Finding the Bodies.

At 11 o'clock on Friday night the men engaged in looking for the bodies of the miners entombed in Later Hill colliery, Hazleton, found the dead body of Richard Williams. It was lying underneath a large mass of coal, debris, etc., at the botton of the schute in his breast, and from its appearance he must have been killed shortly after being caught by the tonent of water that rushed in upon him. A large gash back of the left ear and a few small cuts about the fact were the only marks upon the unfortunate man.

Compulsory Education Bill.

Compulsory Education Bill.

The compulsory education bill has passed third reading in the house at Harrisburg. The vote was 123 for to 48 against. It is now in the senate, where, if the bill is of any real benefit, it will be defeated or smothered by a committee. The bill provides that parents and guardians of children between the ages of 8 and 12 shall be required to send them to school in which the common English branches are taught during at least sixteen weeks in the year if any school within two miles of the pupil's home is open that long during the, year, but this is not to apply to children otherwise instructed in common English branches for a like period of time. The parents or guardians are under a penalty of $2 for the first year's offense and $5 for each subsequent one, but no penalty is collectable in case, it cannot be paid on account of the poverty of the parents. Truant children are not to be reported to the authorities except after an absence from school of five successive days.

A MINER'S FATE.

Meets Death in a Wilkes-Barre Slope.

The body of William Samuels, general inside superintendent for the Lebigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Company, was found in the Dorrance colliery, Wilkes-Barre, on Saturday morning. Samuels went into the mine on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock to inspect the abandoned Eowkley vein, and ascertain if there was enough coal in it to warrant work being recommenced.

At 8 o'clock Friday night be had not returned, and a searching party was or-

At 8 o'clock Friday night be had not returned, and a searching party was organized. After great difficulty they succeeded in reaching the vein, and found it on fire. In the hope that Samuels was behind the fire and near the face or end of the gangway alive, a large force of men were sent down and fought the fire all night. At 9 o'clock this morning they extinguished it, and, climbing over several falls of top rock, found the body of Samuels near the face. It was badly burned.

of Samuels near the face. It was badly burned.

Mine Inspector Williams says that a body of gas must have been ignited by Samuels' naked lamp. The inspectors express great surprise that he should have been so careless as to enter the old working without a safety lamp. The deceased was a well-known miner in the Wyoming region, and resided here several years ago, when he worked in the Wogdside celliery, which was then operated by the Jeddo Coal Company, of Boston. He was a married man with seven children.

Will Join the Eastern League.

Will Join the Eastern League.

At a meeting of the Wilkes-Barre substribers to the Eastern League fund it was virtually agreed that Wilkes-Barre should join that league. Several State League men were there, snd after a vain endeavor to get the stockholders to join their leque, departed and left the field to the Eastern League people.

Captain John Irwin, who is to manage the Wilkes-Barre team, has estimated that the expenses of the season, including players' salaries and railroad fares, hotel expenses, cost of uniforms, grounds, etc., will amount to $17,250, and that the club, with fifty-six $190 guarantees, and an average attendance of 600 at home games will make $16,800. Subscribers have already promised $2000.

The following directors were elected: William S. McLean, William J. Harvey, H. J. Dennin, B. F. Stark, M. H. Birgunder, E. F. Bogert, Alex Dick, C. W. Tammany, J. Bennett Snith, A. A. Sterling and Leo Long. Captain Irwin will engage players at once, and expects to have the whole team ready by April 20.

At a meeting of the Freeland Base Ball Association yesterday it was decided to place a team in the field this year. F. P. Malloy was elected manager, and P. H. Hanlon assistant manager, these gentlemen were given full power to engage and sign players, and make preparations to open the season. The park is in a fair condition, considering the hard winter, and the association intends to fix it up wherever repairing is necessary. Manager Malloy stated this morning that a team would be secured and be ready to play about May 15.

More Sewers to be Laid.

The members of council and Surveyor Boyle met on Saturday evening and examined the ground to be opened for sewers, The distance to be laid in the section examined will be nearly 1500 feet of 12-inch pipe and 300 feet of 10-inch. It will start on the main sewer, between South and Main streets, and through the Public Park to an alley at the east end of borough line, and follow that alley to Johnson street. Connections will be made to run west on Front; Walnut and Johnson streets.

Freeland Family Troubles.

The Wilkes-Barre papers state that a suit for damages for trespass has been commenced by Freel Horlacher against. Andrew Elliott, but of Freeland, in the sum of $10,000. The plaintiff states that on October 21, 1882, he was married and lived with his wife happily until May 22, 1892. Upon that day and several times since the defendant did alienate the affections of plaintiff's wife, Lizzie, and did induce her to desert the plaintiff and four children. The plaintiff claims $10,000 damages.

A man named Bumsby has offered to pay all the taxes this year and donate $100 to each of the three churches of Coal Centre, Washington county, this state, if the residents do not oppose him in obtaining a liquor license. The ministers oppose him, while a majority of the people favor Bumsby's proposition. A license has never yet been granted to any person in Coal Centre.

They starve In City or Mountains.

It is a strange fact, but nevertheless true, that there is less poverty in the mountains than in any other section of the state. While the mountain people are seldom wealthy, they are rarely, if ever, in need of the necessities of life. Each man has his little patch of land, on which he raises enough to support his family and by odd jobs secures enough money to buy their clothing. While the poorer people of the larger cities are suffering for fuel, the mountaineer is sitting by his confortable fire smoking his cob pipe filled with "long green" which he himself has raised. Although the winter has been exceptionally severe, we the himself has raised. Although the win-ter has been exceptionally severe, we have yet to hear of a single family in Lee county that is suffering. The Ken-tucky mountaineer, however, is one of your independent fellows who will starve rather than beg, and no one knows of his sufferings until he is found stiff and cold in death.—Beattyville (Ky.) Enterprise.

In Darkest London.

Commissioner Cadman of the Salvation Army estimates that not less than $20,000 men, women and children in London are today in actual want of the necessities of life. The pictures of poverty presented are appalling. One family—a husband, a wife and four children—were found whose expense for foo I was 8 cents a day.
The hūsband, a ship's steward, had been out of employment for months. In another case a woman was on her way to pawn the last sheet as the Salvation Army official entered the house. Another woman had just sold her last piece of furniture, a kettle, for 8 cents to buy food. A husband, wife and child were found who had been living for a long time on less than half a loaf of bread a day. As the Salvation Army messenger entered with food another home almost destitute of furniture the wife wept, and one of the children said, "We can have some bread
now."

The Language of Animais.

There may be no dumb animals—only their voices may be out of our ear. It must be supposed that small creatures, including quadrupeds, hear sounds much more acute than are audible to us, but more acute than are audible to us, but none of the lower notes of our scale. This is perhaps the case with cats and dogs, who can obviously communicate with one another, coming so close as almost to touch noses, but making no sound audible to us. Thus there is not such a confusion of noises as there would be otherwise. The vast difference of pitch heard by different great tribes of creatures causes us and them to have, so to speak, the world to ourselves.—New York Home Journal.

How to Measure a River.

How to Measure a River.

Anybody can measure approximately the breadth of a river without a survey-or's compass or any mechanical means whatever. The man who desires to make the experiment should place himself at the edge of the stream, then stand perfectly still, face the opposite bank and lower the brim of his hat until it just cuts the opposite bank. Then let him put both hands under his chin to steady his head and turn slowly round until the hat brimcuts some point on the level ground behind him. Mark the spot where the hat brim cuts the ground, then pace off the distance, and it will be found about the breath of the river.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
