FREELAND, PA., JULY 10, 1893.

NEWS AND COMMENT.

An exchange says: "There are some things a level-headed human being should never do. Among these is to kindle a fire with the aid of coal oil, to walk on the railroad track, to attempt to get on a moving train, to point a gun or pistol at another, to put his name on another man's note, to keep his savings in an old stocking under his bed, to play a game of chance with a prepossessing stranger, to take patent medicine for his real or imaginary ailments, to run for an office when he has a paying situation in private life, to call a bigger man than himself a liar."

This is the season when the boy in the water tells the boy on the bank that "its just as warm as dish water," and the boy on the bank thinks its joy that makes the other fellows' teeth rattle, and that its the reflection of the sky that makes him blue about the mouth. He plunges into the still water and nature receives another shock.

A councilman complains that the office is a thankless one. Of course it is. But then it isn't any different in that respect from what it has always been. Still it can't be so real objectionable either. Who ever heard of a councilman resigning.

A conference of prophets in London has set 12.40 p. m., March 5, 1896, as the exact time at which the world will come to an end. They go Greenwich time, of course, so that we will have a whole afternoon to ourselves after the disturbance has begun over there.

"Kyphosis bicyclistarum" is the name given to the disease produced by leaning forward on a bicycle until the spine becomes curved. It's enough to straighten the back of any wheelman.

A lady teacher of music inserted her professional card in one of the country papers. It was seen by an old lover in Chicago, who at once hunted her up, explained his absence of a quarter of a century, and married her. It pays to advertise.

A Swedish scientist claims to have discovered the secret of artificially petrifying wood, by which means he believes edifices may be built of wood and converted into stone. At present the cost is about $500 per cubic inch, so that the discovery does not promise an immediate revolution in building.

There is one practice that many people who attend church have that is very unmannerly and unbecoming in either sex, and that is flopping themselves down at the end of the seat when the centre is unoccupied, and clinging to it with death-like tenacity; then sitting there as if bolted to the floor with railroad iron, and compelling others to scramble over their pedal extremities as best they can.

We sometimes look at a pretty boy and think what a pity it is that he's bound to grow up and become a man and get married and drunk and wicked and do all sorts of horrible things. And when you look at the blue-eyed, fair-haired little female child and think that some day she is going to be a pretty woman with a tight-laced waist, a tailor-made suit, false hair, and a touch of paint on her face; that she is going to fib and flirt and deceive and marry the wrong man and have lots of trouble—well, you can't help asking: "What is the use of it all?"

BUSINESS BRIEFS.

The use of tobacco or opium can be positively cured by Hill's chloride of gold tablets. Ask your druggist for them.

Every family should have a box of Wright's Indian Vegetable Pills, the use of which will cure most of our ailments. Try Fackler's home-made bread and rolls—baked fresh every morning.

Picnics supplied with ice cream, cakes, etc., by Laubach at reasonable rates. To bake good bread only the best flour should be used. Washburn brand leads all others. Sold only by B. F. Davis.

Four ladies out of five have some peculiar trouble. "Orange Blossom" will cure them. Sold by W. W. Grover. COUGHING LEADS TO CONSUMPTION. Kemp's Balsam stops the cough at once.

FOR LITTLE FOLKS.

John G. Carlisle, Jr. It would be difficult to find a brighter child than John G. Carlisle, the only grandson of Secretary Carlisle. Although frequently in Washington, his home is in Englewood, Ills. He is always called John G. and is 4 years old, has golden hair, blue eyes and is very fair. The following clipping was taken from a Washington paper: "Ex-Speaker Carlisle feels two feet higher whenever he looks at his grandson, John G. Carlisle, Jr. The baby looks like him and is bright as a button. He is only 4 years old, but he has an old head on young shoulders. "He is a youth of decided individuality, has an opinion of his own and puts on more dignity than the secretary himself. He will not permit strangers to call him John, and he despises Johnny. He informs every one that his right name is John G. Carlisle, Jr., and he always adds that his grandfather's name is John G. Carlisle, Sr. He is a loving little fellow and is not spoiled. He rules the household, and the secretary is his slave."

How Eskimo Boys Hunt.

