on account of injuring the gums. Can now use as stiff a brush as obtainable with impunity. It has also hardened the enamel of my teeth."

Weekly Coal Report.

The anthracite coal trade presents no new feature to note this week. There is less demand for coal than there was a week or two ago, and during the past week some of the individual operators have been offering directly to consumers coal in carload lots at a trifle above the wholesale market prices to dealers. The houses have been somewhat softening in prices since the closing of the canal from the cessation for the season of the Western shipments via the lake routes. The Eastern trade continues quiet, and the local line and city business is being conducted on the hand-to-mouth principle. The Reading, Lehigh Valley and Pennsylvania Canal and Railroad have closed their respective fiscal years.

The Engineering and Mining Journal of Saturday, in its weekly review of the coal trade at New York, says: "The improvement in the trade occurred by the cold weather of the week, has been in feeling rather than in fact. Prices are undoubtedly weak and coal is certainly too plentiful. The actual condition of the market under such circumstances can as well be imagined as described. At this late date a period of continued cold weather is the only thing that can decidedly relieve the situation. The producers have had every opportunity to restrict the output of coal, and if an unsatisfactory market results from an utter lack of a judicious regulation of the supply to the demand they have only themselves to blame."

The Pottsville Miners' Journal, on the other hand, finds a somewhat brighter condition of affairs in the anthracite trade to report. It states that: "For the first time in many weeks the anthracite trade begins to manifest some signs of life. There is an increase over the shipments of the same week in 1888 of nearly 100,000 tons, and most of the collieries are now engaged in an effort to make the current week's output greater still. The companies which have led in this unusual activity are the Lehigh Valley and the Philadelphia and Reading, but several of those which come lower down in the producing scale are also gaining ground. Advances are to the effect that the market is more active, but there is little of a firmer tone to boast of. A touch of winter here and there has stimulated the demand for domestic sizes, but a dozen blizzards will be needed to force the demand up to what it should be at this time. For small orders the prices have been fairly well maintained, but there is still considerable shading among the men who handle heavy consignments.

The total amount of anthracite coal sent to market for the week ending November 30, as reported by the several carrying companies, was 830,643 tons, compared with 653,987 tons in the corresponding week last year, an increase of 185,656 tons. The total amount of anthracite mined thus far in the year 1889 was 32,864,290 tons, compared with 35,621,756 tons for the same period last year, a decrease of 2,757,466 tons.—Ledger.
