BEGAN AT LAST.

Work Commenced on the Main Sewer and Proposals Wanted for Others.

The borough council met last Thursday evening to act on the report of Surveyor Mack, who was authorized to make the specifications for the main sewer, and also to award the contract for its construction. The specifications were approved and the contract awarded to Miles E. Gallagher, of Freeland, who agreed to do the work at 55 cents per cubic yard, the same to be completed within sixty days from date of contract. The Council decided that Mr. Gallagher be paid every two weeks for the amount done, and that 20 per cent. be deducted from the contract price until it is finished. The secretary was instructed to have the pipes here soon as possible. The borough solicitor was notified to make out the contract and bond between the borough and Mr. Gallagher. It was agreed that the section from the Ridge on Walnut, from Walnut to Chestnut on Centre and from Centre to Ridge on Chestnut Street be sewered, and that proposals for doing it be advertised.

The members met again on Monday evening. The bond of Mr. Gallagher, with Patrick Burke and Peter Carr as sureties in the sum of $1500, was read and laid over. The placing of the bonds and the time at which they would mature took up the attention of council for some time. It was finally decided to redeem the first two bonds two years after date of issue and ten each year thereafter until all are redeemed. The bonds are to be the regular municipal bonds of the denomination of $100 each.

Mr. Gallagher's bond was approved yesterday, and he immediately started work at the outlet with a small force of men. When the pipes arrive, a larger number will be employed, and work pushed as rapidly as possible.

Heavenly Recruit Convention.

Commencing at 7.30 P. M. on Wednesday evening, September 30, a four days' convention of the Heavenly Recruit Association will be held at Bethany Chapel, Centre Street above Chestnut. Representatives are expected from nearly all the congregations of this denomination in the State. The gathering will be attended by the Rev. J. A. Treaster, Elder of Philadelphia, Elder J. Trumbauer, of Chester, and other prominent people of the church. The order of service each day will be as follows: preaching, 10 A. M., 3 and 7.30 P. M. On Friday at 9.30 A. M. a divine healing meeting will be held and at 7.30 P. M. of the same day the Lord's Supper and feet washing will take place. Rev. J. A. E. Canfield, the pastor in charge, extends an invitation to all to be present at every service during the convention.

Dangerous Characters Set Free.

Frank Smith, of Danbury, Conn., and Gus Horwath, of town, who were in the county jail on the charge of burglarizing Getz's jewelry store on July 29, returned on Monday. Mr. Getz failed to appear before the Grand Jury and the indictment was returned against them. These young men are too fast to be allowed to run at large, and Mr. Getz, who is now in Bethlehem, would have rendered the public much benefit had he pushed the case. The result might have curbed the dime-novel ambitions of the prisoners.

To Our Subscribers.

The special announcement which appeared in our columns some time since, announcing a special arrangement with Dr. B. J. Kendall Co., of Enochburg Falls, Md., publishers of "A Treatise on the Horse and his Diseases," whereby our subscribers were enabled to obtain a copy of that valuable work free by sending their address to B. J. Kendall Co. (and enclosing a two-cent stamp for mailing same) has now expired or limited period. We trust all will avail themselves of the opportunity of obtaining this valuable work. To every lover of the horse it is indispensable, as it treats in a simple manner all the diseases which afflict this noble animal. Its phenomenal sale throughout the United States and Canada, make it standard authority. Mention this paper when sending for "Treatise."

STARVING TO DEATH.

Discouraged and Despondent, Joseph Decemale is Trying to Die.

On Friday the Grand Jury brought in a true bill against Joseph Decemale, the Italian accused of murdering a little girl at Lattimer recently. Since his arrest the prisoner has been very low-spirited, and while he protests his innocence and claims that he can prove himself so, yet he acts like a man already condemned to die. He relies upon the evidence of people in Philadelphia, who, he says, can swear that he was in the city at the hour the deed was committed. From his statements one would believe he has a pretty strong case, and would naturally expect him to be content of acquittal, especially as the prosecuting officers have nothing more than a few broken links of circumstantial evidence to bring against him. Despite these prospects of liberty he is a heart-broken man, and in order to relieve himself of a miserable life he is trying to end his career by starvation.

