Cataract Cannot Be Cured

With local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease, cataract is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must use internal remedies. Hall's Cataract Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Cataract Cure is not a quick medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surface. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing cataract. Send for testimonials free.

Mint and Its Culture.

In some gardens mint is regarded as a weed. It grows so luxuriantly and spreads so much that it encroaches all over the ground. In large gardens it is often given a great deal of latitude, but in small ones it has to be restricted. This is generally done by nailing four boards together like a frame and planting it inside this. A piece from eight to twelve feet long and four feet wide will furnish mint to meet the whole of the demand of a large family. Those who complain that mint does not grow freely with them should try it in this way. The boards should be from ten inches to one foot in depth, and if the soil is raised up inside half this height and a quantity of grit or sand, and manure is put in, it will always grow freely, and by covering it over in early spring it will be ready very early. Mint may be raised from seed sown in April, and it may also be increased by lifting the roots and dividing and replanting them at once. It requires good drainage, and where this exists under a top dressing of farm-yard manure may be put over it every spring, or so often as it shows signs of becoming weak. As a dressing for various kinds of meats, mint is a great addition to the menu.

A GIVE AWAY.

A young "Toulousain," who had left his native city to study medicine in Paris, and had been applying his time and the paternal remittances to a very different purpose, recently received a visit from his father, who intended making a short stay in the capital to inspect its wonders. During an afternoon stroll together, the day after the elder's arrival, the father and son happened to pass in front of a very large colonnade building.

"What is that?" said the senior, carelessly.

"I don't know, but I'll ask this sergeant de ville," replied the student.

On the query being put, the official curtly and distinctly remarked: "That! The School of Medicine." —Galungau.

A Noted Indian Fighter.

A short time ago William Gable, a young man, was working near a big rock in the northwestern corner of Morgan County, Ohio. He accidentally knocked some moss off it and revealed two or three letters chiselled in the surface. He began to dig at once, and removing the remaining moss found a message from Lewis Whetzel, or Wetzel, as he is known to pioneer history. On the face of the rock is the legend "Enjoy the peace which I have prepared for you," and to the right of this is the inscription cut into the sandstone: "Engraved by me, Lewis Whetzel, Born in Vir., Feb. 29th, 1752."

The discovery of this rock, long buried beneath the wood's moss and leaves, brings to mind once more the wonderful deeds of daring of Whetzel. Close to this rock ran the old Federal trail, which led from Grave Creek to the Scioto town. It crossed the Muskingum River at the present town of Gaysport. The town of the Delaware Indians was Duncans Falls, five miles up the river. The trail ran close to this lettered rock on the high ridge just above it, and it is very likely that Whetzel did the work while on one of his scouting expeditions along this trail. It was on one of these that Whetzel, armed only with his knife and tomahawk, attacked a camp of four Indians. Three of them he killed; the fourth ran for his life and escaped.

Whetzel was a wonderful man in many respects. Not very tall, only five feet nine inches, he was a man of enormous strength. His shoulders were those of a giant and his chest gave notice to all that he could run a race with any savage and win. He was as dark and swarthy as an Indian, and his face was deeply pitted with the smallpox. His hair, and this was his special pride, reached, when combed to its full length, to the calves of his legs, and every Muskingum Indian had sworn to have his scalp. His eyes were black and shone with a fierce fire. He feared nothing. His name will be forever connected with the history of the border along the Ohio and through West Virginia. —Toledo Blade.

Is Ice Cream Milk?

The question, "Is ice cream to be considered as milk?" came up in a Glasgow case of some importance from a sanitary point of view, which was recently settled in the British High Court of Judiciary. Its prominent features were these: During last summer and autumn some cases of fever were found to have been caused by the use of ice cream, and at the same time some very unsavory revelations were made as to the manner in which the manufacture and storage of ice cream are carried on in English cities, particularly in the overcrowded and dirty dwellings of foreigners, into whose hands the trade has largely fallen. In order to bring these dealers under the sanitary regulations applicable to purveyors of milk, the Glasgow local authorities brought a test case before the Sheriff's Court and won it; the Sheriff's decision was reversed on appeal by the higher court, a man who sells ice cream, therefore, which consists almost entirely of milk, with a little flour and flavoring, is not a purveyor of milk in the sense which the English statute requires, and is consequently not amenable to the law. —New York Sun.

Idaho's Curious Natural Gas Spring.

There is a natural gas spring in Idaho that is one of the most remarkable sights ever witnessed. It is about 100 miles from Boise City, and it is at the bottom of a canyon. The rock here seems to be of a porous nature, and there are innumerable small holes and fissures. Riding along the canyon one day prospecting I dropped a lighted match, and immediately a bright blue flame sprang up. This lighted another and that another, and so on, until a space of about an acre in extent was covered with these flames, each arising about a foot in height. It was a beautiful sight, and the lights were still burning when I left there. The find is of no practical value, as the fact that the gas issues from the surface of the earth is proof positive that the principal position of it has escaped and it no longer exists in paying quantities, but as a curiosity I have never seen anything that equaled it. —St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Shylock Quotation.

A good story is told on ex-Pension Commissioner Black. Everyone who knows Black is aware that he is one of the most dignified legal practitioners in the West, and that he is also somewhat enamored of the class. Not long ago he was attorney in a usury case at Springfield, Ill., and in his address to the jury he quoted very freely from the "Merchant of Venice" and wound up by saying that although the plaintiff could demand his pound of flesh in the terms of his bond did not enable him to go beyond this.

