Misery Turned to Comfort

Kidney Troubles, Sleeplessness, Distress—All CURED.

"Albion, Erie Co., Pa., Feb. 18, '93.

"I can truly say that Hood's Sarsaparilla has done more for me than all the prescriptions and other medicines I have ever taken. For 14 years I have suffered with kidney troubles; my back being so lame at times that I

Could Not Raise Myself

up out of my chair. Nor could I turn myself in bed. I could not sleep, and suffered great distress with my food. I have taken 4 bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla with the most gratifying results. I feel like a new person, and my terrible sufferings have all gone.

Life is Comfort

compared to the misery it used to be. I can now go to bed and have a good night's rest; can eat heartily without any distress. I am willing this should be published for others' good." MRS. THERESA HARTSON.

"August Flower"

"For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said my stomach was worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food. On the recommendation of a friend I procured a bottle of August Flower. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained strength and flesh rapidly. I feel now like a new man, and consider that August Flower has cured me." Jas. E. Dederick, Saugerties, N.Y.

BOILS, CARBUNCLES AND TORTURING ECZEMA, Completely Cured!

DANA SARSAPARILLA CO.,
GENTS:—Two years ago I had "La Grippe" which must have poisoned my blood as I had the "Shingles" shortly after in their worst form. I took a large amount of Dr.'s medicines but they left me worse and not able to work.

KIND I was terribly afflicted with boils, had six and two carbuncles at one time. I tried everything I could hear of but continued to have boils.

THAT Added to all this Eczema tormented me night and day, the itching was intense. I had severe pains in right side and back, continual headache.

CURES I was discouraged. At last I heard of DANA'S SARSAPARILLA, commenced using it, and the third bottle completely CURED me.

Yours respectfully,
LEWIS M. EDMUNDS.

THE MERRY SIDE OF LIFE

STORIES THAT ARE TOLD BY THE FUNNY MEN OF THE PRESS.

A Flat Flatterer—And the Thermometer Fell—Has Hopes—An Unkind Addition, Etc., Etc.

He said she was so lovely that
If she went to the Fair,
No one would look at other things
While she was staying there.

Whereon upon his flattery
The maiden straightway sat,
And said if he went out there too
They'd rent him for a Flat.
—Harper's Bazar.

HIS HOPES.

May—"Don't you think your landlady's little boy is an angel?"

Frank—"Not yet; but I have hopes!"—Life.

AN UNKIND ADDITION.

Mrs. Van Gabler—"Reticence is my favorite quality."

Mr. Van Gabler—"In others, I presume."—Truth.

"HE'S ALL RIGHT."

"Does Digby feel encouraged about his matrimonial prospects?"

"Yes. He's second choice of two girls and third choice of four more."—Judge.

HIS OWN MAKE.

Travers—"Look here, those shoes you made me creak."

Shoemaker—"They always creak at the end of thirty days, sir, if the bill isn't paid."—New York Herald.

UNRUFFLED.

"Excuse me," said the outspoken man at the club, "I understand that you left London under a cloud."

"Yaas," was the reply, "I believe so. Deuced foggy town, that, you know."—Life.

AND THE THERMOMETER FELL.

"I've got an awful cold," said the Weather.

"What are you taking for it?" asked the Wind.

"A drop of mercury every hour."—Puck.

SHE WAS A WOMAN.

"He used to say there was nothing too good for her, but it seems there was nothing too bad for her either.

"How so?"

"She accepted him."—New York Press.

PA'S DOUBLE ANSWER.

Johnny—"Don't they use bark to tan hides with, pa?"

Father—"Yes, my son; but if you ask any more questions this evening you'll find that a slipper does just as well."

HIS VIEW OF IT.

"Every man ought to bless the inventor of the typewriter machine."

"Why so?"

"It furnishes the only means whereby a man can dictate to a woman."—New York Press.

A QUESTION OF PRIORITY.

Bessie Prim—"You mustn't eat with your fingers. Take a fork."

George Prim—"Fingers were made before forks."

Bessie Prim—"Yes; but not your fingers."—Puck.

CAUSE FOR GRIEF.

"My good man," inquired the tender hearted old lady, "are you in any trouble? Why do you stand there wringing your hands?"

"'Cause," replied the tramp, "I jest washed them."—New York Sun.

THE LAST STRAW.

Judge—"This dentist says you requested him to pull your tooth, and after he had done so, got out of the chair and knocked him down."

Treetop—"That's right, but I didn't 'request' him to ask me if it 'hurt,' consarn him."—Truth.

A RAPID DEVELOPMENT.

"The Senator who has just sat down," whispered the guide in the Visitor's Gallery, "began his public career as a page."

"Indeed," said the visitor. "I judge from his speech that he has developed into a volume of statistics."—Harper's Bazar.

A CHEERFUL VIEW.

"What's the matter with you? You look gloomy enough to give one the blues. Are you in trouble?"

"Not yet, but I expect to be. I have a note coming due next week."

