"August Flower"

"I am ready to testify under oath that if it had not been for August Flower I should have died before this. Eight years ago I was taken sick, and suffered as no one but a dyspeptic can. I employed three of our best doctors and received no benefit. They told me that I had heart, kidney, and liver trouble. Everything I ate distressed me so that I had to throw it up. August Flower cured me. There is no med-icine equal to it." LORENZO F. SLEEPER, Appleton, Maine.

trees, the cinnamomum camphora, which grows in China and Japan, and the dipterocarpus camphora, of Suma-tra and Borneo; from these two trees its obtained in very different man-ners. In the cinnamomum it exists in root and branch, stems and leaves, which are chopped small and put into anthern vessels, which are heated; these vessels are covered with hoods and rice straw is placed in them; the samphor is volatilized and rises; it yondenses on the straw, from which tis afterward cleared. In the dip-terocarpus it is found in the trunk in solid form, and it is obtained by cut-ting the tree down and splitting it yong; it is found in pieces from one to two feet long and about as thick as a man's arm. A moderate sized tree will yield about ten pounds of eamphor, a arger one about twice that quantity. This kind is more highly esteemed than the other, so that in Japan two hum-dred pounds of native camphor are valued at one pound of the Borneau.--New York Telegram. Till COMPLETE LATTER. WHITER. Dangers in Droughts.

How Camphor is Made.

Long droughts entry in their train certain inevitable dangers to the pub-lic health. The first of these evils is the searcity of water—itself a great source of anxiety to those whose busi-ness it is to supervise the sanitary welfare. Then comes the inadequate flushing of severs and the risk, through water saving practices, of drains beflushing of sewers and the risk, through water saving practices, of drains be coming befouled. The tendency for certain diseases of cholera type to in-crease in intensity—the heat and want of water being conditions for their diffusion—in a hot, dry senson is well known. Finally we get the river courses of the land, which are used as hugo sewers by the towns in their neighborhood, becoming pestiferous channels. Any one who of late days has been in the neighborhood of the Midland 'Railway Station at Leeds must have had practical proof of the pestilential state of the Aire. Sewer gases, acting on relaxed or ordinary sore throats, may produce diphtheria. The drains, sewers and rivers should be purified.—New York Telegram.

Found a Volcano.

Found a Volenno. A party of bicycliste doing Nebraska found a voleano, or what they took for a voleano, the other day. It is situated some four miles south of Ponea. The party heard a peculiar whistling noise, which they could not understand. They undertook to investigate it, and came upon a fissure in the rocks of a bluff, from which issued a strong blast of air, so hot that one of the party, who inadvertently exposed his face to it, found his skin blistered. The air had no oder, and nothing else but the hot air came from the fissure. There is an extinct voleano some twelve miles from the place, and the explorers con-cluded that the fissure was a vent from the same, —New York World.

"Yes; found that all right." "Weren't his clothes there?" "Then what was the trouble?"

"Then what was the trouble?" "Well, just as I was about to open the door I heard a slight noise in the room. A Princess of Method.

A Princess of Method. Although a good listener, says an English paper, the Princess May never hesitates to ask questions if she does not thoroughly understand tha line of argument. She seldom dis-cusses a charity scheme without se-curing a supporter. No matter whether it be in a country house of at home, if the opportunity offers, the wants and wishes of her proteges are always put forward, and the result is generally a check or promise of help. But it must not be supposed that she the coepts other people's facts and fig-ness. On the contrary, she makes her own inquiries and marshals them in a way that would do credit to a financier or a stateman. Order and regularity are with her principles of life—never is an opportunity missed. There is a time for getting ap in the morning, and, when possi-ble, a time for retiring to rest at ight. Part of the day is always set uside for reading and being read to. Umbrellas as Tests of Character. An umbrella, it is said, can be taken as a test of character. The man who always takes an um-brella out with him is a cautous fel-low, who abstains from all specula-tion and is sure to die rich. The man who is always leaving his umbrella behind him is one who go-erally makes no provision for the morrow. He is reckless, thoughtless, always late for the train, leaves the street door open when he goes home late at night, and is absent minicid to such a degree as to speak ill of a baby in the presence of its mother. The man who is always losing his is an unlucky dog, whose bills are

The man who is always losing his ls an unlucky dog, whose bills are not met, whose boots spilt, whose gloves crack, whose buttons are com-ing off, and whose change is a pt to have some bad money in it. Be cau-tious how you lend a five-dollar note to such a man. The man who is perpetually ex. pressing a nervous anxiety about his umbrella and wondering if it is safe is full of uncasiness and low suspicion. Let him be ever so rich, give not our daughter to him, for he will un-joubtedly take more care of his um-orela than his wife.

Curiosities of Judgment. There is a good deal of fun in get ting up tests of people's lowers of judgment, or, rather of their individ-ual powers of vision. One of these is the familiar one of getting a number of people to give their ideas upon the size of the moon. Some will say it looks as large as a hogshead; others that it is no bigger than a soup plate.

Distance is another thing which people are apt to miscalculate, if they judge by means of their eversight. City dwellers generally know that a certain number of blocks make a mile, and plod contentedly along on that knowledge without ever looking far enough away to see how the dis-tance appears. When they get into the country the stretches of fields and hills are deceptive. A point fivo miles away will appear but one when seen across a flat distance and the tranger will start off on a short walk which turns into long one.— Breoklyn Standard Union.
