A TRIP TO WILDWOOD.

THE JERSEY RESORT WRITTEN UP BY A VISITOR.

For a Few Days of Delightful Pleasure Try the Beautiful and Healthy Little Town by the Seaside, in Which a Number of Freeland People Are Interested.

On Wednesday morning, June 22, Mr. Birkbeck of Freeland, Mr. Klinger and the writer of Sandy Run, together with our families boarded the train for Wildwood, N. J. The train was as far as Philadelphia, although the scenery along the route was old to us, was not a tedious one by any means, as the weather was pleasantly cool and the whole party enjoyed this part of the trip very much. We arrived in Philadelphia at one o'clock and having several hours to spare before taking the train for Wildwood, the ladies spent this time in inspecting the stores on Market and Eighth streets. Of course the pretty things they saw were very tempting and, as is quite natural, to see was to purchase.

Tommy and I, seeing nothing to tempt or interest us particularly, put in the time doing nothing but keeping up the rear end of the procession. We might have gone out and "seen a man," but the ladies assured us that they "would be only five or ten minutes." So, taking their word for it, we remained only to reap the reward of victims of misplaced confidence, for the five or ten minutes grew into hours and by the time they got through it was time to start for Camden, where we were to take the train for the seaside.

We left Camden at 4.15 P. M., via the West Jersey Railroad, and arrived at Wildwood at 6.30, making the run of seventy-four miles in two hours and fifteen minutes. The scenery along this route was new to my party, and when we struck the ocean the children's enthusiasm knew no bounds.

At Wildwood we stopped at Mr. Birkbeck's cottage "Silver Dean," a very pretty one facing the ocean, and only about two hundred yards from the beach. It is kept by Mrs. C. M. Edgar, of Philadelphia, who cordially welcomed us and at once made us feel perfectly at home. Being the first arrivals at her house we had everything our own way, and she took every precaution to make it pleasant for us. After supper all took a walk down to the beach. Unfortunately little or no breeze was stirring at this time, so after enjoying a look at the "sea waves" for awhile the ladies returned to the cottage while we started out to see the town and arrange a programme for the morrow.

Next day we took a swim in the ocean, and while paddling about in the waves the ladies saw in their lives. Now that kind of talk was pretty rough on us, as we rather prided ourselves on our good looks, but we laid the blame to the bathing suits and accepted the compliment with as good grace as was possible under the circumstances.

In the afternoon we took a carriage and drove up to Amlessex and on to the beach Wildwood. The ride along the beach was delightful and beneficial. This beach furnishes an elegant driving course, being as solid and smooth as a floor; in fact so firm that the wheels of the carriage scarcely made a dent in the sand. There was an off breeze, chuck-saw, (a little saltier however) blowing from the ocean, which was indeed very invigorating.

Coming home we drove through the woods, stopping at Wildwood park. This is a lovely grove of holly, cedar, white oak and pine trees, together with other forms of vegetation somewhat similar to what we have here in the mountains, such as grape vines, buckberry bushes, sassafras trees, honeysuckles and morning glories and I noticed the ground was completely covered with a peculiar kind of evergreen, something like our trailing arbutus, and which produces a white flower, very fragrant. The magnolia tree, which you would hardly expect to find anywhere but in the Southern states, flourishes here in all its beauty, the flowers filling the air with their sweet perfume.

The holly tree is perhaps the most interesting to be found there. I am not acquainted with its history, but it is certainly the most peculiar tree I ever saw. One of its characteristics appears to be that of twisting itself into all manner of inconceivable shapes. It seems as full of tricks as a monkey, and if your imagination is lively enough you can find lots of amusement naming the different forms which its branches assume. Such for instance as horse collars, horse shoes, swords, hearts, etc. I noticed several growing together from one stump and connecting about six feet from the ground by a ligament. These are called the "Siamese twins" and the "Chinese twins." It would be impossible to trace the branches. The cedars are very beautiful trees, most of them being covered with a growth of fine moss, making them both attractive and pleasing to the eye.

