Died Yesterday at Philadelphia.

Mrs. Hugh Dugan, of Hazle Brook, died yesterday morning at the Presby-terian hospital, Philadelphia, to which examination it was found that he was still alive, though unconscious.

He had been shot in the face, and evidently at close range. The weapon used was a gun loaded with ordinary bird shot. His face was so badly riddled it was with difficulty that he could be recognized. His neck was also badly torn and breast lacerated. He was taken on September 13, while show as taken on September 14, while show as taken on Septem years at Highland, and moved to Hazle Brook about ten months ago.
