CANDIDATES MAKING READY FOR TOMORROW'S FIGHT.

Looks as if There Would be Several Close Contests for Nominations—Comments from Other Papers—Republicans to Meet Next Monday.

The Democratic convention of this county will be held to-morrow at Music Hall, Wilkes-Barre. There is no telling yet how the ticket will look. For congress it is conceded that McGinty has the inside track of Billy Hines, and the little fighting senator will have to return to his law practice, unless he manages to receive the nomination for his old office. This, however, is not likely to happen, although there is some kind of a scheme on foot which looks as though that result might be brought about. The senatorial convention is always held at 10 A. M., just before the big fight opens, and it was called for that hour this year, but the time has since been changed to 7 P. M.

This would compel all the lower end and several of the upper end delegates to remain there over night or miss the convention. It is alleged the change was made in order to give Hines a chance at the senatorial plum if he failed to defeat McGinty, but a very large kick was started on Saturday and unless the convention is called again to meet at the original hour there will be two conventions and probably two candidates. J. Ridgway Wright, present chairman of the county committee, will get the nomination if all the delegates are in attendance at the meeting.

The battle between English and Walters for sheriff will be a hot one. The Newsleader is fighting English hard, and will probably blot if he and Hines are nominated. There are other candidates, but the interest is centered on the two named.

For recorder of deeds George W. Drumheller of Scranton township, and Michael C. Russell, of Edinburgville, are in the lead. The nomination, however, will depend on the section from which the candidate for sheriff will come. If English is chosen Russell will drop out of the race, and should Walters win Drumheller will stand no chance.

It is likely the Republicans will nominate Geo. H. Troutman, of Hazleton, as their candidate for senator. Wright is his opponent they will work the new county issue in the lower end and expect to make a clean sweep upon that question. They may strike a snag, however, on the North Side, as the people here are not yet dead in love with Hazleton county. The opposition here is not so strong for a few years ago, but the voters, both Democrats and Republicans, are becoming tired of the everlasting bossing they get from Hazleton at every election. In looking over the field the Leader sizes it up about correctly in the following:

If Troutman should be the nominee, as at this writing is likely, he will be supported on the new county issue by some Hazleton and Hazle county Democrats, but he will on the same issue lose many Republican votes in White Haven, the farming districts and part of Foster. The new county project is not as popular as it used to be in the lower end. The making of Hazleton a city has hurt it even with many Hazletonians, who feel now that when they voted for that change they virtually "bought a pig in a poke," and who, with their recent experience, would not vote that way again. Besides there is no love lost between Troutman and the Kline faction, which is strong enough to make it unsafe to sneeze at it.

The Republican will elect delegates on Saturday evening to the legislative convention to be held next Monday at Union Hall, Hazleton. Hon. William R. Jeffrey will be chosen unanimously, and all the delegates need to do is to go through the mere formality of a nomination. As the party is united throughout the district Jeffrey will not have any disaffection to contend with, and will go before the people on the record he made at the last session.

Colonel P. F. Lynch was interviewed the other day by a reporter of the Wilkes-Barre Times, and here is what he is reported to have said. The reporter asked questions and received answers as follows:

"Colonel, there's a rumor afloat that the Lynches and Lenahans have combined in the interest of Hines. What do you know about it?"

"You may put it down as dead certain that there's one Lynch that isn't in any such combine, and he stands before you," and the colonel stretched himself up at full length.

"You still believe that McGinty has the inside track for the congress nomination?" said the scribe.

"I don't conjecture anything about it. I know it. And I know another thing too. Shonk will be the man chosen on the other side," and the colonel looked as if he meant what he said.

"But Shonk's closest friends all say that such a thing is impossible. That George won't have it under any consideration."

"That's all right. But I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll wager you a dollar or a hundred dollars that Shonk is the next Republican candidate for congress." As the scribe was not in betting mood he didn't accept.

Leaving this gentleman the reporter hunted up another, a sharp-witted politician, who is noted for his conspicuous ability to solve political problems.

"Who is likely to secure the Republican nomination for congress?" was asked.

