Special Correspondence. EDITOR TRIUXE—Dear Sir. —Being in Freeland on Saturday evening last, ac-companied by a friend, and having oc-casion to pass Main Street, between Cen-tre and Washington Streets, my eyes were attracted to a transparency hung joutside of a building bearing the follow-ing inscription: "Young Mens" T. A. B. member I proceeded to the Hall where I was met by one of the members, and upon enquring whether the room was open for strangers, was told to "step in, as it was open to all T. A. B. members." We were conducted to the billiard room where a number of young men were playing. We looked on for a few mo-ments at the quiet and friendly manner in which the game was being conducted, and presently was invited by the Secre-tary of the Library Committee into the Library room, and was told to make our-sider ourselves at home. We done so and can say that we spent a very enjoy-able evening. The library is one of the pretieset and most interesting that we will continue on in the whole the members will continue on in the work they have we have ever seen. We hope the members will continue on in the vork they have we have ever seen. We hope the members will continue on in the vork they have we were seen. We hope the members will continue on in the work they have we were seen. We hope the members will continue on in the work to won for social enjoyment and recreation. We tend our thanks to the Secre-tay, and hope we may meet again in a short while. ESTER TOWSWEITS.

Miners Buried Alive. A cave-in occurred at 4.30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon at the iron ore mine in Cheltenham township, about two miles from Edge Hill village, operated by the Thomas Iron Company, of Hok-endauqua, and three men were buried under ten feet of earth and stones. The victims were William Kerr, aged 60 years, John Smith, aged 40 years, Edgar Vanfield, aged 25 years. Smith and Vanfield lived in the imme-diate vicinity and each leaves a famlly. Kerr came from Trenton, and it is not known at Edge Hill whether he was married or single. The three men were elandslido occurred. It was preceded by no sound of warning, but was accom-panied by a rumbling noise that alarmed the other miners, and was heard for a considerable distance. As soon as it became known that three miners were missing an alarm was sounded, and a large force of men went to work to ex-hume the entombed bodies. It was after 11 o'clock when they completed their tak. Vanfield wasfound studing on bis feet. The other men were doubled up, as though crushed down by the heavy weight. One of them had a mangled or disfigured to any exter. The cave-in is supposed to have been banknet by reason of the copious rains hast year. An inquest was held on Sin-day by Coroner Long, and a verdict of death by an unavoidable accident was returned. DEATHS.
