HIS FAREWELL SERMON.

REV. SPAULDING HAS PREACHED HERE THE LAST TIME.

Brilliant Address Delivered at Bethel Baptist Church Last Evening—Kind Words and Encouragement from the Pastor to the Congregation.

The attendance at Bethel Baptist church at yesterday evening's services was considerably larger than usual, as the pastor, Rev. C. A. Spaulding, who recently resigned, preached his farewell sermon to the congregation. The minister's text and address was as follows:

"Then Samuel took a stone, and set it between Mizpah and Shen and called it Ebenezer, saying, hitherto hath the Lord helped us."—1 Samuel 7:12.

The history of Samuel is of great interest to every bible student. It is the record of a remarkable personage and great events in the march of the kingdom of God. In the second and third chapters of this book which bears his name, we have the fascinating story of his childhood, and several are devoted to the closing years of his life, the seventh alone containing the account of his important work when in the prime of his time. He was the last and best of the Hebrew Judges. I look upon his character and administration with peculiar pleasure and reverence. We see him actively engaged in the reformation of Israel from idolatry, inaugurating and carrying forward a glorious revival of religion. In Israel every revival of religion was succeeded by national prosperity and political independence. The Lord hears the prayers of Samuel and the army of the Philistines are smitten, so they return no more into the coast of Israel during the days of Samuel.

It was about twenty years previous to the event written in the text that Israel had suffered a great defeat by the Philistines, over whom now they have won a glorious victory. In order to connect and commemorate the two important issues Samuel set up a memorial stone, calling it "Ebenezer, the stone of help." The first battle was lost because of the sins of the Israelites, and their mistake in placing too much dependence upon the ark. They did not rely solely upon Jehovah, "and as the Lord of hosts will not give His glory to another, every host will not to that which represents His presence and faithfulness," he allowed them to meet with a humiliating defeat.

But they were taught a great lesson. They were wise, too, in learning it. For previous to the second battle, when the Philistines rose against them, they reported of their transgressions, put away their strange gods, returned unto the Lord with full purpose of heart, and with earnestness and faith believing cried unto Him to save them from the cruel hands of the enemy. Their prayer was answered, for when the Philistines drew near to battle against Israel the Lord thundered a great thunder upon the Philistines, and discomfited them. Then a glorious victory was won by their returning and praying unto God, and depending entirely Him. Now as the sin which formerly caused the defeat, being forgiven upon the repentance of Israel, their pardon was sealed by their gracious conquest in the exact place where, twenty years before, they suffered loss. As Samuel had been instrumental in securing the greatly desired blessing he therefore thought himself in a special manner obliged to erect some grateful acknowledgment, and being exceedingly anxious to keep constantly before the eyes of the people a visible reminder both of the defeat and the victory he set up this: Ebenezer monument. And this is the reason for the name given: "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

At recalling the frequently repeated command of Jehovah to the Israel of old, "thou shalt remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee"; recalling the change in the song of thanksgiving of Deborah and Barak: "They that are delivered from the noise of archers in the places of drawing water, there shall they rehearse the righteous acts towards the inhabitants of his village in Israel"; recalling how Paul and Barnabas came to Antioch gathered the church together and then "rehearsed all that God had done with them," it seemed to me quite imperative we should at this hour on this memorable battleground shout: "Hitherto hath the Lord helped us."

I and first, thus far we have been wonderfully helped in preaching and teaching from the bible. I shall never forget how two years ago the twenty-first of March the conductor cried out Freedom. I stepped from the cars to be plied by my good brother Isaac Davis through deep snow and water to his comfortable home and fireside, where his good wife with her kind hands administered to the wants of the preacher. Two weeks were spent very pleasantly at this home, after which I spent eight months very pleasantly with Brother and Sister Evans, who were exceedingly kind to one so unworthy. In December of 1891 we commenced our housekeeping in Freeland. That which troubled most of all was how under the sun it would be possible to prepare new sermons each week all the time the Lord might keep me in this place, and the other work required. Besides getting up sermons there is required at our hands other work such as pastoral visitations, prayer meetings, funerals, revival services, home duties, reading, general study, letter writing and how could I do all this and preach in such a way as to hold an intelligent congregation. Well how has it been? Alas, how many sermons have been worthless! How lacking in thought; how incomplete and inelegant in diction; how careless in statement; how strikingly, powerless and bewildering the illustrations! Oh, friends, there is no one in this church who has been more frequently humiliated and grieved than the preacher. How often has he despairingly and with an aching heart and throbbing brain wondered why the people still came, Sunday after Sunday, when so frequently the food was so unwholesome and unsatisfactory.