"George Washington Shonk. I know they say he is not a candidate. But my dear sir, don't you see into the little scheme? It wouldn't do for George to declare himself a candidate. That would lead to his being overhauled everywhere by clamorous beggars who would give him no rest. Again, it would also give his enemies in his own party the opportunity of combining against him. When the convention gets together Shonk's name will be suddenly sprung, the delegates will know what that means, and the whole gang will go with a rush to George. That's the programme and you see isn't carried out to the letter," and the gentleman winked significantly.

FOR THE DEBATE.

Two Literary Societies Will Discuss the Merits of a Protective Tariff.

At the last meeting of the Catholic Young Men's Literary Institute the following members were selected to represent it in the debate at Scranton with the Green Ridge Society: Jas. F. Sweeney, A. M. McNulty, Jas. A. O'Donnell, John D. Herron, Daniel Marley and Charles Gallagher. The date of the debate will be selected by the Lackawanna society, and will be some time in September or October. The question to be discussed is: "Resolved, That a protective tariff is in line with national progress, advances the best interest of the citizen, and is preservative of the harmony that should exist among nations."

The resolution is one that now commands national interest, and as the Free-land society has chosen the negative side of the subject it will be handled in an able manner. The debaters are preparing themselves for the contest by reading the best literature of both sides of the question. There are several free traders among the members of the society, and when they back up their views with a firm belief that they are right, their arguments are bound to convince the judges that the resolution is not in keeping with modern statesmanship.

It is very probable that a prize of some kind, besides the glory of a victory, will be added to the contest. A silver cup has been spoken of, but it is not finally decided. Rev. P. J. McManus has, and the Lackawanna society in charge, and the Free-land society is receiving instructions from Rev. F. P. McNally. A friendly rivalry exists between the two organizations and their tutors, and the whole Scranton diocese is becoming interested in the approaching battle.

Some time in November a drama, "Waiting for the Verdict" will be produced at the opera house by the members, assisted by several young ladies of Free-land and Drifton. There are eighteen characters in the cast, and after the debate is settled the play will be taken up and studied.

Swindling the Undertakers.

A cunning swindler has been operating in this region for several days, but has not yet arrived in Free-land. His hobby is to work the undertakers. The fellow called at Undertaker Klein in Wilkes-Barre, and after relating a tale of woe, ordered sent to Bear Creek a coffin in which to bury his wife. In payment he gave Klein, whose bill amounted to $30, a check on F. V. Rockefeller & Co., for $32.10, receiving the difference in cash. When Klein presented the check at the bank, the fellow had no account in the bank. A like trick was tried on a White Haven undertaker, but failed although the goods ordered, a coffin and a half-dozen chairs, were taken as far as the station, where the undertaker was told of the fruitless trip made by him the day previous.

Henry C. Melber, an undertaker in Mauch Chunk, was also swindled. The stranger said his name was R. D. Ritter and that he resided at Lehigh Tannery. With tears in his eyes he said his wife had been suddenly stricken with heart disease and was now lying a corpse at the Tannery. Ritter arranged for the coffin and purchased half-dozen chairs for the undertaker. He then asked for his bill, which amounted to $36. Ritter produced a check for $42.18. It was drawn by D. W. Miller on the Second National Bank, of Wilkes-Barre, and indorsed by R. D. Ritter. The undertaker gave the difference, $6.18, in cash to his customer and the latter departed. Melber proceeded to the Tannery with the coffin and upon arrival there was informed that no one was dead and that no such person as Ritter lived there.

Work for Judges and Jurors.

Commenting on the coming criminal court the Wilkes-Barre Record says: "The summer vacation practically ends on September 6, when the grand jury meets. There are nearly 300 new cases to come before that body. When to these are added the cases left over from last court it will be seen that the district attorney and his assistants will have to hustle if they expect to clear the dock at the September session. The great majority of these cases are of a trivial nature, but there are the usual number of homicide cases. Carmen Ducci will be tried for killing Andro Anko at Tomhicken; John Fisher for shooting John Washington dead in Ashley, and Jacob Gormer, of Nanticoke, for the murder of Mike Mofrey, who was caught stealing fruit in his orchard. These, with the hundreds of lesser cases, will make September a busy month in court."

Opening the Ball Season.

