WHY I AM A BOLTER.

The Eckley correspondence of Tuesday's Standard contained the following:
"Some of the Democratic candidates for township honors canvassed the town on Saturday and Sunday and report that the standard of the s McGee, who was defeated at the recent Democratic convention, was openly bolting the ticket," and adds, "the friends of Mr. McGee here regret this action and hope that better judgment

HIGHLAND DOTS.

About the only people in this community who are enjoying life in the oldmunity who are enjoying life in the old-fashioned style are the Hungarians. The slack time has no effect upon the christenings or weddings now any more than in years gone by. On Sunday a christening took place here and quite a number of friends from other towns were in attendance. All sorts of drink, both mild and crazy, were in abundance, the tinding from the poise made it is many voters in town but have declared their intentions for whom they will vote. Still, this is no guarantee that they will fulfill their promises, as the system of voting now allows a man to vote as he pleases, regardless of promises.

Thirteen men and possibly more are Thirteen men and possibly more are entombed in the workings of the Gaylord shaft at Plymouth, and the hope of their rescue is so small as to be most discouraging. Experienced miners say they will never come to the surface dead or alive, as their opinion is that their bodies are buried so deeply that they will never be found. But others more sanguine anticipate that the active measures taken by the company will result in their rescue alive.

The borough school children enjoyed a sleigh-ride yesterday to Matt Seiger's, at Hazleton.

Barrish, when he heard of Cashoe's success, swore that he would have revenue upon his rival, and he kept his word. On Monday night Cashoe releived a note asking him to meet a number of friends at Barrish's boarding house and spend the night with them in celebrating pay-day. Railroad Thieves on the Pennsyl.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company again has trouble with freight car thieves near Sunbury. It seems that the losses have all occurred on the Sunbury, Hazleton and Wilkes Barre branch and according to the reports the total value of missing goods is close to $20,000. Not the slightest trace has yet been found to the thieves, although detectives have been detailed on the case.