Yet the fact remains there must have been something old and new from the great storehouse of God's eternal wisdom, which has attracted and held the people together. Well, this surely could not have been done if we had not sought constantly to preach the word. And is not this the business of the Christian minister? Is not this his commission? Its importance is evinced by the fact that it is by the preaching of the word it hath pleased God to save them who believe. This is the "fire that cleanseth," the "hammer that breaketh," and the "truth that sanctifieth."

To proclaim the truths of God's revelation to man is not only one of the primal conditions of ministerial success, but also of the advancement of the kingdom of Christ. This is evident from the historical fact that it has been from the pulpit has derived its inspiring and instructive power from the holy scriptures, and the biblical element has predominated, it has exerted its greatest power, yielded its most potential influences and achieved its most glorious results; but when the bible truths have been suppressed or displaced, the pulpit has waned in power and preaching has failed in accomplishing much good.

The sermons of the apostles were composed mostly of quotations from the old testament. Peter and Paul did not preach science, nor politics, nor civil law, nor philosophy, nor morality, nor theology. Peter quoted from Moses and Daniel and Joel, made use of all prophecy, and the Divine Spirit "clothed with marvellous energy" his words so that souls by many thousands were converted. Paul's most eloquent reasonings were based on the assertions of holy writ, and as a result many of the mighty were made to tremble, were convicted of sin, were brought penitently to Christ, and multitudes of the unlettered and despised were made wise unto "salvation." In like manner did many of the Christian fathers preach, and with results similar. And whenever the pulpit has declined from this simple style of preaching to indulge in vain speculations, metaphysical refinements, refutations of worldly theories and theological dogmas, then how soon a spiritual degeneracy has followed.

The Greek and Latin pulpit never attained unto such marked success as when its preaching was men filled with the Holy Ghost, and were men mighty in the scriptures. Chrysostom and Augustine would not stand out before the world as the archtypes of these churches had it not been for their biblical preaching. While many of their successors maintained this primary mode the pulpit was indeed a prodigious power, but when latter men left the truth for the power, were vain and fanciful this power became pitiful weakness.

The same is observable of the English pulpit in the time of Baxter and Bunyan and Flavel and a host of such men. If at the close of the reign of James the First the pulpit was weak and vacillating, exerting but little spiritual influence it was only the result of the beginning of a deplorable departure from the simplicity of biblical preaching. That was truly a dark day for England when the pulpit became the forum for "political harangues" and "exhortations to unity," when sermons in general were only "subtle discussions, wild speculations, and appeals to the fathers," dark unto the time of Whitfield and Wesley, when the preaching of the divine word revived, and sermons were simple, direct, earnest and evangelical.

In glancing at our own country we must readily see that preceding the great spiritual death from which the church suffered so much, the ministry of many had been devoted to other work than that of proclaiming the word of Jehovah. But the great awakening came, the degeneracy of the pulpit was arrested, preaching became more universally biblical, souls were converted, the church put on new strength and more beautiful garments, and went forth in the power of her might. A new era was inaugurated. And thus it has ever been. The history of the public is the living witness to the fact that the preaching of the word of the Lord is the power of the ministry, the glory of the church, the hope of the world.

An exploring party in the Arctic seas heard a sound of music. As they listened it grew nearer and more distinct, sweeter and sweeter, until suddenly the heavens were lighted with a streaming blaze from the north. "The voice of the aurora," cried one. It was so. The sound had apparently been converted into light. I ask if this word of God is not His voice amid the world's darkness, which it is His purpose to transmute into light, and eventually transform earth into His primeval glory. I am persuaded that any tendency to a departure from the preaching God requires was much more eminent a few years than at present. As there was a combination of causes which led to a departure, so there are several causes which have resulted in a revival of biblical knowledge in the pulpit.

Prominent among these has been the preaching of Mr. Moody, and the wonderful success that has attended his efforts to save souls and advance the kingdom of God. By his manner of preaching this unlettered man has shown again one of the secrets and conditions of success in carrying forward the work of the Lord. When the bible is studied in the Sunday school as well, need the question be asked, "What shall the harvest be?" The bible is being more highly exalted in the pulpit, the people are becoming more and more interested in the bible; the ministers more in demand for occupying the important pulpits are those most biblical! A biblical pulpit, a biblical Sunday school, a biblical pen! Say! What will not be the harvest?

Churches of all denominations will come nearer and nearer together; the hour hastened when all creeds shall be scattered to the winds and all see eye to eye; less discord; more harmony; less sin; more holiness; the day dawned ushered when the "Lord shall cover the earth as the waters cover the sea." It is this word of God which is to mould the age and bring about the age of ages when the glorious "light of the gospel of Christ shall girdle the earth with the shining zone of love."

