FREELAND, PA., MAY 7, 1891.

The report of the New Orleans Grand Jury, which refused to indict the Mafia lynchers, will be approved generally by all.

The Democratic Legislature of Ohio comes to the front with the passage of the genuine Australian system of voting, making the twenty-fifth State to adopt ballot reform with some essentials of secrecy.

MCKINLEY, of tariff robbery fame, has high hopes of capturing the G. O. P. nomination for Governor of Ohio.

HAD Job waited to be relieved from his burdens and afflictions as long as the people of Pennsylvania have waited for ballot reform, it is questionable whether he would have come down through time as the patriarch of patience.

MICHIGAN has passed a law to choose Presidential electors from Congressional districts, instead of voting for them as a whole.

GOVERNOR PATTISON, in compliance with an act passed by the Legislature, has appointed a commission to confer with similar bodies from other States in reference to establishing uniformity of legislation on marriage, divorce, insolvency, etc.

The bill creating an additional law judge for Luzerne County was a piece of legislation that was much needed.

It was necessary to compel the Republican party to fight the tariff battle last November on the lines of protection vs. tariff reform.

At least nine tenths of the voters of this State want to see the Baker bill passed.

China has shown its good sense in declining to receive as Minister to that country Ex-Senator Henry W.
Blair.

Political sentiment in the United States is divided on two different lines of cleavage in a way which makes our party politics incomprehensible to foreigners.

Give Freeland Free Delivery.

The experiment, mentioned some time ago in the TRIBUNE, of extending the free delivery system to small towns, to make which the last Congress appropriated $10,000, seems to be so successful as to indicate that universal free delivery may be possible at an early date in this country.

On Friday the Postmaster General extended the experiment to twelve offices, which will bring the number at which the experimental free delivery is in operation up to thirty.

The Pennsylvania offices which come under this experiment are Jenkintown, Terre Hill, Kutztown, Shoemakersville, Emporium and Berwick.

When the housewife buys goods at the grocery store, that is free trade. Free trade is no theory; it is a fact.

At Jenkintown the total number of pieces delivered and collected in February and March was 25,471, and the total postage amounted to $45.

Before establishing the experiment at any place the Post Office Department obtains information on the following points:

1. Do you propose one or two deliveries and collections?
2. How many hours will be required for each delivery and collection?
3. Have you a clerk in your employ who can be spared to perform the service?

4. What would be the expense for two deliveries on each week day?
5. How many letter boxes would be required?
7. What suggestions have you to make in relation to the proposed service?

The postmaster is also informed that the continuation of the experiment will depend largely upon the smallness of the town. When it is determined to establish the service at an office, an order is signed by the Postmaster General, making that office an experimental free-delivery post office, and the following letter is written to the postmaster:

"The Postmaster General has designated your office as an experimental free-delivery office, and you are authorized to employ a carrier, at an expense not to exceed $212 per annum, the service to begin, - - - Street letter boxes with keys will be sent you to be put at convenient points for the reception of mail, also a satchel for the use of your carrier."

by Grover Cleveland is one which interests the young Democracy, while it accords with the traditions of the veterans.
At the outset Jefferson advised free commerce with all nations, and this is Democratic doctrine from the beginning of the government down to the present day.

Fortified thus, the young Democracy challenges protection as a delusion and a snare, and asserts that there is absolutely no protective argument, and we may as well come out boldly and say it.

And we say also that the revenue tariff with its incidental protection, is of itself a burden and a tax. Don't get alarmed at free trade, for it is only natural trade.

trade is no theory; it is a fact.