He learned in some manner of the Grand Jury's action on his case, and he at once put into practice the above method of cheating the gallows. He seems to think he is already convicted of the crime, and since Saturday morning Decemale has resolutely refused to taste food of any kind. The prison officials were nonplused at his peculiar behavior and could do nothing in the way of getting him to eat until Monday evening. It was noticed that he was becoming weaker every hour and Warden Haines determined to compel him to take some nourishment. With the assistance of Deputies Fallon and Liewald he was forced to swallow a jug of warm milk, though he resisted all he was able.

There is no doubt in the minds of the officials but that Decemale will commit suicide if given half an opportunity. He is now watched steadily to prevent him from repeating the attempt of the previous week, when he gashed the arteries of his arms and neck in a horrible manner and nearly bled to death. Guilty or innocent he is truly a pitiable case and one that is exciting the sympathy of all who have seen him. There is no real hope on his countenance, nothing but deep despair in every look. Arrested for a crime the penalty of which is death, without a real friend in the country and unable to understand the proceedings of which he is the central figure, this man deserves above all things a speedy and just trial.

On a Murderer's Tracks.

Yesterday's Standard tells of a determined effort that is being made by the friends of John and William Kester, two aged brothers, who were robbed and murdered at Seybertsville on October 16, 1880, to clear up the mystery. Immediately after the crime had been committed the county commissioners offered a reward of $500 for the arrest and conviction of the guilty persons. Detectives from the Pinkerton force together with the County Detective worked diligently upon certain parties, yet there was lacking sufficient evidence to convict. While everything had seemingly been forgotten and had likely been set down as a thing never to be found out, quiet and diligent work has been going on all these years, until strong evidence has been produced which is expected to warrant an arrest in the future.

Satisfied With the Ticket.

Reports from different portions of the county denoting satisfaction with the ticket nominated by the Democrats. The disappointed candidates state they will all work for its success. The party is thoroughly united and harmonious.

How to Keep Your Town Dull.

Buy your goods elsewhere and tell every person that there is no use in trying to buy at home, for the prices are too high and there is no assortment to select from. If some merchants seem to prosper, urge others to start in opposition, or do it yourself. When people talk of starting new enterprises put in all your "buts" and "ifs" and if any person plans to start a new business, try to turn him off at all the "disadvantages." Give no work to any local mechanics without getting prices elsewhere, and then give preference to the latter. In speaking of work done outside of town mention its good points, while of home work point out its defects. Speak discouragingly of the real estate market. If you have none say you would not buy any at a price; if you have, put it at a very high valuation on it, but offer it far below this, saying you are willing to make the sacrifice in order to dispose of it.

Snimble Little Maids.

A sensation was created at Pittston the other day by the arrest of two juvenile thieves. For some time past the merchants of that town have been missing money and goods from their stores. Detectives were employed to run down the thieves, but they were not successful until Saturday night, when two little girls, not yet in their teens, were arrested, charged with the many thefts. Their names are Nora Belchian, aged 11, and Bridget O'Brien, aged 9. A large quantity of the stolen goods were found at the homes of the girls. The young thieves would enter a store and while the proprietor and clerks were engaged they would tap the till and steal whatever goods they could lay their hands on and secrete them under their clothes. Towards the last they became very bold. They could not carry off enough plunder on their persons, so they secured a pushcart. This is what led to their arrest. They entered the office of a well-known physician and stole his instruments. A Brussels carpet was hanging on the line in the back yard. They took this, too. The stolen goods were placed in the pushcart and taken to the home of the O'Brien girl, where the larger portion of the booty was found. The parents of both girls were arrested.

DRUGGED AND ROBBED.

He Was a Stranger From Hazleton and the Natives Took Him In.

Sunday's Press tells how a business man of Hazleton, who is well known here, was worked on a recent trip to New York. Tommy Loughran of a sportive disposition and went to Hoboken, N. J., to witness the McAuliffe-Gibbons fight last Friday night. He got the lead on him at once and made his head swim. In the saloon another pal joined them. Then they took a walk around the block. Loughran knew that things were not just right, but he was a stranger in a strange land, a most undesirable predicament at midnight, and he went with them. They had proceeded only a short distance when the man who enticed him from Hoboken told him his collar didn't set right. Under the pretense of fixing it he snatched a $400 diamond pin and bolt, made their disappearance. Loughran grew dizzy and after a short struggle with the Pearl Street beer he fell into the gutter unconscious.