Division 19, A. O. H., expects to have, on September 23, the largest ball ever held at the opera house. The committee in charge has received assurances from the Hazleton and Eckley divisions that the members of these branches will all attend, and several of the county officers of the order have promised to be there. The division has 140 members, and is composed almost entirely of young men who are familiar with running successful balls. The fact that this is the first ball of the season will also induce many to attend.

Quigley Brothers Return.

Robert and George Quigley, of Parsons, the well-known dancers and comedians, have returned home to spend several weeks. They came direct from Denver, and have been playing engagements at all the principal cities along the Pacific slope and in the West. They have not been home for nearly two years. —Newsleader.

JONES WON THE FIGHT.

AWARDED TO "STRONG BOY" BY THE REFEREE.

Three Good Rounds Were Fought When Landmesser Claimed a Foul—It Was Not Allowed and He Refused to Continue the Battle.

Nearly 300 people paid one dollar each to witness the fight between William Jones, of Free-land, and Lewis Landmesser, of West Hazleton, at the opera house on Saturday evening. The sporting fraternity of the coal regions was well represented, Hazleton, Wilkes-Barre, Mt. Carmel and Shenandoah sending large delegations. Early in the evening the crowds began gathering in large numbers, and by 8 o'clock the streets were filled. Everybody was undecided as to what the result would be, and many believed the whole affair to be a "fake." Wilkes-Barre and Free-land sports favored Jones, while Upper Lehigh and Hazleton backed Landmesser, and although each side had lots of money there was not nearly as much bet as was expected. At 9 o'clock the opera house was opened, and for two hours the people gathered slowly. The majority of the spectators were strangers here, as the people of town firmly believed there was a "sell" and refused to pay the dollar admission.

Promptly at 11 o'clock Billy Evans, of Hazleton, appeared on the stage with the principles, whom he introduced. John Schaffer, of Hazleton, acted as second for Landmesser, and Conrad Saur, of the same place, was bottle holder. Billy Korman, of Bethlehem, was second for Jones, and John Houston, of Free-land, bottle holder. David E. Davis, of Wilkes-Barre, was referee, and Ed. Mechin, of Wilkes-Barre, was time-keeper. Four ounce gloves were used and Marquis of Queensbury rules governed the contest. After the introduction both men stepped to the centre of the ring on the stage. Jones weighed 155 pounds, and his opponent was four pounds heavier. Both men seemed to be in the best of condition, but the Free-land man, being four inches taller, made the finest appearance. Time was called and the first round opened rather tamely. Neither wished to force the fighting until they studied one another's little habits. A few blows were given and returned, after which they clinched. Neither seemed any the worse when the three minutes were up. Jones, however, appeared nervous, and cast several glances toward the crowd, as if he expected an attack from that quarter.

Thirty seconds of a rest were given and the second round began with more vigor. In a short time the audience was satisfied that there was no fake in the fight. The men came together several times in quick succession, and while breaking away Landmesser got one in on Jones' ribs which sent "Strong Boy" to the floor on his hands. He failed to follow up the advantage, and seemed weakened considerably from the exertion, while Jones appeared as fresh as at the start.

The third opened by Landmesser going down, but he was up again in a moment. The shock, however, had dazed him, and he sparred a short time for a while. Seeing an opening he made for Jones' neck, but missed, and was caught on the return with Jones' left and immediately after with a back-handed blow from the right. Landmesser dropped to the floor and made a slow effort to arise. He had reached his feet, but the hands still were on the floor, while the time-keeper was counting the ten seconds and Jones was waiting over him. One hand left the floor and as the other was coming up Jones gave him two more. Time was called, and Landmesser claimed the fight on a foul, alleging that his right hand was not off the floor when he was struck.

The claim was not allowed, and when time was called for the fourth round Landmesser refused to continue, and the referee awarded the fight, including the $200 stakes and the gate money, to "Strong Boy."

The audience clamored for more fight, but the affair was over, and no more of the principals was seen that night.

Refused to Sell.

