FREELAND, DECEMBER 31, 1891.

SENATOR FAULKNER, of West Virginia, thinks that the new State of Montana will give its electoral votes to the Democratic candidate for President next year. Justice requires that it should be so. Montana, and in fact all the other Northwestern States, were created out of territory acquired for the Union by Thomas Jefferson, the father of Democracy, and therefore owe a sort of natural allegiance to the Democratic party. Their votes will go against their own interests every time they are cast for other than Democratic candidates.

Certain protectionists find comfort in the election of Crisp as Speaker of the House, because he defeated Mills, the leader of tariff reform. They do not seem to a touch more weight to his declaration in his speech on taking the chair, when he said "that there must be no step backward in tariff reform," nor to his remarks on the McKinley bill in the Fifty-first Congress when he made the following observations: "No amount of juggling, no amount of sophistry, no amount of theory will prevent the people from understanding what this protective system really is; that its effect is to take from one class to give to another, to take from the mass to give to a class; and when they do understand it they will repudiate its authors."

CLEVELAND'S popularity in the West is shown by an advertisement in the Chicago Herald offering to bet $500 or any part of it that Grover will be the next President, barring no accidents. We have noticed its appearance several times and the G. O. P. people out there show no signs of questioning the advertiser's confidence. This would seem strange, too, considering all the talk in Republican organs about Hill's stock rising. But Republicans remember how often their papers have given them tips that were not straight, and they regard the gush about Hill as unreliable. We hope this daring Western Democrat, who is not only sure of Cleveland's nomination but also of his election, will find many takers and win their money.

In his recent message Harrison had much to say about gerrymandering States, but before he hears the last of the comments he will wish heartily that he had said nothing about it. Almost every prominent Democratic paper in the country has re-printed that part of his message in which he moralizes upon the iniquity of subverting the people's will by carving States up into shoe strings, and they indorse the sentiments therein expressed. In every instance, however, there has been appended to the indorsement of Harrison's words a reminder that it is his party which is getting the major part of the profit from the institution which he so stoutly condemns, and an assertion that the Democratic party wishes nothing more than the establishment of the rule that Presidents shall be chosen by direct votes of the people.

Among the claimants for seats in the House of Representatives is John B. Reynolds, who insists in pushing his contest against Congressman Shonk, of this district. Reynolds was defeated by 1484 votes and acknowledges his opponent's majority, but bases his claim to figure as a national law-maker upon the plea that Shonk spent $9550, some of which was used in bribing voters. Contested election cases in the last Congress were disposed of by the most partisan methods that ever disgraced the records of that body, but Reynolds should not presume that the overwhelming Democratic majority in the present House will follow the course pursued by its Republican predecessors. There is a musty flavor about Shonk's election and no one doubts but that some of the money was put where it did the most good, yet Reynolds will have an immense contract to prove his assertions of bribery.

Is the annual election of officers at the Union League of Philadelphia the other day voting was carried on as laid down by Pennsylvania's new ballot reform law. This organization is composed of the leading Republican politicians of the city, men who are supposed to be in every way well-qualified to vote correctly under a method which several of them helped to make. When the votes were counted it was found that over four per cent were illegal, being improperly marked or having such defects as to cause them to be thrown out. Printed instructions accompanied the tickets used by the voters, and the numerous errors made by such an intelligent body naturally caused people to doubt the success of this misnamed reform, which goes into effect after March 1, 1892. When it is remembered that a large percentage of the voters of Pennsylvania are either illiterate or know so little about the Baker bill it is certain that more than four per cent of the ballots cast at the general elections will be illegal. Had the Legislature passed the bill for the genuine Australian system, instead of a bungled party measure, voting would be simplified and understood by all.

Great Souvenir Edition.

The Philadelphia Record to-morrow will inaugurate the new year with a great souvenir edition of forty-two pages. In order to accomplish this task its manager has been scouring the State this week for "rat" printers, having looked out the old force on the 15th inst. Hazleton and Wilkes-Barre were applied to without success, and the scabs are working double time to fill up for the big issue.

It is a pity that the Record, which has always been regarded by workingmen as their champion, should allow itself to be classed with the opponents of organized labor. The souvenir edition will be great, as it has a well-trained staff of writers, but its brilliancy will be dimmed by the imprints of "rats."

Same Old Story.

The anthracite coal trade continues in the same inactive condition heretofore reported. It is now between seasons, and from this time until spring the condition of activity of the coal markets will be regulated by the weather.

The total amount of anthracite coal sent to market for the week ending December 19, as reported by the several carrying companies, was 836,715 tons, a comparison with 728,797 tons in the corresponding week last year, an increase of 108,008 tons. The total amount of anthracite mined thus far in the year 1891 was 39,188,752 tons, compared with 34,902,807 tons for the same period last year, an increase of 4,285,885 tons.—Ledger.

Role in the Patrol Wagon.

A Freeland Polander, who spent Sunday in Mahanoy City, made himself obnoxious to the citizens of that quiet town, according to the Mahanoy Record.

He was arrested and not caring about the success of this misnamed reform, which goes into effect after March 1, 1892. When it is remembered that a large percentage of the voters of Pennsylvania are either illiterate or know so little about the Baker bill it is certain that more than four per cent of the ballots cast at the general elections will be illegal. Had the Legislature passed the bill for the genuine Australian system, instead of a bungled party measure, voting would be simplified and understood by all.

Another Cooking Main.

Another cooking main of five battles for $20 took place on Saturday evening. It was the North and South Sides against Hazleton, and the city men failed to win a battle, although they had a well-known Philadelphia in charge of their birds.

A Pittsburg heeler took care of the other side. Freeland and Drifton people won heavily.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE

The Most Successful Remedy ever discovered, as it is certain in its effects and does not alter. Headache, indigestion, etc.

DR. B. J. KENDALL, Proprietor, 117 N. 2d St., Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27, '90.

Gentle—I would like to make known to those who are almost hopeless of the Spavin Cure. I have used it for three years when I commenced to use your Kendall's Spavin Cure. I used ten bottles on the horse and have worked him for three years since and he is now sound.
