ECKLEY CLIPPINGS.

The two candidates for judge of elec-tion here, Charles Harvey and George Fear, are having quite a time seeing who will fill the office. The vote on election day resulted in each receiving 59 votes, and there is a difference of opinion as to how it should be decided. Mr. Fear has a petition, which he is opinion as to how it should be decided.

Mr. Fear has a petition, which he is getting signed, asking the court to appoint him judge. Among the signers, it is reported, are Demcerats who claim to have voted for Mr. Harvey, yet they have signed his opponent's petition and it is now hard to say who they would like to see appointed. Voting for one man, as they say they did, then signing another's petition, is something ouger. man, as they say they did, then signing another's petition, is something queer. Mr. Harvey's friends claim that the majority inspector has authority to appoint the judge in case of a tie, and this is probably correcf. The candidates for register, Hugh McGill and Andrew O'Donnell, are also tied at 58, but there is not much talk about this office. The poll here is certainly Demoratic, and the candidates of that party, Harvey and McGill, should be given the preference when it comes to appointments.

the constant search, but finally news came from the west that he had been killed. Money was sent on to pay his funeral expenses and the father and mother mourned him as dead. McHale says that for seven years he was private in the regular army. At the end of his enlistment he resumed his wandering life, finally settling on the big ranch of the North Platte river owned by Hon. W. F. Cody, "Buffalo Bill."
About this time he married. A child was born while they lived at the ranch, was born while they lived at the ranch, and it being the first white child born there Buffalo Bill's daughter Agnes presented it with a magnificent robe made of three white wolf skins. He wrote home several times, but receiving no answer thought his parents had moved away and stopped writing. His mother away and stopped writing. His mother says none of his letters ever reached them.