The attorney for the alleged usurer seemed very much amused at the line of argument Mr. Black was taking, and when that gentleman's peroration was concluded he rose and remarked with somewhat of a pitying tone that Brother Black had recently held a brief in a dressed-beef case and that he had got the two cases mixed up, concluding by assuring the jury that there was no flesh in the case at all, but only money. A legal friend of mine, who solemnly asserts he was in court on the occasion, says the look of disgust on Mr. Black's face would have been worth a small fortune to any artist who could have reproduced it on canvas.

A Fish with a Corset.

Forest and Stream's eaks of a curious find in the Cape Ann fish market, at Gloucester, Mass. It was nothing less than a mackerel with a rubber band around the body. The band had been put on the fish when quite small, and stayed there in spite of the rapid growth of the wearer. The fish's body under the band did not grow, which caused a depression in the full-grown body of about three inches in depth. The depression was covered with a healthy skin in no way unlike that on the rest of the body. The fish measured in length 14 inches, diameter of body each side of the depression 7 1/2 inches, diameter of depression 5 inches. The fish was undoubtedly in a healthy condition, and the band was strong and could be stretched like any other band.

Can You Lose the Grip?

Losing one kind of grip is worse than taking another, and when thousands are in training for the field sports of summer months, it is well to be advised by those who know all about it.

Mr. F. C. Ferguson, 1653 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes to the point March 1, 1893. He says "I would like to add my testimony to your already long list. While playing ball I sprained my arm at the elbow and a shoulder. It interfered with my playing considerably and I lost my many good chances professionally. I tried everything I could think of, but I could get no relief. A doctor advised that the only thing to be done was to give the arm a long rest. A friend, however, recommended St. Jacob's Oil, which I tried, with the result that I was completely cured, and I have since pitched a great deal with no signs of my former trouble, which, by the way, retired once and for all."

Assist nature a little now and then with a gentle laxative, or, if need be, with a more searching and cleansing cathartic, thereby removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels, and toning up and invigorating the liver and quickening its tardy action, and you thereby remove the cause of a multitude of distressing diseases, such as headaches, indigestion, biliousness, skin diseases, boils, carbuncles, piles, fevers and maladies too numerous to mention. It is if people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctors' services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases.

Signs of Health.

You don't have to look twice to detect them—bright eyes, bright color, bright smiles, bright in every action.

Disease is overcome only when weak tissue is replaced by the healthy kind. Scott's Emulsion of cod liver oil effects cure by building up sound flesh. It is agreeable to taste and easy of assimilation.

Prepared by Scott & Bown, N. Y. All Druggists.

The subject of the above portrait is a prominent and much respected citizen, Mr. Robert Manson, of West Rye, N. H. Where Mr. Manson is known "his word is as good as his bond." In a recent letter to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Chief Consulting Physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., Mr. Manson says: "Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the best pills I ever took for the liver. All my friends say they do them the most good."

This opinion is shared by every one who once tries these tiny, little, sugar-coated pills, which are to be found in all medicine stores. The U. S. Inspector of Immigration at Buffalo, N. Y., writes of them as follows: "From early childhood I have suffered from a sluggish liver, with all the disorders accompanying such a condition. Doctors' prescriptions and patent medicines I have used in abundance; they only afforded temporary relief. I was recommended to try Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I did so, taking two at night and one after dinner every day for two weeks. I have retained the dose to one 'Pellet' every day for two months. I have in six months increased in solid flesh twenty-five pounds. I can in better health than I have been since childhood. Bloating, flatulency and unpleasant feelings after meals have completely disappeared."

John A. O'Berry

Assist nature a little now and then with a gentle laxative, or, if need be, with a more searching and cleansing cathartic, thereby removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels, and toning up and invigorating the liver and quickening its tardy action, and you thereby remove the cause of a multitude of distressing diseases, such as headaches, indigestion, biliousness, skin diseases, boils, carbuncles, piles, fevers and maladies too numerous to mention. It is if people would pay more attention to properly regulating the action of their bowels, they would have less frequent occasion to call for their doctors' services to subdue attacks of dangerous diseases.

That, of all known agents to accomplish this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are unequalled, is proven by the fact that once used, they are always in favor. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to further constipate, as is the case with other pills. Hence, their great popularity with sufferers from habitual constipation, piles, and indigestion.

The "Pleasant Pellets" are far more effective in arousing the liver to action than "blue pills," calomel, or other mercurial preparations, and have the further merit of being purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system; no particular care is required while using them.

Composed of the choicest, concentrated vegetable extracts, their cost is much more than that of other pills found in the market, yet from forty to forty-four "Pellets" are put up in each sealed glass vial, as sold through druggists, and can be had at the price of the more ordinary and cheaper made pills.

Dr. Pierce prides himself on having been first to introduce a Little Liver Pill to the American people. Many have imitated them, but none have approached his "Pleasant Pellets" in excellence.

For all laxative and cathartic purposes the "Pleasant Pellets" are infinitely superior to all "mineral waters," sodas, powders, "salts," castor oil, fruit syrups (so-called), laxative "lozenges," and the many other purgative compounds sold in various forms. Put up in glass vials, sealed, therefore always fresh and reliable. One little "Pellet" is laxative, two gently cathartic.

As a "dinner pill" to promote digestion, take one each day after dinner. To relieve distress from over-eating, nothing equals them. They are tiny, sugar-coated, antacid granules, scarcely larger than mustard seeds. Every child wants them.

Then, after they are taken, instead of disturbing and shocking the system, they act in a mild and natural way. There is no reaction afterwards. Their help lasts.

Accept no substitute recommended to be "just as good." They may be better for the dealer, because of paying him a better profit, but he is not the one who needs help.
