

FREELAND TRIBUNE.

PUBLISHED EVERY MONDAY AND THURSDAY.

THOS. A. BUCKLEY, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES. One Year... $1.50 Six Months... 75 Four Months... 50 Two Months... 25

Subscribers are requested to watch the date following the name on the labels of their papers. By referring to this they can tell at a glance how they stand on the books in this office.

Grover Cleveland's name means that Grover is paid up to June 28, 1893. By keeping the figures in advance of the present date subscribers will save both themselves and the publisher much trouble and annoyance.

Subscribers who allow themselves to fall in arrears will be called upon or notified twice, and, if payment does not follow within one month thereafter, collection will be made in the manner provided by law.

FREELAND, DECEMBER 12, 1892.

TAMMANY is held up to the readers' view as an organization controlled by unscrupulous men, formed and kept alive for the sole purpose of procuring offices for its members. Its complete control of the city of New York, where its word is law, makes it wholly responsible for the condition of the metropolis.

The officials at Washington are making desperate efforts to hide from the people the real condition of the national treasury. Some of the reports sent out by department offices during the past few days appear to be deliberate falsehoods.

The crusade which a few Republican papers inaugurated against Matt Quay's reelection to the United States senate seems to have fallen through. Is it possible that the press of the party lacks the courage to cross swords with this wily politician?

Piscatory authorities of the highest standard tell us that were it not for nature's grand "evening up" provisions, the fishes of the seas would multiply so rapidly that within three short years they would fill the waters to such an extent that there would be no room for them to swim.

The average size of families in the various countries of Europe is as follows: France, 3.63 members; Denmark, 3.61; Hungary, 3.70; Switzerland, 3.94; Austria and Belgium, 4.05; England, 4.08; Germany, 4.10; Sweden, 4.12; Holland, 4.22; Scotland, 4.46; Italy, 4.56; Spain, 4.65; Russia, 4.83; Ireland, 5.20.

"And so my little wife cooked this all herself? What does she call it?" "Well, I started it for bread, but after it came out of the oven I concluded I'd better put sauce on it and call it pudding."—Exchange.

There are but 190 colored voters in North Dakota. There are 15,000 in the city of Baltimore. Baltimore has an area of thirty-two square miles; North Dakota has an area of 70,000 square miles.

Whittier, the poet, it is reported, said to the doctors in attendance a day or two before his death, "You have done the best possible, and I thank you; but it is of no use—I am worn out."

Strange stories are frequently told of the doings of electricity, and there is no doubt that of all the forces of nature this is the most capable of eccentric manifestation.

The pyrometer measures heat in degrees and fractions, and will give accurate figures even though the heat runs up to the unthinkable intensity of 7,000 degs.

We learn from a doctor that stammering is almost unknown among savages. Is this infirmity, then, one of the penalties we pay for civilization?

A Mongolian Example.

The patriots who are endeavoring to set up a Chinese wall against foreign access to this country think it would be an easy matter to keep immigrants from coming over the Canadian and Mexican borders. There is no doubt that this could be done by stationary armies of policemen on the respective frontiers.

The evidences of history show that there was a time when the Mongolian conquerors of China were making great and rapid progress in all the arts of civilization. What contributed more than anything else to suddenly and fatally arrest this progress was the policy of prohibiting intercourse with the outside barbarian world.

The effect of this policy was to stamp upon the Chinese and their social and political institutions a hideous uniformity, as if they had been struck by a decree of fate. They had wantonly and ignorantly violated a law of nature that is essential to progress and civilization.

The imitators of this Chinese example in the United States are endeavoring, by every appeal to prejudice and fear, including the dread of cholera, to familiarize the country with their scheme to suspend immigration.

Though somewhat late in the season, the sea serpent has turned up at last, this time a few miles off the Aberdeenshire coast. The vouchers for its appearance are the crew of the fishing boat Harbinger, who state that while lying at anchor an extraordinary looking monster, with a neck like a giraffe, a long, dark mane, a skin spotted like fancy linoleum, suddenly rose over the gunwale and placed one foot at the prow and the other near the stern of the Harbinger.