In the far north in May and June immense numbers of elder ducks fly along the coast bound for their breeding grounds far to the east of Point Barrow. At this season every person, male and female, is supplied with the Eskimo implement called by them ke-loved-tow-tin, which is made as follows: Eight balls three-quarters of an inch in diameter are cut from ivory or bone, with a tip or ear through which a hole is drilled; eight strands of finely braided sinew are tied to these balls. At the opposite ends the strands are brought together, each of exactly the same length, and tied to 10 or 12 quills of some sea fowl, when the implement is ready for use. The bunch of quills is grasped with the right hand, while the fingers of the left comb out the strand, and when all clear the balls are held between the forefinger and the thumb.

This is done in a few seconds when a flock of ducks are seen approaching. When the game is near enough, with a quick circular motion just the same as throwing a stone with a sling, the missile is launched among the flying birds, when, if one of these strands crosses the neck or the wing of a duck, it brings it to the ground, where it is then captured. The action of the air on the strings tends to separate the balls in their flight, so that they cover quite a space, and if the birds are bunched they often bring one down, and the boy or girl that can do this is proud and happy.—Forest and Stream.

The Game of "Shadow Buff."

An amusing pastime and one that is invariably much enjoyed is "shadow buff," which partakes somewhat of the form of a shadow pantomime. A three-fold clotheshorse is brought up from the laundry—one about 5 feet high for preference. Across the three panels a sheet is stretched tautly, and a little lady who is to play the part of Mlle. Buff is seated in front of the screen at a distance of a few feet. At the back a couple of candles are placed about 18 inches from the frame. The various performers then pass behind the screen, of course disguising themselves by dress and gesture as much as possible, and it is the duty of Mlle. Buff to distinguish the little ones forming the procession and to call out the names as they pass. Failure means a forfeit in addition to remaining in penance till a correct guess has been given. Of course those behind the screen should do their best to disguise their identity.—New York World.

Dolls That Went A-sailing.

We made a raft for our dolls one day, And a-sailing they did go, For the wind was strong, and it sent them along, While we merrily sang "Yo-ho!" We gave them plenty to eat and drink, And with doggie for company They sailed away as merry and gay As ever two dolls could be.

But, alas! they very soon came to grief, For the wind, that had seemed so fair, Soon shifted about, and they both fell out And lay in the water there. They floated to land, and we rescued them, But we sighed as we sang "Yo-ho!" For our dollies seemed dead, and we gladly said, "Never more shall they sailing go!"

Dolly Was Really Warm.

One of the first warm spring days 5-year-old Dolly rushed into the house and threw herself across her mother's lap. "Oh, mamma," she exclaimed, "do take off part of my clothes! I'm a whole petticoat too warm!"—Youth's Companion.

HAZLETON SALOONKEEPERS.

Their Suit Against the County Treasurer Tried Before Arbitrators.

The legal differences which were engendered by the incorporation of Hazleton as a city, between County Treasurer John S. McGroarty and the saloonkeepers of that town over the adjustment of the license fees, were recalled in court last week, when a case resulting from that trouble came up.

The city was chartered about the time license court convened and those of the saloonkeepers who were granted a license held that they should pay $150, the same amount paid in boroughs, while the county treasurer claimed they should pay $500 for each license.

The matter went into the courts where the treasurer's position was affirmed, but when carried to the supreme court the lower court was reversed, and it was decided that $150 was the amount which each saloonkeeper should pay for his license.

Treasurer McGroarty immediately after the decision refunded the surplus fees collected, through C. W. Kline, the attorney who carried the case successfully through the supreme court for the saloonkeepers, but when that gentleman returned the amount less his commission as fees to Con Kelly and John Loughran, two of the saloonkeepers, they refused to accept, alleging that they had not employed Kline, therefore should not pay him.

They applied to Treasurer McGroarty for the full amount of their respective surpluses, and the latter referred them to Kline. They thereupon brought suit to recover, and the case was tried before Messrs. McAniff, McHugh and Sherwood. The plaintiffs claim that Kline was not employed by them and the county treasurer had no right to refund their money through Kline's hands.

During the taking of the testimony Loughran admitted that he stated to Kline's agent that he, Loughran, would pay Kline for his trouble, providing Kline was successful with his suit. Treasurer McGroarty, on the other hand, contended that while there was no expressed contract between Kline and the plaintiffs, there was one implied and that he was justified in returning the money of these two men through Kline's hands as he had the money of all the other saloonkeepers interested.
