UPPER LEHIGH NOTES

Dennis Gallagher, of Providence, Lackawanna county, was here among friends yesterday. He says the former residents of this place, who are now at Providence, are well and contented.

The steam shovel which arrived here last week for No. 5 stripping began operations on Monday. There is a large body of coal to be stripped and the summer will be here again before the work

A Polish boy had his leg injured by being caught in the machinery on the breaker Tuesday. He was taken to his home at South Heberton.

Daniel J. Boyle resumed work again at No. 6. slope. He formerly worked at No. 5, but has been in the Wyoming region for several months past.

Mrs. James G. Brookmire, visited her brother at Summit Hill last week.

Joseph Krommes returned home from the Hazleton hospital on Monday.

Several of our young men are very punctual in attending the Mining and Mechanical School at Freeland.

Thomas Walp, of South Heberton, moved his family to this place on Mon-usual large number of men mostly Hungarians and Italians, call at this place every week seeking work.

Charles Jones had a finger seriously injured on Saturday. Michael Malloy of Sugar Notch, was the guest of John Duddy over Sunday. Misses Celia O'Donnell and Katie Kelley, of Freeland, spent Sunday here rapidly. with their friend, Miss Hannah Ferry.

HIGHLAND DOTS.

A movement has been put in operation here by the company to have the houses on the back street occupied by foreign people and this week several families changed their residences. The English-speaking people will appreciate this move, as, on account of these people not being familar with our customs, to live close to them made life miserable.

Patrick Gallagher, of Mauch Chunk, spent a few days with his parents here

Hugh Shovlin and wife returned from their wedding tour on Monday evening. Miss Annie Gallagher, of Allentown, spent a few days in town this week

Simon Martin, of Beaver Meadow, was among friends here on Sunday. Patrick Gallagher, is on the sick list

Hugh McNelis and wife, of Hazleton, were in town a few hours on Monday. John Brogan, Jr., and sister enjoyed a few days at Allentown last week.

A Hungarian christening took place here on Sunday and what is called a "good time" was had by a large number of these people from this and outside towns.

Patrick Clarke and Thos. J. Boyle will attend the quarterly C. T. A. convention at Lansford on Sunday, October 22.

William Staltz and Peter Kellar were in Schuvlkill county last week attending the funeral of a relative.

Fannie Siddons, the woman who escaped from Laurytown asylum and is said to have been seen between Sandy Run and this place, is causing no end of comment. When everything is considered it appears as if she has not been in this vicinity, for those who claim to have seen her cannot even give a vag description of the woman. The rewa description of the woman. The reward offered by the authorities would effect her capture in short order if a glimpse of her was had in this locality.

ington. Miss Sallie Gillespie returned to Cen tralia, Pa., on Tuesday, after a week's visit to relatives here.

Want a Confessional.

The project of erecting a confessional in the Protestant Episcopal Church of West Chester is being discussed with much warmth because of sermon preached Sunday morning by the rector, Rev. G. Heathcoe Hills, who appears to be in favor of such action. In an interview yesterday he stated that the confessional is in use in many Protestant Episcopa churches, and that the ecclesiastical authorities neither advise nor forbid it, leaving each congregation to follow the dictates of its own conscience in regard to the matter.

Rev. Hill has been rector of the Holy Trinity about two years, and during that time the membership has increased

STUFFED TOMATOES.

Recipe of the French Inventor Who First

Beeipe of the French Inventor Who First Prepared Them.

It is true that the tomato, like the potato, belongs to the family of night shades; but it draws its color from the rays of the sun, instead of vegetating in darkness and burrowing in the earth. You get, perhaps, much more nutriment from the homely brown tuber than from its sunny cousin, but when summer is here, and the very fibers cry out for acids and juices, the tomato is so cooling and grateful a vegetable that you lift it from such humble nomenclature and call it a fruit. You are hardly content with leaving the tomato to the salad bowl. You like to make more of it and have more of it. And it lends itself to savoriness with complete success.

Of the many forms of tomato cook-

Of the many forms of tomato cookery stuffing is the most appetizing.

This way of preparing the rich, ruby balls was invented by an extremely clever Frenchman, Grenold de la Regniere, and here is his own recipe:
Select firm, large and ripe tomatoes and with a sharp knife cut a deep piece from the stem end of each—always the stem end. Press the fruit between the calms to extract as many of the seeds

Make a simple force meat, or use sausage meat, to which add a little minced parseley, shallot and tarragon. In mixing these ingredients ruba clove of garlle over the inside of a bowl, or on a crust or bread, which is to be minced also.

on a crust of bread, which is to be minced also.

