Tracked by Bloodhounds.

After several days and nights of fruit-less efforts for liberty, they were recaptured by the enemy, with the aid of bloodhounds, and placed in the Charleston jail. Upon being exchanged, Colonel Hoyt rejoined his regiment, and remained with it until near the close of the war. He was promoted to colonel on January 9, 1864, and was mustered out of the service on November 5, 1864, on the expiration of his term, several months before the regiment itself was mustered out. On March 13, 1865, he was brevetted brigadier-general.

During the year 1867, under an appointment from Governor Geary, he discharged the duties of additional law judge of the eleventh district, but at the close of the year was superseded by a Bemocrat who had been elected by the people. For six years he was a member of the school board of the city of Wilkes-Barre.

In 1875 and 1876 Colonel Hoyt was ation of an Independent Republican state ticket against General Beaver and his associates, Governor Hoyt strongly urged that a new convention should be held, for the purpose of effecting a com-promise, whereby the party might be asved from what he regarded as inevit-ated effeat if something of this sort was

A Well Played Drama

"The Mariner's Return." as played by the Woodring & Moses Dramatic Company at the opera house on Saturday evening, was very much enjoyed by a large audience.

The drama is one that commands attention and interest from start to finish, and the energy and spirit with which the players did their work resulted in a performance that was highly creditable. The audience was surprised at the ability shown by the leading characters, and expressed approval with frequent and hearty applause.

Win C. Miller's special scene in the second act, the old stone bridge, was one of the most realistic seen here yet, and the young artist received many congratulations upon the success of his work.

The specialities of Woodring and Faas, and the music of the P. O. S. of A. band helped to make the entertainment all that could be desired. A repetition of the play will undoubtedly draw a crowded house.

They Would Not Leave the Track.

On Thursday as the train which leaves here at noon for White Haven was going down the grade beyond Sandy Run, a pair of mules, hitched tandem got on the track in front of the engine. Engineer Fickering tooted his whistle long and vigorously, but in vain, to drive them off the track. They paid no attention, but trotted along leisurely, forcing him to reduce the train's speed to almost nothing.

After they had thus trotted along for nearly a mile, the repeated tooting of the engine whistle attracted the attention of some men at work at the slope near the track on the other side of Sandy Run and they head off the mules and drove them from the track, although even then their muleships seemed very much disinclined to yield the right of way to the iron steed.—

Prisoners Discharged.

On November 6 the stable belonging to John Smith, of Highland, was burned down, together with his cow and several chickens. Last Friday he had Joe Mitchel, John Kurtovich and William Krout arrested, charging them with committing the deed.

They were given a hearing before Squire Buckley. A number of witnesses were examined, and an adjournment taken until Saturday evening, when further testimony was offered.

After hearing the witnesses the justice discharged the prisoners, as there was not sufficient evidence to convict them.

Ground Caving In.

The surface over the Honey Brook mine caved in on Friday and some parts dropped from five to twelve inches, Since the outbreak of fire in the mines four weeks ago, the possibility of a cave-in was constantly spoken of.

A party of men were engaged re-timbering the slope when symptoms of a cave-in became manifest. The men had barely escaped when the crash came.

The fire is constantly growing worse, and there is no telling how much will be burned before it is brought under control.
