

COXEY'S ARMY CROWS

A Number of Recruits Accepted at Alliance.

ALLIANCE, O., March 26.—The point was reached by the commander in chief after a march of 14 miles over very rough and muddy roads. The third day out from Massillon was as unpleasant as any of its predecessors. Cold, cutting winds and an occasional snow flurry prevailed till dark. Camp Peffer at Louisville, O., was deserted at 9 o'clock by the army of peace. With three cheers for the major the column swung off on its first long tramp. Curious people gazed at the funny procession as it passed through the country. At Maximo a short stop was made and mile further on the column halted for lunch.

When the college settlement at Mount Union, on the outskirts of Alliance was reached, the gaping crowds began to thicken. The cheering and the waving of the Union flag were distributed to the some every 15 minutes.

From that point to the location of Camp Bunker Hill, at the Alliance fairgrounds, people flocked out to see the odd cavalcade pass by. Tents were raised and the shivering, thinly clad citizens of the communes gathered wood for fires. By the time supper was eaten the distributed things were comfortable.

Alliance is the most enthusiastic town yet reached. Many sympathizers with the movement live here. Supplies to the amount of half a car load came in. A load of hay for the stock was included. The street railway ran excursion cars to the some every 15 minutes.

As evening came on recruits began to come in and Adjutant Smith soon had 75 new men on the rolls. This makes the column 181 strong. The new men are somewhat better appearing than their predecessors.

At 4 o'clock a public meeting was held in the opera house of the town. Commander Coxe spoke to an immense house and was followed by Chief Marshal Carl Browne. Another meeting was held later in the evening.

The independent church, a body of free thinkers, offered their building as sleeping quarters, but it was declined by Marshal Browne.

A very hostile disposition is noticeable in the camp. It is aimed at the cross-sections accompanying the expedition. The men claim that they have been mercilessly abused and want revenge.

It has been learned from a prominent state militia man that the feeling at the state camp has changed and some insecurity is now felt. The feeling of the state officials is that the army may be set upon by disorderly elements in some of the towns to be passed through. For that reason a letter has been written to the captains of all companies along the route. No order to keep arms is given, but the letter advises the officers to have the men ready for muster.

At 5 o'clock last night Commander Coxe left for Massillon, his home, thence to go by a later train to Chicago to attend a stock sale at the Union stock yards. He denies that the trip has anything to do with his financial difficulties. He says he will retain the command at Columbus Thursday.

"IT'S FOOLISH—CHILDISH"

Senator Peffer's Opinion of the Coxe Crusade.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—"Oh, it's foolish—childish," remarked Senator Peffer, when asked about Coxe's army. "I have advised against it from the first," he continued, "and have written letters and in speeches pointed out that no object could be attained by any such haphazard movement as this. It is no spontaneous uprising and organization like the Farmer's alliance. Coxe is a horse trader, horse racer and a gambler to start with, and it is not probable that he could bring about the movement which would be necessary to give weight to such a movement."

"I believe in organization, but there is nothing in this movement that commends itself to the judgment of those who desire to stand up and fight for men and women. This is, of course, one of peace, and I do not anticipate that it will cause any trouble, but the authorities cannot but prepare to see that no brazenness of the peace are committed."

"I do not think I have had such a hearty laugh for months as I did when I read in the dispatches that the army had rested one night at Camp Peffer. I could not believe that I was to be so honored, as I have discouraged the movement from the first."

Recruits from Ohio

HAMILTON, O., March 28.—About 50 recruits to the Coxe commonwealth army are camped at the gravel pit south of this city. Lew Evans, their leader, claims residence at Evansville, Ind., and says that they will endeavor to meet Commander Coxe at Economy, Pa. The crowd appear above the ordinary "hobnob" in dress and are all rampant advocates of Coxe's schemes. They have some provisions with them and say that they have supplies coming. A detachment from Leikland, O., will join Evans and his crowd near Middletown.

The Texas Mob Enjoined.

EL PASO, TEX., March 28.—The army of unemployed under Gen. Fry got away from here, after breaking a switch lock in order to sidetrack a train to secure passage. The train was stopped at Findlay, 71 miles out, and an injunction granted by District Judge Baker to restrain the army from interfering with the railroad was served. This order was executed by Capt. Hughes, of the rangers, and the army moved on to Sierra Blanca, where it is now.

DERBY, Conn., March 27.—Isabella Pratt, the seventeen-year-old girl who caused considerable excitement at a fortnight ago by disappearing in a school in the highway before her home at Derby, has told the story of her adventure, and it proves a very tame and commonplace one, and by no means explanatory of her subsequent illness. She says that when she left school on the morning of March 8, it was in obedience to a sudden and indefinable impulse to get out into the sunshine. She walked over to Derby, just across the river, and then it occurred to her that she would like to go off some where on the railroad. She had some money in her pocketbook and she bought a ticket for Bridgeport.