The Latin always uses garlie in this eunning fashion, thus giving an indescribable flavor to his seasonings.

Stuff the tomatoes with this force meat, and place them side by side in a dish well buttered. Sift bread crumbs thickly over the top, dot it with bits of butter, a teaspoonful in each lump, and one for each tomato, and bake in a hot oven for thirty minutes. They should be a light brown when properly cooked. Fried minced onions will answer in place of the shallot, also the dry tarragon finely powdered.

The Remarkable Coolne

Story Said to Have Been Related by Gen. Lee—How a Couple of His Men Secured Valuable In-formation.

Gen. Lee was never a great talkes except under one condition, and that was when he had a young lady to entertain, for then his natural gallantry got the better of him and he was a charming companion, though not what might be called loquacious, and he did not care to talk of the war, prefering to choose other topics. It was in camp, however, that he so far yielded to the desires of a couple of fair visitors as to spin a yarn. He had invited two young ladies, cousins of his, to dine with him, and it was to them and at their persuasion that he told the story of the "Two Confederate Scotts." Gen. Lee was never a great talker scept under one condition, and that the story of the "Two Confederate Scouts."

Carefully arranging his napkin on the table in front of him and sitting perfectly erect in his chair, as was his custom, Gen. Lee said: "When this custom, Gen. Lee said: "When this war is over you will hear a great deal of praise given the leaders of the armiles, and in the attempt to do them honor the private soldier will, to a certain extent, be overlooked. This is unfortunate, since some of the noblest and most daring deeds of the war were done by privates on both sides.

"I was once in absolute need of positive information as to the movements of the enemy. My regular scouts were out, so I had to select from a regiment of men who were familiar with the section of the country, if not with their mission. Two able-bodied and intelligent men were sent to me, to whom I intrusted the dangerous task of crossing the river and going into the neighboring village to ascertain from stragglers the coveted information. They made the trip successfully and returned the next noon, not only with the facts, but with the traps and effects of four union soldiers, which they obtained in a manner creditable to the coolest and bravest men which they obtained in a manner creditable to the coolest and bravest men of either army.

"After ferreting out the secrets of the enemy they started on the return trip, but were detained by a terrific rainstorm of several hours' duration, which forced them to shelter until 11/2 THEY SHOT DOWN THE TWO FRONT MEN night. When they reached the river night. When they reached the river they found to their chagrin that it was too much swollen to be crossed in a cance, and the only thing left was to make a bed of the pine tags on the ground and sleep until morning, when they would proceed unmolested. But they had reckoned without their host. The enemy's pickets, who had also been driven to shelter by the rain, were out carly next morning investigating, and seeing fresh tracks suspected something wrong. Five of them started on the trail, plain in the soft earth, and came upon the sleeping seouts. Feeling confident of having their prisoners seeure, they thought to have some inocent fun with them, and proceeded to jub them in the back with the points of their bayonets and request them to come in out of the rain.

"Hello, Johnny, what are you doing sleeping out here in the wet like this? You will take cold. Come on with us out of the damp.'

ing sleeping out here in the wet like this? You will take cold. Come on with us out of the damp.

"But the sleeping confederates could not be aroused, and the sentinels had a big laugh over it, particularly so when one of them would turn partially over and groan out: 'Oh, stop that! What are you poking me for? It isn't time for reveille yet,' as if he thought he was in his own camp safe and sound. Just in the midst of the greatest outbreak the scouts, with the agility of wild animals, sprang from their couches and with their pistols shot down the two front men and then as quickly dropped the other two as the fifth man hastily retreated, leaving his gun behind him.

"When the scouts heard the federal squad advancing on them they were too close to admit of retreat, so they resorted to strategy and feigned sleep, arranging between them that at a given signal both should rise and fire on different men, taking them so by surprise that the others could be shot also before they could get their guns up. The trick worked perfectly, and to it those men not only owe their necks, but the valuable information for headquarters and four good Snider rifles and warm overcoats.

When the panie was at its height an excited porter in a South side hotel asked for half an hour's leave of absence one day in order that he might take his money out of a bank and put it in a safer place. It was granted, and at the end of the stipulated time he returned, looking immensely relieved.

"Well, Jacobs," said his employer, "did you draw your money out?"

"I did, sir," replied Jacobs.