When he awoke he made his way to the Oak Street Police Station where he began telling his troubles. The officers in charge refused to be impressed with his tale of woe and locked him up on the charge of intoxication. Saturday morning he was taken to the Tombs for a hearing, and after hearing his story he was set on his liberty.

Mr. Loughran returned home on Tuesday from his trip. He denies all knowledge of the affair and states he did not lose any diamond. The public, however, would not expect him to own up that he was pulled in.

Chinese Gamblers.

A pretty young English girl appeared before Mayor Sutton of Wilkes-Barre on Monday morning, and stated that Charles Sing, her Chinese husband, had brought her to Wilkes-Barre from Scranton, and that shortly after his arrival had fallen in with a crowd of Chinese gamblers, and that she could not get him away. A warrant was issued and policemen went to the laundry of Yee Sing, on South Main Street. Down stairs, Yee was quiet, but on going up to a narrow little attic twelve Chinamen were found seated around a long table. When the police appeared they were eating rice with chop sticks, but in the center of the table were all the cards, chips, etc., necessary to play fan-tan. They were given a hearing and all swore that they never gambled. Mrs. Sing, however, swore positively that they were playing for money, and that her husband had lost as high as $50 in a night. They were fined $5 each. This was paid amid dire threats against Mrs. Sing.

Nothing Small About Them.

Among the findings of the Grand Jury are voluminous bills against the three Collectors Ferry and Fox. One bill of indictment against Ferry for receiving taxes not assessed contains 132 separate counts; another 90 counts in it. In addition to these, there are three other bills of indictment against him on the same charge. The omnibus indictment against Fox contains only 48 counts; but three other true bills are found in his case. George W. Phillips, county detective, is the prosecutor in both cases.—Speaker.

Money in Politics.

This does not refer to the hoodle so commonly heard of in connection with politics, but is a little bit of information for voters as to how much the law will allow the successful county candidates of the present campaign. The Additional Law Judge is the best offer on account of its length. It says $4,000 a year for ten years. The District Attorney will also get $4,000, but only for a term of three years. The Prothonotary is good for three years and an annual salary of $2,000. That is a nice paying position. The Clerk of the Courts receives $5,500 a year and is another of the three year sinecures. The Jury Commissioner is well paid for his work at the rate of $500 per annum and is elected for three years.

Coal Prices Advanced.

The coal trade on Tuesday put into effect the September circular prices, and all unfilled orders taken at the old figures (prior to September 1) will be cancelled. The presidents of several of the anthracite mining and carrying companies have issued peremptory instructions to their sales agents that the new prices must be enforced, and that no contracts will be accepted below the net published schedule of prices. The recent mandate of the presidents to their mining superintendents, ordering them to curtail the production of coal to prevent any further demoralization of the trade, and, if possible, improve the condition of affairs, has resulted satisfactorily, and already the benefit is seen in the improved tone of the market.

The total amount of anthracite coal sent to market for the week ending September 5, as reported by the several carrying companies, was 773,335 tons, compared with 665,088 tons in the corresponding week last year, an increase of 108,247 tons. The total amount of anthracite mined thus far in the year 1891 was 25,520,065 tons, compared with 22,632,772 tons for the same period last year, an increase of 2,887,293 tons.—Lehigh.

—The Republicans of Carbon County on Monday nominated D. G. Watkins, a school teacher of Nesquehoning, for Prothonotary; Captain Joseph S. Webb, of Lehighton, for Sheriff; Joel Ziegenfuss, of Jonestown, for County Commissioner and Dr. E. G. Bach, of Mauch Chunk, for Coroner. Their prospects of election are fair owing to the split among the Democrats.

Sunday's Game.

A club from Hazleton put up an uninteresting game at the park Sunday afternoon. Moyer, who was in the box for the visitors, had no control of the ball, sent eight men to base by his erratic delivery. Very little hitting was done on either side, the batters being unable to knock the ball outside the diamond. "Buck" Freeman, of Wilkes-Barre, threw for the home club, and but one clean hit was made off him up to the fifth inning, when the game was called on account of rain. Freeman is a favorite here and was given a hearty welcome by the audience. He looks good in a Freeland uniform and will probably be seen here again before the season ends. Following is the score:
