Career-Tennyson's Life Described. LosDoN, Oct. 6.—Lord Tennyson, the poet laureate of England, died this morn-ing at twenty minutes to 2 o'clock. Lady Tennyson, his son Hallam and his wife, Sir Andrew Clark, Dr. Dabbs, the nurses and other servants who had been with him for twenty-five years were at his bedside when death came. He was tran-quil, conscious and painless to the end. As the evening advanced the moon rose in unusual splendor and flooded the room blew, a sturdy child of five years old, with shining locks, stood opening his arms upon the blast and letting himself be blown along, and as he traveled on he made his first line of poetry, and said, 'I hear a voice that's speaking in the wind,' and he tossed his arms, and the gust whirled on, sweep-ling into the great alyss of winds.'' In such poetic fashion does Anne T. Ritchie, in an article written half a dozen years ago in Harper's, refer to the child-hood of the poetlaurente, Alfred Tennyson, the germ of fancy flashing from within him at this tender age. It was at this Somerby, where his father officiated as a clergyman of the Church of England, that Tennyson was born in 1806. Here in the quiet of a country place—and there was then nothing but the lumbering English coach to connect it with the outer world— the abild core un ach to connect it with the outer world-

the child grew up. His First Poem. It was quite natural that the dainty bits, of English scenery should have been in-delibly impressed upon Tennyson's mind, and that throughout a long life devoted to the poetic art he should have painted them in so many charming word pictures. Tennyson's first writen poem was, it is said, on the flowers in the garden, and the first money he ever received for a poem was for an elegy on his grandfather. Thomson was then a favorite poet and the by mod-eled his first verses upon "The Seasons;" and the youngster, who had not yet gone of far as to write in a style of his own, left off copying Thomson and began to copy gyron. When Byron died Teunyson was yet only fifteen years old, and it is not ap-marent that the younger bard ever ad-ming any other poet so much as to imitate him, besides he was growing into his yown individuality. individuality. At twenty hegained a prize at Cambridge for a poem called "Timbuctoo." With some trifling exceptions he published nothing until he came of age, in 1830, when he got out a volume of "Poems, Chiefty Lyrical." They did not cause his countrymen to re-gard him as a great poet. Tennyson was thirty-three years old and had written con-

S.-An attempt was made to blow up the Mansion House, a boarding house in which forty or fifty nonunion men were sleeping. A dynamite bomb was thrown into the storeroom on the first floor, which exploded, breaking through the floors and ceilings and smash-ing every window in the house. There is no clew to the perpetrators of the deed. No one was seriously injured. Arrested for Terason. PirTisutico, Oct. 8.-Michael Cush, a member of the Homestead advisory board, was arrested at Altoona on the charge of treason. He was brought to Pittsburg and lodged in jail. Cush was collecting money for the strikers when arrested. THE MASON'S HOME. greetings met the men all along the line of march. On account of the unpleasant weather the line of march was not con-tinued to the home, but after the process sion passed the reviewing stand the column was dismissed, and the thousands reached the home grounds by various conveyances. At the dedication ceremonies Past Grand Master Scherer made an address. Then Grand Master Ten Eyck made an ad-dress, in which he gave much of the his-tory of the order, contrasting the dark past with the bright future. Incidents of the day were the presents-tion of a baton of solid gold to Grand Mar-shal Ehlers by Grand Master Ten Eyck, and the presentation of a grand master's jewel, worth $1,500, to Grand Master Ten Eyck. COFFEVULLE, KAN., Oct. 6.—The Daiton gang of outlaws, the most notorions in the west, was wiped off the face of the earth here, but in the battle which resulted in their extermination three good citizens were killed and two fatally wounded. The desperadoes, who had grown bolder, think-ing they were above all law and the off-cers of the county were powerless against them, had attempted to raid the banks of this city, their old home, when they met the fate they so well merited. Had they confined their efforts to train robbery they might now be alive, but emulation of the James boys proved their ruin. This was their first attempt at bank robbery and their last piece of outlawry. Dashed Dawn Stolen goods. Dashed Down Sixty Feet.