The creature remained in sight for a quarter of an hour, so that ample time was afforded to the fishermen to recover their wits and take stock of the visitor, which they further describe as having ears of extraordinary dimensions (no doubt of this), teeth like a marble staircase, and jaws, when open, sufficiently wide to stow away an omnibus.

A party of Adirondack hunters recently returned with ten fine deer, among them a notably fine buck, weighing 310 pounds. A third shot was found necessary to kill him.

There was no room for them to swim. This will hardly be disputed when it is known that a single female cod will lay 45,000,000 eggs in a single season.—St. Louis Republic.

LIFELONG FRIENDS.

THE STRANGE FRIENDSHIP OF EMERSON AND CARLYLE.

Their Views Were Almost Diametrically Opposed—Dissimilar in Temperament and Taste—Disliked Each Other as Thinkers, but Loved as Men.

The friendship of Goethe and Schiller, of Beaumont and Fletcher, of Irving and Paulding, of Socrates and Plato, have often been noticed as among the friendships of literary or philosophical minds.

But perhaps one of the strangest literary friendships was the lifelong intimacy between Emerson and Carlyle. This intimacy was not fostered by personal contact, for Emerson and Carlyle met each other only upon two or three occasions.

Carlyle seemed to despair of the future of the race and believe that the crazy old world was rattling on the down grade to destruction. Emerson was one of the most persistent optimists in all history.

Both Emerson and Carlyle were semi-invalids all their lives. But Emerson's invalidism only served to draw out the latent sunshine of his nature. The more he was chastened by disease the sweeter grew his disposition.

For the purpose of erecting a suitable monument in honor of Roger Williams, the founder of Rhode Island, his private burying ground was searched for himself and wife.

Photographers, and especially amateurs, have given much attention to the production of spirit photographs, and many suggestions have been made as to the best mode of securing effective pictures.

Between 1880 and 1890 the eligible voting population in the United States increased 32 per cent. The ratio of growth was smallest in Maine and Vermont, and largest in Nebraska, Minnesota, Oregon, Florida, Kansas and the new states.

CAMPAIGN FUNDS.

How the Necessary Money is Raised and Handled for Carrying Elections.

During a political campaign the first and in most cases the chief source of revenue is the assessment of candidates. The amount of these assessments varies in different localities and under different circumstances.

In national elections local county committees expect to receive money also from the national committee, usually through the hands of the state committee. In the campaign of 1888 the Republican committee in one county of Indiana received $800 from the state committee, which they supposed, as a matter of course, came from the national committee.

In the campaign of 1880, in that same state, the two leading county managers of one of the parties went to Indianapolis and met there a representative from the national committee. They went to his room in the hotel to talk with him regarding funds.

Another source of revenue, and one that is much larger than we should expect, if we did not consider the great enthusiasm that a close campaign arouses, is voluntary contributions.

ARTIFICIAL GOLD.

HOW ALCHEMISTS USED TO MAKE IT IN THE OLDEN TIME.

It Brought to Most of Them an Unhappy Fate—If One Failed to Carry Out an Extravagant Promise He Lost His Life. An American Turns a Trick.

It has often been stated, and with truth, that modern chemistry is indebted for much of its knowledge to the alchemists of old, whose experiments for the purpose of making gold by artifice were certainly extraordinary to the utmost point of absurdity.

In a work now rare, called the "History of Ancient Pharmacy," it is mentioned that Raymond Nully was said to have transformed 50,000 pounds of mercury into gold for the English King Edward III, and that from this supply of the yellow metal the first rose nobles were coined.

The business of manufacturing gold in those days seems to have been an extremely dangerous one, commonly bringing persons who pursued it to a violent death.

A quack named Daniel supplied Italian apothecaries with a wonderful gold powder called "usufur," which was supposed to have astonishing medicinal value.

Count Cajetan in 1705, in the presence of Frederick I of Prussia, changed one pound of mercury into gold by means of a red tincture.
