Before the cause of consumption was known (that was only a few years ago) we did not know how Scott's Emulsion of cod-liver oil did so much good in consumption and in the conditions that lead to consumption.

The explanation is interesting. We send it free in a book on CAREFUL LIVING.

GILBERT TOMPKINS, of the Souther Farm, San Leandro, California, has his own views on training trotters, and, while he does not claim to be able to put own views ou training trotters, and, while he does not claim to be able to put a horse in shape to go into a long drawn out contest of heats, yet he avers that he can accomplish a great deal by his system and leave very little work to be done on the race track. Mr. Tompkins swims his horses in a hugh tank. The tank is a simple affair, being nothing more than a cemented pit 90 feet long, 20 feet wide, and 8 feet deep, with corrugated inclines at each end, down which the horses walk into the water. Thirty yards away from the tank is a 10-horse power boiler, which furnishes steam for the tank. The steam is forced into the water through a two-inch pipe, and the water is kept at a little below blood heat. To make the bath more perfect and to further insure against colds, the water is strongly impregnated with salt, about a ton and a half being emptied into the pit. There are provisions for emptying and filling the pit with fresh water whenever necessary. At the California farm the horse is contrylled by two men, one on either side, with a line attached to the bridle. Round after round of the tank is made, the trainer using his discretion as to the amount of work each animal requires. Four or five laps are enough to make a horse blow as though he had jogged a mills. When the swim is over rubbers cool the horse out, thoroughly using the same methods as are employed when the work is done over the dirt track.

A Los Angeles (Cal.) physician says that the most trying time in all his experience was during the past five weeks, r when he stood hopelessly by and saw a poor ranchman near Puente die by inches of what is known as progressive paralysis. The patient was first taken in one big toe. In a short time the limb was paralyzed to the knee. Two physicians were called, and all the known remedies were applied to stay the progress of the deadening attack, but in vain. Hour by shour death moved on its victim. The patient was propped up in an arm chair and fully realized his condition. He sawaited the end with the coolness and bravery of a martyr. As the line of death crept nearer and nearer his heart, he made calculations as to how much longer he could live. He said; "Now it has reached the body," indicating the exception of the progress of the while he said: "It has reached the bottom of my lungs." Another short wait and he said faintly; "It has touched my heart," and he fell over dead.

Dr. Schweinfurth, of the National Museum of Egyptian Antiquities at Bulak, has been studying the ancient flora of the Nile Valley by means of specimens found in mummy cases from the catacombs and sepulchral monuments which are so thickly strewn throughout "Egypt, the land of the dead." The large coliection does not show a single example of a plant or vegetable which does not flourish on the banks of the Nile to-day just as it did 5,000 years ago, nor does the most minute examination show the seast difference in the flora of to-day and that which grew the summer the first Pharaoh was a boy, now nearly fifty centuries since. Some of these ancient plants have been so well preserved, that now, after a lapse of 5,000 years, the colors are plainly discernible; the red of the poppy, the blue of the larkspur and the reddish brown of the saffron 6-did the toppy, the blue of the larkspur and the reddish brown of the saffron 6-did the poppy, the blue of the larkspur and the reddish brown of the saffron 6-did flouring the marks which prove that they were sable up 2,000 years before the opening of our era. In one tomb of the fifteenth dynasty (3000 years B. C.) some perfect heads of barley were found. Dr. Schweinfurth says that there is no truth in the stories that "mmmy" wheat and barley have been made to grow. He says that the great heat to which they were subjected at the time of embalming destroyed the germ.

The Antiquity of Kid Gloves.

The Antiquity of Kid Gloves.

An observant person rode up town in an elevated car last Sunday evening, between 9 and 10 o'clock, called the attention of a fellow passenger to the fact that every man and women in the crowded car, with two exceptions, wore kid gloves, or gloves that at least seemed to be made of kid. The observant person had noticed the fact while walking slowly from the front to the rear of the car. He then made a remark that was curious in itself and was also appropriate to Sunday, as it contained a quotation from the Bible: "You will see," he said, "by looking into the Book of Genesis, that the habit of wearing kid gloves can be traced to extreme antiquity, even as far back as the age of the partirersh, the times of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. In the 16th verse of the 27th chapter of Genesis we are told how, upon one memorable occasion, Isaac's wife fixed up the clothes of the kids of the goats, or, in other words, kid gloves. Isaac must have looked like a dude when he walked out wearing the kids which his mother had surreptitiously procured for him, and it was those very kids that enabled him to deceive his aged father and defraud his elder brother. — [New York Sun.]

Could not bear to have any one walk across the room or make any noise of any kind. Was also troubled with Female Weakness and was completely need up. I had doctored with the best Physicians I could get, but grew worse all the time. Having read of your Remedies I at last made up my mind to try them. I had very little fauth for I thought, perhaps, they were no better than lots of others that I had used before without any benefit. But thanks be to God and also to you, I tried them and found it to my benefit. I only took two bottles of your Seamp-Root and one of Female Remedy and used one bottle of your U. & O. An ointment and was completely cured.

Female Remedy and used one bottle of your U. & O. An ointment and was completely cured.

It is now over one year since I was troubled and yet I have not felt a single touch or return of the old complaints. I think I was better before I had taken one-half of the first bottle. I now believe and have more faith in you than any other doctor on earth.

If this will be of any benefit to you or others, you can publish it and if need be I can prove it by more than treenty good and reliable people in this vicinity.

God bless you and yours, and with great respect, Mrs. Leroy G. Coville. [The preceding testimonal was set up in this office from the original letter written by Mrs. Coville. Eurorus or Union.]