II. In the second place we have sought, and the Lord has helped to proclaim the blessed gospel of Jesus Christ—Note: 1. We did not say to attract, amuse, please, startle, and win the applause of the people. There may be some churches where the more material the methods; the more secular the spirit; the more unspiritual the body, the better pleased the congregation. Their sanctuary was not erected, the minister not called; the choir not engaged for the purpose of the proclamation of the gospel of Jesus. But, friends, if the matchless story of Bethlehem is not an idle tale; if Getsemany is not a mockery and Calvary a stage; if Christ is not merely a historical personage; if the gospel is not a gigantic fraud; if man is not ruined by sin; if the Son of Mary, the Son of Man, the Son of God, did not come into the world to redeem the world; if the business of the Christian minister is not to beseech men in Christ's stead to be reconciled unto God; if there is a heaven, and a hell, too, then it is not only beneath the true dignity of the plenipotentiary of high heaven, but treason and blasphemous for him to seek simply to tickle the itching ears, please the fancy, amuse the minds and win the applause of an adulating congregation. Note again:

2. Not to minister unto the intellectual wants of the worshippers, not to preach science, or philosophy, or politics, or even morality. There is no doubt there has been a tendency on the part of some to preach from secular themes, or at least to secularize sacred themes; to

THREE DEATHS.

Constable Charles Sault, William Lorenz and James Malloy Pass Away.

Constable Charles Sault, who had been ill more or less for the past year, died at his residence on Adams street, in the Points, at 1 o'clock on Saturday afternoon from dropsy. Mr. Sault resided in Eckley for several years, and about fifteen years ago was elected constable of Foster township. He held the office almost continuously since, but has been unable to perform its duties the past few months.

The deceased had quite a reputation for his successful work in locating and arresting offenders of the law among the non-Englishing people, and he was greatly feared by the Huns of the region. He could speak several languages and was ready at all times to do his duty. Mr. Sault was aged 60 years and 12 days, and the funeral will take place at 2 o'clock tomorrow. Interment at Freeland cemetery. The funeral will be attended by the German Workingmen's Beneficial Society and the Harugouri.

At 8 o'clock on Saturday morning William Lorenz died at the residence of Al Geppert on Walnut street. The deceased was a native of Bavaria, Germany, was a resident of Freeland for seventeen years previous to his death. He was aged 50 years 6 months and 11 days. The funeral will take place today at 2 o'clock. The Knights of the Golden Eagle will attend. Services at St. Luke's Lutheran church, and interment at Freeland cemetery.

On Friday a telegram reached here announcing the death of James Malloy, who had been injured at Simmons, West Virginia, about three weeks ago. Mr. Malloy was aged 28 years and was well-known in this section, especially in Drifton, where he resided for many years. At the time of the accident he had been working as a miner and went as an umpire with the ball club of Simons to another town about three miles distant. When returning, owing to the crowded condition of the car, he with several others stood on the platform and a car which was being added to the train was bumped so violently that he was thrown off, the wheels severing one arm and inflicting other injuries.

The remains will arrive here at 7 o'clock this evening, and will be taken to the residence of the mother on Centre street, in the Points. The funeral will take place at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Interment at St. Ann's cemetery.

Increased Water Supply.
The Freeland Water Company has finished the bore hole at the new well on the Birkbeck estate, and a fine flow of water is the result. The well is an open one for a depth of thirty-eight feet, 20x30 in width, with an eight-inch bore hole sunk 252 feet 6 inches from the bottom of the open well, making a total depth of 290 feet 6 inches. A pipe has been placed at the mouth of the bore hole and the flow of water is ten feet above it.

The company started to pump from this well into the reservoir yesterday, and will let the old well at the foot of Front street remain idle for some time to come. They claim to have sufficient water in the new well to answer all the requirements for double the present population of Freeland and it is said to be of superior quality.

A Successful Operation.
From the Speaker.
Doctors Mears and Farrar yesterday performed an operation, that although not new to the medical profession, is comparatively rare—that of skin-grafting or taking skin in a healthy condition from the body of one person and using it on another. The operation was performed on a son of David Byrne, of Audenried, who had his leg crushed in the rollers at Honey Brook breaker some time ago.

The doctors were unable to get the wound to heal successfully and as a last resort decided to perform the grafting operation. This they did by taking small pieces of skin from the leg of Patrick McGeehan and a brother of the injured boy and successfully covering the open wound.

District Attorney John M. Garman, Assistant District Attorney P. A. O'Boyle, Hon. C. Ben Johnson and others will explain the issues of the campaign, and all the Democratic candidates will be here.
