MARCH, APRIL AND MAY

Is the Time for Catarrhal Dyspepsia—The Blood Must be Cleansed.

The symptoms of catarrhal dyspepsia are: Coated tongue, pain or heavy feeling in the stomach, sour stomach, beling of gas, dizzy head, sometimes headache, despondent feelings, loss of appetite, palpitation of heart and irregularity of the bowels.

For this condition Peru-na is found to be an admirable remedy. In all cases it brings prompt relief to the painful symptoms, and in a large per cent. of the cases it makes a permanent cure. Peru-na soothes the inflammation has been so severe and continued as to produce extreme irritability of the stomach, the remedy may be taken in small doses at first, diluted in water; but as soon as the icuprovement is sufficient to sermit the full dose to be taken undiluted, it is a better way, and the cure is much more rapid. Per-u-na is also a spring medicine which at once removes the cause of all affections peculiar to the spring season by purifying the blood of all contaminations, and invigorating the whole system.

Two valuable books, No. 1, setting forth in detail the treatment of catarrh, coughs, cold, sore throat, bronchitts and consumption, in every phase of the disease, and No. 2, on spring remedies and diseases, will be ent free to any addiess by The Peru-na Drug Manufacturing Company of Columbus, Ohio.

The Czar's Splendid Gifts.

Peck's Sun.

The Czar's Splendid Giffs.

The presents given by the Czar of Russia to the Emir of Bokhara in return for the splendid gifts which the latter made to all the members of the Russian Imperial family are of such magnificence that they might well fill feminine hearts with regret at the mere thought of such marvels being wasted on a man. First of all there was a casket in solid gold, all ornamented with diamonds and bearing the erown and cipher of the Czar in huge brilliants. When this box was opened it was found to contain an aigrette of three plumes in diamonds and an agraffe made of one enormous omeraid, cut square. Then there were some trifles for the table service of the Emir; a table for "dostorhane" all gilttering with precious stones. Tae "dostorhane" is a light reflection of sweets, bonbons, liquors, preserves and delicate cakes served in the drawing-room, the fashion of which has been imported into Russia by the Emir himself, and which is now becoming the rage all over Europe. Among the other offerings of the Emperor were a loving cup in enameled silver covered with gems, for drinking koumyss; a lot of cups, vases and dishes in enameled silver, and some wearing appearel, the description of which reminds one of the traditional robes of Solomon in all his glory—especially a "halate" or long khaftan made of gold thread, and trimmed with galon of wrought gold, sewn thickly with the red purple amethysts of Siberia and very large rubies. There was another of these wonderful "halates" made of blue vet, embroidered with gold and precious stones and lined with priceless sable furs. Furthermore, there was a nice little assortment of pieces of "parch," a material in gold and silver thread manufactured at Moscow. The Enir's son was also the recipient of numerous gifts, and even the personages of his suite received gold watches studded with diamonds, jeweled scimiters, and other weapons of great value and beauty.—New York Tribune.

Buffalo in Yellowstone

Buffalo in Yellowstone.

E.I. Alderson was in town the other day, having arrived from a trip over a considerable portion of Yellowstons Park, which he maie on snowshoes. Charles C. Curtis, who, with E.I., has a permanent camp on the headwaters of Gallatin River, near the park boundary line, made the trip with him. They dre v hand sledges slong with the n, and were gone about fifteen days in all. In Hayden Valley they saw a huge buffalo standing on a point not over 200 yards distant. Shortly afterward they saw a band of thirty or forty head of buffaro. They ran across numerous elk, deer and antelope, and report that game is remarkably plentiful, even down near the edges of the park.—Bozeman (Montana) Courier.

Get Away From the Crowd.

The advice which Robert Burdette gives to boys may well be taken, not not holy by them, but by older persons—"Get away from the crowd," he says, "for a little while every day, and think. Stand on one side and let the world run by, while you get acquainted with yourself, and see what kind of a fellow you are. Ask yourself, that questions about yourself, find out all you can about yourself, find out all you can about yourself, sacertain, from original sources, if you are really the manner of man you say you are; and if you are always honest; if you always tell the square, perfect truth in business deals; if you life is as good and upright at 11 o'clock at night as it is at noon; if you are as good a temperance man on a fishing excursion as you are at a Sunday school picnic; if you are as good when you go out of the city as you are at home; if, in short, you are really the sort of man your father hopes you are, and your sweetheart believes you are. Get on intimate terms with yourself, my boy, and believe me, every time you come out from one of these private interviews, you will be a stronger, better, purer man. Don't forget this, and it will do you good."

A green broadcloth lined and edged with seal, is a blanket that especially becomes milady's greyhound; but scarlet, edged with silver cordings and lined with quitted satin, is a gay coat for the toy terrier. A tailor-made doggie, with a gold clasp under his chin and a monogram well toward his tail, is a sign of the times in France.—Detroit Free Press.

More Flattery than Truth.
One day as Sir Isaac Heard was aith George the Third, it was announced that his majesty's horse was ready to start for hunting. "Sir Isaac," said the good monarch, "are you a judge of horses?" "In my younger days, please your majesty," was the reply, "I was a great deal among them." "What do you think of this, then?" said the king, who was by this time preparing to mount his favorite, and, without waiting for an answer, added: "We call him perfection." "A most appropriate name," replied the courtly herald, bowing as his majesty reached the saddle, "for he bears the best of characters."

Creede's Prosperity.

Creede, Colo, the wonderful mining town which attracted so much attention about a year ago, is by no means dead, though its remarkable boom has long since waned. The idea was pretty general that Creede burst with the boom, but that is not the case. The solid business men of the town regard the collapsing of the boom, with all its spectacular features, as a very good thing for the business interests of the place.

The favor with which the new bread, made with Royal Baking Powder instead of yeast, has been received by our best housekeepers and most expert bread makers is really wonderful. "It saves all the hard and tedious work of kneading and moulding," writes one. "Less than an hour from the dry flour to the most perfect loaf of bread I ever saw," writes another. "If rish bread every day," says another, "and that the lightest, finest and most wholesome, is something to live for." "We relish the bread better than the old kind;" "it is shead of any yeast bread I ever baked;" "the bread was whiter and softer." "Best of all," writes an enthussatic housewife, "we can eat the Royal unfemented bread when freshly baked, or even when warm, with perfect impunity. It is actually an anti-dyspeptic."

"This bread has a 'nutty' taste, that is peculiarly pleasing," writes still another. This is owing to the fact that the active gas-producing principle of the Royal so derived from the pure grape acid.

The great value of this bread arises from the fact that in it are preserved all the most nutritive elements of the flour, some of which are decomposed and destroyed by'the action of yeast. The loss of these properties is what makes fresh yeast bread unwholesome. The use of the Royal Baking Powder instead of yeast is found to make a finer, lighter bread, devoid of all dyspeptic qualities. The smar gas—carbonic—is produced as where yeast is used, but it is evolved from the baking powder instead of yeast is made more wholesome and actually anti-dyspeptic. The greater convenience, where a batch of the finest bread can be made and baked in less than an hour with no danger of a sour or heavy land and prover instead of where the statement when the subject in the potato; add sufficient water to mix smoothly and rapidly into a stiff batter, about ap int of water to a quart of flour will be required—more or less according to the brand and quality of the flour used.