There is also in the park a lake of fresh water, upon which you may enjoy boating to your heart's content. It is only two or three feet deep, therefore perfectly safe for children. The grounds are fitted up with every possible convenience and is a pleasure grove in every sense of the word. Here you can take your choice—if you don't like the ocean you can take to the woods. They are now cutting a channel from the lake to the crabbing grounds, which are about a half-mile from the park, so those visiting the grounds may reach them in boats instead of having to walk. Crabbing is splendid fun—the little fellows are easily caught if you know how, but I assure you they are mighty cute and you have to watch them lest they prove to be like the "Irishman's flea."

Wildwood is without doubt one of the most beautiful, cleanly and healthful resorts along the Atlantic coast today. At present there are about fifty cottages erected and more under contract. It is only eight miles from Cape May, which latter place can be reached easily by boat or train. The beach at Wildwood is the finest and safest I ever struck. You may safely go out a couple of hundred yards or more and find that the water is only up to your armpits. There is a pier reaching far out into the ocean where you can get the full benefit of the sea breeze at any time. A large pavilion seating thousands of persons is erected along the beach.

The effect of the salt and mountain air combined was distinctly felt by all before we were there very long, and we discovered that our appetites were improving to such an extent that some of the party became somewhat alarmed for fear the supply of grub at "Silver Dean" would run short, but our landlady was equal to the occasion and pulled us through very nicely, supplying every want of the inner man. Three square meals were ready for us every day, and, strange to say, we were always ready for the meals.

We were much benefited by our short stay at that place, and to any one who desires to secure all the advantages of a seaside resort at a nominal cost I would recommend Wildwood. P. P.

HIGHLAND DOTS.

Miss Sarah Wackley spent a few days among friends in Lattimer last week.

Miss Annie Canty visited friends in Alden last week.

Not many years ago this was a desirable place to live. Now the work is growing scarce, and slowly but surely the houses are vacated. Doors and windows are boarded up and this gives the town a desolate appearance.

Some of the young men here are very uneasy and would like to know the correspondent. Jack, we will keep an eye on you.

On Thursday James Quinn had his foot badly hurt by a loaded car running over it at No. 2 slope.

The stripping here will not be so extensive as was at first supposed. What has been stripped will be taken to the breaker under ground. The surface and rock is so thick that the company will soon abandon it.

DEATHS.

SALMON.—At Drifton, July 2, Ray Franklin, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Salmon, aged 3 years, 10 months and 2 days. Funeral Tuesday afternoon. Services at the house. Interment at Freeland cemetery. Bachman.

FREELAND'S GREAT DAY.

THE FOURTH TO BE CELEBRATED AS IT NEVER WAS BEFORE.

Grand Parade and Demonstration Under the Auspices of Camp 147, P. O. S. of A.—Flag-Raising Anniversary—Picnics, Base Ball, Etc.

Early this morning the business men and citizens of Freeland were busily engaged in putting the finishing touches to the handsome decorations with which their buildings are covered. From all indications July 4, 1892, will be long remembered by the people here as one of the greatest days the town has ever seen. The grand parade to take place this afternoon, under the auspices of Camp 147, P. O. S. of A., will be the most prominent feature of the day.

Handsome arches, the first ever erected here, were placed in position at Centre and Front and Centre and Main streets. The decorations will be completed this morning and will add considerably to the appearance of the town.

The Points, not to be outdone by the borough, started shortly after twelve o'clock last night, and two more arches were put up on Centre between South and Carbon streets.

Officers Kennedy, McLaughlin and Gallagher patrolled the town until six o'clock this morning to protect the decorations and arches, and to guard against any danger of fire that might arise from fireworks. The streets were filled all night but no trouble of any kind was experienced.

The parade will be divided into four divisions and will be ready to move at 2 P. M. Following is the order of formation, as revised this morning:

Afraid of the Dams.

The feeling of insecurity which hovers over several Schuylkill towns has induced the borough councils of St. Clair, Port Carbon, Palo Alto and Schuylkill Haven, all of which would lose heavily should any of the Pottsville Water Company's dams burst, to appoint committees to meet next Wednesday to formulate plans for their protection from any danger from this source in the future. They demand the drawing off of ten feet of water from the Moree dam, the largest of the four, covering over ninety-three acres, with its attendant immense body of water. The company contends, however, that on account of its shallowness and immense breast, that it would be impossible for it to give way.

