

LUCKLESS BABIES.

A Strange Phase of Life in New York & Other Large Cities.

It used to be thought that a mother's tenderness was something no power could efface, but when one examines the condition of the suffering indigent, and especially of those who owe it in some degree to themselves that they are in want, one is led to modify such opinion.

That a mother can desert her newborn baby, leaving it to the mercy of the race, or even do so knowing that speedy death is the best thing that can happen to it, we are all aware; but when a child is found creeping in the garbage of a tenement house yard, it seems as if the child had been in the mother's arms long enough for love to have grown so that such desertion would be impossible.

It should move the heart of every mother who has been kept from temptation herself, and whose rosy darlings are shielded by warm tenderness, to think of these wretched little beings, who would be too amazed, if brought into such happiness as theirs, to know what it meant.

Female Clerks in Drug Stores. Why don't more druggists employ one woman clerk at least? One meets women behind the counter of most tradesmen, but they are seldom seen here, where they would often be most peculiarly welcome.

GROWING TOMATOES.

Training the Vines So That They Are Things of Beauty.

Thinking that your readers might be interested in the manner in which I grew a tomato vine eight feet in height, I have had an illustration made which, with the description I give, will make it very easy to understand.

First, procure two poles three or four inches in diameter at the large end, and ten feet in length. Place them on the ground side by side, so they will be about twenty inches apart at the large end and ten inches apart at the small end.

Then nail on a flat on the other side of the pole, and half way between the first and second slats. Fasten the vines to this slat, and as the vine keeps climbing upward, you must keep putting on slats, and fastening the vines to them.

Chenille flowers in shades of red from palest pink to deepest crimson, also in yellow and white, are a rich garniture for hats. Six petals compose a flower, each being formed of a piece of fine wire inches long, covered with chenille and bent into a loop as shown in cut.

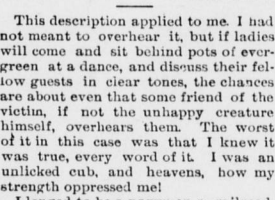

French nougat is one of the most delicious of confections, and this is the way to make it. Be sure the nuts are fresh, and prepare a generous supply. You must have Brazil nuts, peanuts, hickory nuts and almonds, and also some walnut meats.

COMRADES.

'War ain't over—not a bit! Every night 'at comes Bill and me (been thar, you see) Jes' muster all the drums!

We talk an' talk, an' have our say—Go over all the ground! An' Bill, he makes the war his way, An' then jes' lays it down!

BRUTE FORCE. RUTAL, isn't he? He always terrifies me. "Oh, I don't know. It seems rather hard to say that I have never heard that he is cruel."

This description applied to me. I had not meant to overhear it, but if ladies will come and sit behind pots of evergreen at a dance, and discuss their fellow guests in clear tones, the chances are about even that some friend of the victim, if not the unhappy creature himself, overhears them.

Do you know, Mr. Markham," she said, as we sat out afterwards, "that I am often half-frightened of you; you look so fierce."

"I'm half frightened of you," said "Well, I am pretty strong, and men aren't quite like women, you know."

As I bid her good night, I felt my hand tremble when I held hers. I should not have minded putting the years back a bit, to those times when the strongest man carried off the girl he wanted and kept her. I did not like the way she smiled at Harold, for I knew by experience how "gold gilds the straightened forehead of the fool."

HOW TO SLEEP SOUNDLY.

Put Pillows Under the Feet Instead of Under the Head.

An Important Discovery Made by a German Scientist—Women Like the Professor's Scheme and Say It Works Very Well.

A most important discovery has recently been made by a German professor that will materially improve the physical and mental strength of all who follow its lesson, if the discovery is really genuine, as the professor claims it to be.

Superstition or legend or the custom of years has had an influence upon us while we slept that has been almost as great as the like influences while we are awake.

The advantages claimed by Prof. Fischer resulting from this manner of lying are that the intellectual repose is much more profound than obtained by the present prevailing method; also that amelioration of the nervous system is greater; that the effect on the veins is better, and consequently the condition of the blood is improved.

For women especially this mode of sleeping is recommended by the professor, and he claims to be in receipt of endless communications from ladies throughout Germany who have found untold relief in following his simple prescription.

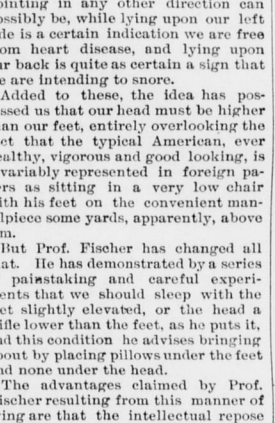

Health and Beauty. Health, its understanding and preservation, is a sad just now. Lectures on the subject in any of its branches are eagerly patronized by society leaders.

It was only a few minutes after when I opened my eyes, for those run-away fellows were trying to lift me, but I raised myself, and saw to my amazement that the rubbly old walls were still standing.

As I bid her good night, I felt my hand tremble when I held hers. I should not have minded putting the years back a bit, to those times when the strongest man carried off the girl he wanted and kept her. I did not like the way she smiled at Harold, for I knew by experience how "gold gilds the straightened forehead of the fool."
