NOT A COAL COMBINE.

THAT IS THE DECLARATION OF LE-HIGH VALLEY MEN.

answer of the Railroad Filed at Trenton in the Celebrated Reading Case—The Alleged Deal Was Not Made to Form a TRENTON, Nov. 29.—The officers of the Easton and Amboy Railroad company have filed their answer in the Reading coal combine case, denying all the principal allegations of the state against that corporation. Charles Hartshore, who is the vice president of both the Lehigh Valley and the Easton and Amboy roads, swears that under the lease of the Lehigh Valley to the Reading no combination was entered to the Reading no combination was entered into concerning the selling or mining of anthracite coal; that there was no purpose to create a monopoly in the supply of coal, or to give the Reading control over the output or prices. The coal companies in which his roads are stockholders do not monopolize the production or sale of coal. Robert H. Sayre, the second vice president of the Lehigh Valley; John R. Fanshawe, the secretary, and A. W. Stedman, the chief engineer of the same road, all submit supporting affidavits.

engineer of the same road, all submit supporting affidavits.

The Advance in Coal.

C. E. Henderson, the general manager of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company, in his affidavit denies that there has been any scarcity of coal by reason of the limitation in the supply thereof mined in the months of August, September and October. The advance in the price of coal last spring was not in excess of prices obtained in periods of ordinary condition of coal trade. It is misleading, he says, to compare the prices at present charged with those quoted as obtained in 1800 and 1891. The latter prices were those quoted by certain operators only. The condition of the anthracite coal trade in those years was altogether an abnormal one, due to well known extraordinary circumstances. General Manager Henderson denies that any combination was formed between the coal companies, and also denies that the meetings held in New York were for the purpose of regulating the prices of coal, or controlling the output or transportation thereof.

tation thereof.

They Fixed No Prices.

The meetings in question were attended by coal producers and sales agents only. They held consultations with respect to the condition of the trade, but fixed no prices. There was no organization and no resolutions offered or passed or any other action taken with a view to binding any one with regard to the output or prices. Each person attending these meetings was left free to sell coal at prices fixed by himself, or the principals he may have represented.

seit, of the principals he may have represented.

John H. Jones, chief of the bureau of anthracite coal statistics, gives figures in his affidavit to show that there has been no limitation in the supply of coal recently. The supply in fact, he declares, has been greater for the ten months of 1820 than ever before, aggregating 34,571,850 tonsan increase over the corresponding period of 1891 of 1,839,042 tons. The shipment in 1892 is as great as during the same period last year.

President McLeod Testifies

tion had no connection with the Reading leases.

Mr. McLeod further stated that if there were no meetings to regulate the output of coal the smaller producers would be crowded to the wall and the more power ful would combine and raise the price of coal. Many producers who were on the verge of bankruptcy were saved by the Reading management. The coal business had been conducted at a loss and prices armo higher than they have been.

Mr. McLeod concluded that the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron company had never paid a dividend and that the Reading is not getting a reasonable price, "said he, "but we do not propose to go so far as in any way to injur. our trade."

The Congressional Inquiry.

The Congressional Inquiry.

New York, Nov. 29.—The investigation into the workings of the Reading coal combine was continued in the Federal building.

W. E. Street, of the Pennsylvania Coal and Iron company, said that anthractice coal was costing more money today than it did in 1891. Some sizes—stove and chest-nut—were selling at an advance of fifty or sixty cepts. Egg and grate were selling for a triffe more, while lump and buckwheat, he thought and "regretted to say," were not up to last year's prices. He said that the present high price was due to the fact that the demand this year approached very neat the output, notwithstanding the fact that the output this year is 1,500,000 tons greater than in 1801, the biggest year was a supposed to the fact that the output this year is 1,500,000 tons greater than in 1801, the biggest year on record.

Want Labor Legislation.

It is said that the Knights of Labor legislative convention will probably be held in Harrisburg about the middle of this month. It is proposed to frame a bill to prevent the bringing into the state of armed guards and to probibit the employment of such during labor troubles. It is intended that this shall be the death blow to Pinkertonism in Pennsylvania, and the united influence of all the labor organizations in the state will be brought to bear on legislators to secure the the passage of the bill.

The Knights of Labor will ask all the other labor unions in the state to aid them in securing the desired legislation, since it is as much to their interest as it is to that of the Knights.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 30.—At the congressional investigation of the Reading coal deal President McLeod, of the Reading coal deal President McLeod, of the Reading rail road system, was the first witness. He stated that the demand for coal made prices and he did not believe prices were otherwise influenced by the coal agents. He was then asked, "Is it a part of your scheme, Mr. McLeod, to effect any further advance in the price of coal?"

Mr. McLeod crepiled, "We regulate our business according to the conditions wind from month to month. We have no intention of raising the price of coal for December, and we couldn't raise prices in January if we wanted to."

He disclamed any co-operation on his part toward the election of Reading directors in the Delaware, Lackawama and Western railroad, and said that the election had no connection with the Reading leases.

Mr. McLeod further stated that if there Mr. McLeod further stated that if there Mr. McLeod further stated that if there were the manufacture of the month of the Mr. McLeod further stated that it fellows the month of the Knights.

Wages Going Down.

The rate of wages to be paid miners employed at the Reading collieries in the Schuylkill region for the last half of November and the first half of December was fixed at 6 per cent. above the $2.50 basis.

This is 2 per cent. below the rate of wages paid last month, and the flim-flam scale, which the miners praised so highly when wages were ascending, does not look so beautiful in their eyes now.

HIGHLAND DOTS.

HIGHLAND DOTS.

On Tuesday afternoon about 2 o'clock another mine accident occurred here, by which Hugh Dugan and his laborer. George Wescoe, were badly burned by an explosion of gas. They work in what is known as slope "D," inside of No. 2 and had no occasion to go to the face of the breast until after dinner. When learly 2 o'clock they started up the breast, and were gone only a few mine ties when the explosion took place. As soon as it became known the ambulance, which is kept at Jeddo, was sent for and both taken to their homes, where it was found that, while both were severely burned about the face and hands, Wescoe was much the worse. The flesh was literally cooked on his face and thands and arms were nearly as bad.

This place is blessed with quite a number of ten-cent dudes who will scarcely allow a lady to pass without making their presence known in some manner. It may be well for these imitations to trake a hint, or they will surely get into trouble.

Ground Settling at Avoca.

Avoca, caused by a cave-in in the mine during the night. The place where the surface has settled is known as "Brown's Patch," and several acres have gone down from two to six feet, causing a few of the houses to tip over, while many others sustained more or less damage. The people of Avoca are greatly alarmed, fearing the settling will extend to the thickly populated portion of the town, but experienced miners who know the surroundings say that no further danger is to be apprehended.

John Morrock, while shoveling snow from the track at Minesvile colliery, stepped out of the way of an approaching train only to be caught by a mine locie. Both legs were severed and his body frightfully mutilated. He leaves a wife and two children.

Joseph Kelshaw, a mine foreman at No. 4 slope, Jeanesville, was seated on the bumpers of a locie when a collision occurred. His leg was caught between the cars and torn from his body. He was taken to Hazleton hospital, where he died Tuesday night.

Mine Inspector Lewis notified Deputy Coroner Buckley to hold an inquest, which was done yesterday. After an extensive examination the jury rendered a verdict of accidental death.

The deceased was 53 years of age, and leaves a wife and ten children.