When the battle was over a story leaked out that some of Jones' backers went to him early in the evening and demanded that he throw the fight to Landmesser. The latter, however, had nothing to do with this bargain, and Jones also refused to enter any such game. It is said that those who wanted him to sell had placed all their money on the Hazleton man, after drawing Jones into the fight. After Jones refusing repeatedly to make the contest a "fake" he came on the stage, and this was the cause of his nervousness in the first round.

Before the fight took place he was deserted by his strongest backers because he refused to sell, and with the public suspecting him of intending to do that very thing, he felt as if he did not have a friend in the town. When the above story got in circulation, and was confirmed by subsequent events, the sympathy of the public underwent a change.

The Fighters Meet Again.

Lewis Landmesser felt sore at the result of the contest, and all day yesterday was trying to meet Jones to arrange another match. At 5:30 o'clock the two men met again on Centre street, between South and Main. A short argument brought on hot words, and the two could interfere. Jones struck Landmesser a terrific blow on the mouth, knocking him to the middle of the street. Friends prevented any further public exhibition of this kind, and both were hurried off in different directions.

Jones Swears Out a Warrant.

At 6 o'clock "Strong Boy" swore out a warrant against James and William Oliver, of Highland, charging them with threatening to kill him on Saturday night. The warrant was given to Officer McLaughlin, who brought them before Squire Buckley. The accused waived a hearing and were placed under $200 bail each for their appearance at court; Thomas Elliott becoming their bondsman. This ended the fight so far, and up to 7 o'clock last night the twenty-four hours preceding constituted one of the most exciting days Free-land has seen for a long time.

FIVE POINTS DIVIDED.

Two Polling Places in the Woodside District—Their Boundaries.

The commissioners appointed by the court to divide the Woodside election district into two or more polling places met at Condy O. Boyle's on Saturday morning. After discussing the matter they walked over the territory, and finally decided to make two districts. The North Woodside district comprises all the territory of the present district north of Luzerne street, from the western boundary to Adams street, including Birvanton, with the polling place at Squire Johnson's office, Centre street.

The South Woodside district comprises all that portion of the old district south of Luzerne street, from the western boundary to Adams street, and the southern boundary of the present district, with the polling place at Woodside school house. This division was made in order to give all the voters an opportunity to vote at the next election, and after that it is likely that another adjustment of boundaries will take place, as all of the North Woodside is coming into the borough. By the time of the spring election of 1893 these parts will be included in the borough, which must then be divided into wards. The petition for annexation will be presented to the grand jury on Tuesday next.

Shamokin's Slasher.

Thomas Blake became jealous because his mother gave his brother William permission to use the family carriage and struck his mother, pulled a knife on William, who escaped, and then leaped on his father and cut him in the head. Robert Harker, his brother-in-law, went to the rescue, but was cut six times. Running up the street Blake slashed William Snyder, cutting his left arm. He then barred himself in a room, where the police captured him after a lively struggle, beating him insensible with clubs. His father and Snyder are not fatally injured, but Harker will probably die, the knife having entered near the kidneys.

He Can't Run the Borough.

Julius Crossit a Poleander, who is in the habit of running things, and suit his fancy at Birvanton, came down into the borough at 10 o'clock last night and went to the residence of Charles Boczkowski, where he began abusing every one that came in sight. Mr. Boczkowski stood it for a while, then put him out, when he began a charge on the house with rocks. The police were sent out, and in a short time they captured Crossit, who had another load of rocks on hand to charge again. He was taken before the burgess for a hearing, and being unable to meet the fine imposed was sent to the cooler for five days.

Found Dead in the Woods.

While a number of boys were picking berries in the woods between Trescow and Silver Brook on Friday afternoon they came upon the dead body of a man. The corpse was badly decomposed and had been lying there at least five or six days. An examination revealed the fact that he had been murdered and robbed. The skull was crushed with a large stone found near him, and in the left cheek was a bullet hole. The stomach was horribly ripped up, as if cut by a knife and presented a sickening appearance. His pockets were empty. The coroner of Schuylkill county was notified.

The residence of James Jamison, of Hazleton, was entered by thieves early Friday morning, who secured $300 in cash. The $300 was hidden between the covering and mattress of a bed in an unoccupied room. Mr. Jamison frightened the robbers and they made a dash for the street, leaving behind a bag containing silverware.
