PROGRESS.

It is very important in this age of vast ma-terial progress that a remedy be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, accept-able to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Byrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

A scwapager Man. A scwapager Man. A scwapager Man. The genuine journalist is a right royal fellow, who walks through the corridors of time with elastic step and takes what tames with the serene indiference which philosophy alone can furnish. For example Dr. Guerrero, editor of the Honduras, Nacion, apologized to his readers the other day for a delay in the appearance of his paper. It was caused, he said, by "the sad circum" stances by which we were surrounded. Tou night suppose that, like Senator quay, he had gone tarpon fishing and missed the train. But not so, He was simply engaged in a little insurrection. After a short tussle he was captured and condemed to be shot. His family got together $15,000 and messengers; The victors concluded that it was more profitable to take money than life and pocketed the cash. Tr. Guerrero was ready to die, but preferred to live. He lifted his hat in the presses, licitated a ripping leader and romarked to his constituency the torse, went directly to the office, harted the presses, licitated a ripping leader and romarked to his constituency hat he orceive subscriptions at the old tand. A Giant Lobster.

In September, 1885, John D. Barnes, zoologist of Central Park Museum, New York City, caught the largest lobster known in the annals of natural history. It was caught in a common basket trap off the coast north of Cape Cod, Mass. Usually the lobster weighs from one to eight pounds, rarely twelve to fifteen, but this monster of the Massachusetts Bay tipped the beam at twenty-three pounds. A curlosity collector vainly offered $50 for Mr. Barnes' unusual catch. - [St. Louis Republic.

A CORRESPONDENT of the London Standard writes: "Your readers will not have forgoten the terrible catastrophe in the Straits of Sunda in the year 1883, by which half of the island of Krakatoa was swallowed up in the sea, and the remainder was overwhelmed with lava, stones, sand and ashes, completely oblit-erating every trace of vegotation. Dr. Treub, the director of the botanic garden at Buftezorg, near Batavia, has paid the ruined island two visits, and reports that vegetation has reappeared, and seems to progress. At his first visit, in 1886, three years after the catastrophe, he found that alge had spread all over the new forma-tion. He counted eleven different species of ferns, and saw a few scattered flower-ing plants in bloom. This revival must be due to birds, or the winds, or the sea-currents bearing seeds; for the place is uninhabited, and all vestiges of original vegetation had been destroged." tures Which Show that Turth is Stranger than Fiction. Oxe of the most remarkable cases ever known at Mitchell, Ind., is that of John Bond, a negro about 50 years old, who has been in bed about twenty-seven years. When quite a young man he, with his mother and two sisters, lived on a farm near Paoil, Ind. The mother de-termined to sell the farm and move to Mitchell. This raised the ire of the son (John), and he threatened if the farm was sold he would go to bed and never got up. No attention, however, was old he would go to bed and never got up. No attention, however, was usual, but in the morning he refused to get up, and o amount of entraty could persuade him, and for twenty seven instantion of entraty could persuade him, and for twenty seven toon, that being when his mother died a few years ago. In the middle of the right, as the neighbor women were watching with the corpse, they were startled out of their wits by a phosily figure appearing and silently kneeling by aware of John's existence, supposed it was a real spook. When he first took to his bed it caused a great deal of com-ment. Physicians examined him and pronounced him in perfect health. Every means was tried to get him up, but all failed. A cry of burglars did not move him, and an airm of fire did not cause him to budge. As the years have passed the people have lost interest in existence by seeing him carried on a stretcher to the polls on the occasion of some important election. His health has been gradually failing him for the last ing to no one unless spoken to, when he ivell give intelligent narswers to all ques-tions addressed him.

YARDONOUGH, of Sandersville, Ga., has a bullet in his brain, which was accidentally lodged there nearly twelve years ago, and he is said to be the sec-ond man known to the medical world who has survived such a wound for more than two years. A companion accident ally discharged a thirty-two-aciliber pistol, the ball entering Mr. Yaz-borough's head behind the right ear, penetrating the brain, and lodging against the frontal bone just above the left eye. A portion of the brain oozed from the wound, which was pronounced from the wound, which was pronounced from the wound, which was pronounced from the bullet. For two years after this system, and suffers no incorvenience from the bullet. For two years after this occurred he could not walk straight, but would stagger like a drunken man. He then had a personal difficulty and was struck over the left side of his head with a claw hammer which penetrated blood passed from this fresh wound, after which he could walk as straight as anybody. The bullet destroyed his hearing in the left ear, but he says he can to-day hear the croaking of frogs in that ear, which was the last sound he heard when shot. His acute nerves were also destroyed, and while he is not alto-gether insensible to pain a pin can be inserted in any of his limbs and he will not wince.

Inserted in any of his limbs and he will not wince. A REMARKAULE instance of the disas-trous effect that the prolonged frost had upon the fish was to be seen at the Welsh Harp lake, near Hendon, which more than perhaps any other place within easy reach of London was, during the cold spell, the rendezvous of thousands of skatzs. On one side of that superb sheet of water had been cut a breathing hole about ten yards square for the un-happy little prisoners below, and here had congregated in their thousands a medley shoal of pike, dace, roach and perch. The poor creatures were all more or less frozen, and could easily have been picked out of the warer by the hand. Not a few, indeed, had already perished from cold and hunger and were floating together with the living on the surface of the water. The perch had lost all their coy lithcomenes, as shown by the fact that they allowed themselves to be gobbled up by the ravenous jack with utter sang froid. The congested pool was lined all day by an interested ring of spectators.