Passenger Service on the D. S. & S.

On Friday morning the first regular passenger train was run over the Delaware, Susquehanna and Schuylkill Railroad from Drifton to Shepton. This move of the company is more in keeping with the expectations of the public, and goes to show that the new road is destined to be something greater than a mere coal branch of the Reading system.

The train is in charge of Conductor Joe Smith, and twenty-eight passengers were carried the first day. The service and accommodations are not yet what the officials intend making them, but after the road secures its own passenger cars it will probably develop the trade along the line much better than at present. The proposed extension to Luzerne would give the road a great boom around here, especially if Sunday trains were run at convenient hours from Hazleton and the South Side. Following is the time table of the passenger service:

EASTWARD.		WESTWARD.

Murdered at Lattimer.

Coal and Iron Policeman Hampton and Cook were here this morning trying to trace an Italian named Lawrence Ricci, who was murdered at Lattimer yesterday. The trouble occurred at a christening last night, which ended in a general fight among the guests. Ricci began shooting and after failing to hit Pappan with three shots he pulled a stiletto and ripped open his victim, who died shortly after. In company with his three brothers, aged 15 and 24 years, he left Lattimer, but the officers have secured word in every direction to have him arrested. Policeman Hampton describes the murderer as a man about 30 years old, light mustache, scar on forehead, wore striped pants and soft hat. Deputy Coroner Buckley left this morning for Lattimer to hand in a request on Pappan.

Burned by Powder.

A number of young boys in the upper end of town purchased five cents' worth of gunpowder on Saturday afternoon for use in a small cannon, which they had procured to celebrate the Fourth. While lighting the cannon one of them carelessly dropped a piece of "punk" into the can containing the powder. It exploded instantly, severely burning James O'Donnell, son of Hugh O'Donnell, and Maurice Boyle, son of Hugh Boyle, and a few other little fellows were touched up by the blaze. The two named were taken to their homes on Walnut street, and after being examined by physicians were removed to Hazleton hospital. Their injuries, while not serious, are very painful.

Meeting of Miners.

The mass meeting of the Amalgamated Association of Miners and Mine Laborers, which was to be held at Shamokin on Saturday evening, has been postponed until July 9. The inability of the speakers selected for the rally to attend is assigned as the cause for a change in the date. There is a strong effort being made to organize the miners. There is a wide difference of opinion as to what course the men will pursue. Some are in favor of forming a secret organization, while others seem to favor an open union, something similar to the old W. B. A. The leaders do not favor this, and seem to be afraid to identify themselves with the cause.

County Conventions.

The Newsdealer says the Democratic county convention will probably be held some time in August. Probably either the 19th or 23d of that month will be the date set. The standing committee will meet this week, agree upon the date and issue the call. An early date will be necessary as under the new ballot law the nominations for office will have to be certified to the secretary of the commonwealth sixty days before election, so as to allow a sufficient time for the printing of the tickets. The Republicans meet at Wilkes-Barre on Wednesday to decide upon a date for their convention.

Lively Time at a Pay Office.

At the Jeddo pay office on Thursday there was a lively time caused by a Hungarian attempting to draw another's pay under an assumed name. He was caught in the act by Policeman Seiwell, who arrested him. Another Hungarian protested against the arrest, as unjust, and Seiwell tried to arrest him also, but the Hun escaped. Seiwell, using his revolver without effect. The Hun taken before Squire Weiss and given a hearing. The next morning the man who escaped was arrested, brought before the squire, where he was tried and fined the full extent of the law.

Mine Examinations.

The examination of candidates for certificates of qualification as mine foremen will take place July 8 and 9, in the Pine street school building, Hazleton. The board consists of Hon. E. B. Cox, operator; John W. Scott, of Hazleton, miner; Michael Mulligan, Upper Lehigh, miner; and Mine Inspector John M. Lewis, of Hazleton.