"Next week! Why are you worrying over that? Cheer up. You may be dead by next week."—New York Press.

SERIOUS.

Tom—"I called on a young woman last night and received quite a fright."

Dick—"How? Run across her father?"

Tom—"Yes."

"What did he do? Fire you?"

Tom—"No. He said he was glad to see me and asked me to come again and often."—Detroit Free Press.

SHE SAW.

Husband—"You'll have to discharge Dinah and do the cooking yourself."

Wife—"Mercy on us! Are you losing your money?"

Husband—"No, but I'm losing my health."

Wife—"Oh, I see."

Husband—"Yes. The doctor says I eat too much."—New York Weekly.

A TASTE FOR SCIENCE.

Little Dick—"I know how to tell how deep a well is without going down."

Father—"Ah, I'm glad to see my son has a taste for science. You drop in a stone and then count the number of seconds required for the descent, I presume?"

Little Dick—"Oh, no. I tie the stone to a string and then measure the string."—Good News.

WITH AN EYE TO THE FUTURE.

Mr. Billus was looking over the plans of a new barn he was preparing to build.

"I don't care about having any windows on the side facing the kitchen yard," he said.

"But you will need them for light," replied the architect.

"Light nothing!" roared Mr. Billus. "Those windows calls for sixty-four panes of glass, and I've got a boy eight years old! Leave 'em out!"—Chicago Tribune.

HOW IT WOULD STRIKE HIM.

Tapperton—"I am going to ask Mr. Bullion for his daughter's hand tonight, and I am so nervous I can't think."

Mr. Billington (who knows Mr. Bullion)—"No use being nervous. Mr. Bullion is very approachable."

"Eh? Won't he kick me out?"

"Not a bit of it."

"Won't he get mad?"

"No, indeed."

"I am overjoyed. What do you think he will do?"

"He'll laugh."—London Quips.

CONCERNING NOBLEMEN.

They were newly married and were standing on the balcony of the St. Denis Hotel watching the carriages as they drew up at Grace Church on the day of the Craven-Martin wedding.

"My! What a crowd!" she exclaimed, raising her hand to shield her eyes from the sunlight.

"Yes," he answered.

"How happy she must feel to marry a real Earl of a great English family."

"Of course," he said, a little nervously.

"And I suppose she will go to live in some great castle, won't she, dear?"

"Probably." He rapped the railing with his cane and looked up toward Union square.

"I should think every girl in New York would envy her!"

"I suppose they all do," he said sharply, a pained look in his face.

Then she looked at him and smiled the smile of a mischief.

"Aren't you sorry you're not duke?"

He was getting angry. "Yes. But I didn't know the fact that I am a respectable American citizen would make you sorry that you had married me."

"But you forget that every American citizen is a king, dear," said she, as she moved up closer to him and squeezed his elbow.—New York Press.

SOME DIFFERENCE.

"Papa," said the youngest Miss Budd. "The World's Fair—"

"Don't talk to me about the World's Fair," interrupted the old man; "I'll not listen."

"But—papa," pleaded the sweet girl, "it's so wonderful—so instructive—"

"So nothing," retorted papa; "crowded — cramped — uncomfortable—"

"Shall I get you a book of synonymes?" asked Mrs. Budd, smilingly, from the corner, as her husband hesitated for a word.

"No," roared the old gentleman—"No; won't have it."

There seemed to be some doubt as to what he wouldn't have, so the brave girl renewed the attack.

"It won't cost—" she began, when again she was interrupted.

"It isn't a matter of cost," cried Mr. Budd; "not the question of a few hundred paltry dollars—not that. It's the trouble, the care, the nuisance, the bother of the whole thing. The nerve-destroying, sight-seeing accompaniment. No, my dear," he added, placidly, "the thought of money does not enter into it. It is for your own welfare that I object."

"But it would be so nice to travel in a private car," sighed the girl, "and mamma would like it so."

The old gentleman stood aghast. "Private—car," he repeated, slowly.

"Yes," cried the youngest and sweetest of the family, "Mrs. Trotter, whose husband is President of the A. B. C. and O., has invited us to go with her in their private car and see everything without costing a cent. I wish we could go."

"Go!" ejaculated the head of the family. "Are you all crazy?" Go? Why, of course. Who said anything about not going? What! Miss the opportunity of your lives, when such advantages are offered! Write to Mrs. Trotter at once and accept."

"Mamma did," whispered the smiling girl.

"And mamma did right," said pater, beaming at his own joke. "It will be glorious. I have wanted to see the wonderful condition of the age— Eh? by-the-way, does the invitation include me?"

"No," came the soft answer from his wife.—Harper's Bazar.

Tropical Moonstrokes.

There is no doubt that persons are often moonstruck, particularly in the tropics. There is in port to-day the master of a vessel whose face is horribly distorted by a shock from the moon's rays while he was crossing the equator on his way north. On warships no one is allowed to sleep on deck, and the lunar rays, therefore, cannot reach them, but on merchant vessels, where there is less discipline, especially in hot weather, tars sleep on deck, and are often picked up insensible in the morning.—Philadelphia Record.