Some estimates, based on statements of persons in an official position, make it as high as $75,000 to $100,000. Martin says he cannot explain it unless it was the result of carelessness and mismanagement. He has turned over $2,800 of his wife's money and his bondsmen will make good the $8,000 remaining.

BUFFALO, Wyo., March 27.—The wires are just up after the late storm, which commenced last Monday evening and continued a terrible blizzard for over 76 hours without abating. It represents an angel standing out in relief with outstretched wings resting on the arms of a massive cross 9 feet high and 6 feet wide. The carving of the statue is something remarkable, and it is said to be the best piece of work ever executed in this city.

The plan contemplated securing an immense tract of land in Queensland for the purpose of making the experiment of cooperative colonization. The land was purchased and a large number of families were brought from Australia to locate farms. LEADER OF A BAD LOT

Minister Thurston's Opinion of Davies.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—Mr. Thurston, the Hawaiian minister, was asked if he had anything to say regarding the published remarks of Theophilus H. Davies, in which occurred declarations to the effect that the provisional government are "adventurers," that they are maintaining "a reign of terror" in Honolulu, that the community is at the mercy of a lot of spies and broken-down Germans and Portuguese, and in which he describes it as "utter weakness" and denies that it is about to establish a permanent republic. Mr. Thurston replied:

"I don't know that there is much that needs to be said. After the report by Mr. Willis to the president, that the members of the provisional government are without exception men of integrity and public spirit, and that the royalists, of whom Mr. Davies is a leader, are a bad lot, it does not seem necessary to make a reply to every man who can get himself interviewed. This person is what may be called a 'professional mischief maker.' He has for years been the head and front of an unresisting anti-American, anti-royalist faction in Honolulu, and although he has become a rich man through the bounty of the United States by means of the reciprocal treaty, he is always ready to go out of his way to oppose and injure the advancement of American interests in Hawaii. Only a couple of months prior to the revolution in Honolulu he was a series of letters to the papers opposing the establishment of a United States naval station at Pearl Harbor under any conditions, the reason, among others, that it would become a nest of 'criminals,' 'bargainers,' 'defaulters' and 'scoundrels,' who would sail out and prey upon the surrounding country. He was so proud of this correspondence that he had it printed in pamphlet form and sent it around broad leaf."

"He has been spending three or four months in Hawaii, making the most frantic efforts to stir up strife and overthrow the provisional government. He has utterly failed and is now resuming his efforts here. The law providing for the deportation of dangerous persons and suspicious characters who are attempting to overthrow the government, was provided for just such men as Davies."

"As to the reign of terror, it exists only among the royalists under the hood of Lillokalan, who are gradually realizing the terrible fact that the monarchy and its perquisites have gone forever.

"Davies' prophecies that no republican government will be formed. The provisional government has a most expiring habit, however, of failing to fulfill royalist prophecies. Amid all this talk the government had gone quietly about its business, paid its debts, accumulated a large treasury surplus than there has been for years, kept the peace, and is now proceeding with deliberation and dignity to establish a republic by calling a constitutional convention in the selection of which all voters, foreign and native, are to be allowed equal voice, the one condition being the renunciation of allegiance to the monarchy and an oath of support to the republic."

"Davies and those who think we should continue the monarchy under the hood of Lillokalan claim that the choice as between a republic and the monarchy should be put to vote. We do not propose to do anything of the kind, however. That question has been settled by arms, and we do not propose to reopen it for discussion any more than the United States opened the question of state's rights and slavery after the war had settled those questions. The monarchy is a thing of the past. The people of the islands are looking forward to a living republic, and not backward to a dead monarchy, and they will overcome all obstacles and achieve their object. Mr. Davies and his fellow-royalists have planted themselves in the road in front of the car of progress. If they do not get out of the way the car will run over them, that is all."

STUDENT TAYLOR'S CASE.

He Must Stay in Jail Until He Purses Himself of Contempt.

WATKINS, N. Y., March 28.—Judge Smith has rendered his decision in the habeas corpus case of F. L. Taylor, the Cornell student, who was sent to jail by Judge Forbes for contempt. The prisoner is remanded to the sheriff of Tompkins county under the commitment upon which he is now committed.

The decision is an exhaustive one, and closes by saying that the contempt for which Taylor is now imprisoned is for not answering the questions put to him, or refusal to make his only answer: "I throw myself upon my privileges." If he shall appear before the grand jury at its next meeting and there make answer to the questions which have been asked him, or make oath that the answer to such questions will tend to criminate him, he may then claim his privilege and will have purged himself of the contempt for which he now stands committed.
