DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Congressman-at-Large nes D. Hancock..... Poor Director, J. E. Altmiller.....

Among the masses of the people the income tax is the most popular measure now before congress. If the Democrats of the senate do their duty, they will not let this feature of the tariff bill be interfered with. They should be prepared to hear all manner of misrepresentation. The enemies of the bill are desperate, and they will leave nothing undone to accomplish its defeat.

The passage of the Wilson bill in the house is a signal victory for those Democrats who have devoted their best energies to the cause of tariff reform. It is now apparent that it was wise to incorporate the income tax in the tariff bill instead of bring ing it up as a separate measure. It is the only form of direct taxation that can be pushed forward at present with safety, and by taking the place of the indirect tariff tax it will give renewed courage to those who are advocating a reformation in the methods of taxation.

Had "Gentleman Jim" Corbett stuck to his desk in that California bank he would probably be today a clerk at $20 a week. But he was not built for funncioning on the graph of built for financiering on so small a scale. For two exhibitions of the art of self-defense, in neither of which he or sen-derense, in neither of which he received a scratch, Corbett was paid over $50,000. He now has an offer of $1,000 per week to play baseball, and declares that he can gather in $60,000 or $75,000 a year from his dramatized fistic performance. It is small wonder that Corbett is elevated to the ningsele of clover by the way. to the pinnacle of glory by the mass of mankind who worship success, re-gardless of the field in which it is achieved.

Tom Johnson's great speech in congress recently has brought forth praise from every part of the country, Republican as well as Democratic papers join in applauding the courage of the distinguished single taxer. The Republicans are proud of his effort, not because they believe in free trade, but because he was brave enough to stand up before the who'e world and declare himself unalterably opposed to every species and form of protection. He did not quibble with words. He came out boldly and unequivocally for absolute free trade, and in few words told how he would abolish protection by simply selling abolish protection by simply selling the custom houses and revenue cutters.

Just at present the average Republican newspaper is worth reading, in order to see how low these organs of monopolists can sink when the source of their master's ill-gotten wealth is threatened. The Wilson bill, for instance, is held up as a British measure and its supporters as traitors to the United States, but those penny-aliners holding positions on Republican papers can't fool the public with such rot. At least one-third of the supporters of the Wilson bill are sworn enemies of Great Britain, and they will never be found advancing that nation's interests at the expense of the United States. With America free from all tariff burdens we could soon rise above England. supporters of the Wilson bill are sworn enemies of Great Britain, and they will never be found advancing that nation's interests at the expense of the United States. With America free from all tariff burdens we could soon rise above England in the commercial world, but that would not be pleasing to many self-styled Americans in the Republican party.

Wall paper will be hung at 250c, per double roll from now until March 1. Also all paper reduced from 2 to 10c, per roll at A. A. Bachman's.

DOGS AS SOLDIERS.

Regularly Enlisted in the Ambulance
Corps of the Germany Army.

The time-honored injunction to "Let slip the dogs of war," is being given a new meaning in Germany. That country is leaving nothing undone to make its army organization the most perfect in Europe, and among the preparations for the next campaign is a regular system of dog drilling. The dogs have been trained to go with the ambulance corps, seek out the wounded, bring them water and help to draw them on little hand-carts to the field hospital. They perform all these services with intelligence and skill.

They are now attached to some of the regiments as regular four-footed soldiers. The first lesson which they have to learn They are taught to repress the outbreak of barking and to replace this mode of signaling by a low growt, addible only to their friends. This is a difficult lesson but a more tedious can be at the ing by a low growl, andible only to their friends. This is a difficult lesson; but a more tedious one has to follow. This is to teach the dog that men are friends and enemies, and that the way to distinguish them is by the color of their trousers. Soldiers are dressed up in French and Russian uniforms and made to whip the dogs, while soldiers in German uniforms are told off to pet the canine recruits and regale them on sausage.

The dogs render good service at the outposts, on account of their quick is sense of hearing; and they are also trained to carry dispatches in a leather stated which is buckled on the iron collar they wen.

Gray Pomeranians make the best soldier-dogs, on account of their great muscular strength, their quickness in learning and their unobtrusive color. For ambulance service, however, Prof. Bungartz, the animal painter, who is interested in this branch of the Red Cross society and has himself trained many dogs for it, declares that Scotch collies are the best breed.

We went along gayly enough, but the shades of night were creeping on, and we had forty miles to go.

Fanny was much amused at the man blowing his horn, and all the funny noises he made to make the bullocks go faster.

Bump! bump! oh, what has happened! I screamed; Fanny laughed; the bullocks had run us down a bank and bumped us up against a tree.

Aftera bit we tried to sleep, but finding the bullocks going at such a pace I called to the driver to stop. Getting no answer, I looked out. No one was on the box seat, and the bullocks were tearing madly on. The driver had gone to sleep and fallen off. At last the bullocks stopped, and the driver appeared much bruised and out of breath. Then our wheels got locked in another cart; but at last, about three in the morning, we came to the rest-house at the foot of the hills.

There we had tea and put some warm clothes on. We found numbers of natives, all waiting with our chairs fastened to bamboos, to carry us and our lingage up the ghaut.

How still it was! Not a sound was to be heard and the quiet stars were twinkling overhead.

The coolies told us that one of their number had been asleep, wrapped in his white cloth, and a cheetah had just crept out of the wood and bitten off his arm. Poor man!—Mrs. J. F. Simith, in Our Little Ones.

Thirteen-Year-Old John Barnum Runs a

John C. Barnum is the youngest railroad conductor in the world. He is thirteen years old. He was born in New York, but has resided in Oregon for the past nine years. His home is in Medford, Jackson county, on the Southern Pacific. On January 20, 1893, his father leased the Rogue River Valley railroad, which runs from Medford
to Jacksonville, a distance of five miles, and as its revenues are light he took charpe of the engine and placed his son on the train as conductor. He wears the conventional cap and uniform, with lettered brass buttons, and carries a punch.

Conductor Barnum likes his work, and says that he gets along nicely except with some of the very smart drummers, who are often on his train, and who guy him about his inability to handle their heavy baggage. He had an amusing experience with a big fellow not long ago, but came out ahead and earned the hearty applause of a trainload of people. The big fellow thought it would be smart to play a trick on the little conductor before the crowd, and when called on for his fare said he had lost his ticket and was out of money.

Johnny knew better, but told the smart party that he must pay his fare or get off. This was sneered at, and the conductor passed on, while his would-be deadhead snickered over the joke. Soon afterward the conductor slipped up behind the fellow, seized his hat and put it in the express chest in the baggage compartment, calmly locking the chest. The big drummer followed him and demanded the hat. but was quietly informed that it would be held until he paid his fare. Before punch.

He fills his position with a dignity and precision beyond his diminutive proportions, and, as the danger on this road from collision is confined to an occasional brush with the hind quarters of a cow, our little conductor's responsibilities are not more exacting than his abilities.

Nature's Own Refrigerator.

The Mexicans do not use ice, but nevertheless there is no country where a man can get a glass of cool, sweet water quicker than in Mexico. The water jars are made of a porous pottery which allows the water to coze out through the material of the tanks and the evaporation keeps it always cool. It is not cold like our ice water, but it is all the better on that account, as a man can drink twice as much and never feel in the least injured, no matter how large his draughts.