The "tailor girl" is no longer the ideal of fashion. In spite of the convenience and elegance of the tailor gown, the more ornate French street dresses are preferred by the "smart set," who decide the fashions for the millions.

Some years ago it was considered a mark of good breeding for a lady, while using a knife, fork or spoon, to extend the little finger. Time has caused a change, for it is considered an evidence of extreme affectation to do it nowadays.

Mrs. Anna C. Fall, a young and comely lawyer of Malden, Mass., who has made a name in her profession, has been appointed a Special Commissioner of the Commonwealth for life by the Governor. She can do all that a male commissioner can do, except perform marriage ceremonies and read the riot act.

Mrs. Cleveland was gowned very handsomely when she received the Duchess of Veragua at the White House. She wore a Marie Antoinette black Cotelie silk affair, ruffled with lace and jet and tied with ribbons. She has a very graceful neck and shoulders, and she generally wears her dresses semi-decollete.

Everywhere in her travels the Princess of Wales excites the wonder and admiration of the people on account of her youthfulness in figure and face. Not infrequently the slender woman in the simple black skirt just clearing the ground, the jaunty coat and blouse and sailor hat, the Princess is mistaken for her own daughter.

Mrs. Gladstone is a regular attendant of the House of Commons and sure to be behind the grill when her husband speaks, as she frankly admits to her intimate friends, "to see William home." For "William" has a habit of returning to Downing street insufficiently wrapped up unless Mrs. Gladstone is on hand to insist on what the great statesman terms "undue fussiness."

Of What Use Was His Strength?

Colonel Fred Burnaby, whose ride to Khiva made him famous, was ambitious when a boy to become the strongest man in the world. Appointed a cornet in the Royal Horse Guards at 17, he threw himself into the pursuit of muscle. When a precise examination demonstrated that his arm measured round the biceps seventeen inches, his cup of joy was full. It ran over when, at Aldershot, he lifted straight out with one hand a dumb-bell weighing one hundred and seventy pounds, and no other man in the camp could perform the same feat. He once undertook to hop a quarter of a mile, run a quarter of a mile, ride a quarter of a mile, and walk a quarter of a mile in a quarter of an hour. He covered the distance in ten minutes and twenty seconds. A horse dealer arriving at Windsor with a pair of beautiful ponies that he had been commanded to show the Queen, took them first to the quarters of the officers of the Horse Guards. Some of these, by the way of a surprise, led the ponies upstairs into Burnaby's rooms. When the time came for them to go, the ponies would not walk down-stairs. The horse-dealer was in a quandary, but young Burnaby came to his help by taking a pony under each arm and walking down the stairway. He was barely out of his teens when he was acknowledged to be the strongest man in Great Britain, but he paid the penalty of success in wasted tissues and failing health. His stomach refused all nourishment save that afforded by ice-cream, and the doctor advised him to travel. Absence from duty for a long time, the abandonment of dumb-bells, and the laying aside of his ambition to become the greatest of athletes restored him to comparative health.

Fish Recognize Their Food.

It is a well-known fact that sea-anemones have a sense by which they recognize food. This has been studied recently by Herr Nagel, at the Zoological Station, in Naples, and he has endeavored to localize it. Among other experiments a small piece of a sardine was brought carefully to the tentacles of one of the animals; the tentacle first touched, then others seized the food and surrounded it, and the morsel was swallowed. A similar ball of blotting paper, saturated with sea water, brought near in the same way, was not seized. If, however, the ball was soaked in the juice of fish it was seized with the same energy as the piece of fish, but often liberated again after a time without being swallowed. Blotting paper saturated with sugar acted like the other, but more weakly. If saturated with quinine, it was refused, the tentacles drawing back.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

New Idea.

A Kansas man, B. D. Hanna of Cowley, has a plan for preserving wheat in the bin free from must or weevil. In 1891 he had 1,000 bushels of wheat and placed it in his granary. He first placed a stalk of green hemp in the bottom of the granary, and for every load of forty bushels he placed another stalk or a part of a stalk of green hemp, covering the top, when the granary was full, with ten or a dozen stalks. When he removed the wheat one year later it was bright, plump, and without a sign of must, mold, or weevil.—Live Stock Indicator.

A Matter of Health

IT costs more to make Royal Baking Powder than any other, because its ingredients are more highly refined and expensive. But the Royal is correspondingly purer and higher in leavening strength, and of greater money value to the consumer. The difference in cost of Royal over the best of the others does not equal the difference in leavening strength, nor make good the inferior work of the cheaper powders, nor remove the impurities which such powders leave in the food.

Where the finest food is required, the Royal Baking Powder only can be used.

Where the question of health is considered, no baking powder but Royal can be used with safety. All others are shown by official analyses to contain lime, ammonia or alum.
