Sugar at Retail.

Grocers everywhere assert that there is little or no profit in retailing sugars, and housekeepers confirm this by saying that there is small economy in buying sugar by the keg. The tradition touching the small profit in handling sugar at retail is certainly more than 100 years old, for a writer in the middle of last century affirmed that London grocers of that day were often out £60 to £70 a year for paper and packthread used in wrapping up sugar, and some grocers would not sell sugar to a customer who did not at the same time purchase some other at the same time purchase some other article.—Chicago Herald.

Not only do the song birds by destroying insects earn their right to eat a few berries, but even the crow that generations of farmers have scared and killed, is said to prefer insects to corn, and often to be in the very act of destroying pests when farmers suppose him to be maliciously bent on undoing the work of the sower.

A Duck Drowned by an Oyster.

A Duck Drowned by an Oyster, Captain Edward A. Caulk of the steamer Tangier yesterday saw a dead
"fisherman" duck floating on the water near Claiborne, Md. The duck was picked up and the cause of its death then became apparent. The fisherman duck feeds on fish and oysters. The duck which was found dead had evidently stuck its long and narrow bill into the open shells of a feeding oyster. The oystershut its shells together on the bill. It is supposed that the duck tried to shake off the oyster but failed, and that the weight of the oyster hanging to the bill finally pulled the duck's head under water and drowned the fowl. The oyster was not heavy enough to pull the duck's body beneath the water.—Baltimore

SONG.

There's beauty in the dawning light, And twilight fair or starlit night Has each its charm and grace, But lovelier still on earth to me, The fairest thing my eye can see, The beauty of thy face.

There's calmness on the ocean's breast
As deep and blue it seems to rest
'Neath bluer heavens above
But deeper, calmer still to me
Than ever sea or sky can be,
Thine azure eyes, my love! There's music in the running stream,

And music when the woodlands seem Awake with songs of birds;
But sweeter, dearer still to me
Than nature's voice can ever be,
The music of thy words,

Sewage in Villages.

Sewage in Villages.

In the course of an excellent article on sewage, in the Century, Col. George E. Waring, jf., says:

The method of disposal by irrigation or filtration is an extremely itexible one. It is susceptible of modifications that will make it suitable for a great variety of circumstances, and for a wide range of soil and of surface conformation.

It is equally available for a single house, for a village, or for a town, and its processes are so nearly automatic that its use on a small scale entails no material cost or care in maintenance. With a small area for surface distribution near the house, it is only necessary to provide a simple intermittent flush-tank, with an outlet that can be changed to either of the two or three alternate sections into which the area is divided, each large enough to absorb a few hundred gailons of water. Little attention will be needed beyond the periodic directing the flow to one section or to the other. It is desirable that this ground should be withdrawn from full sight, but only for esthetic reasons; there will be no odor.

In like manner the sewage from a large hotel, or from a dozen houses, or from a village or a town, may be controlled with only such increase(of cost and attention as the larger service entails. The important recent improvements in methods of application have been in the direction of simplicity, and the following facts are now fully established:

1. House drainage is practically odorless when thest produced. It does not become oflensive unless retained until it putrelies—only after a day or more.

2. It applied when fresh to the surface of suitable ground, its water

If applied when fresh to the

2. If applied when fresh to the surface of sultable ground, its water is removed in a condition fit even for safe drinking, and its impurities are completely destroyed, both in winter and summer, without offense or danger of any kind.

In short, the bugbear of sewage disposal has been done away with, and we are now in a position to adopt simple and unoblectionable methods, which will produce a perfectly satisfactory result in all but very exceptional cases.

About six years ago the boilily troubles which finally caused his retirement at a time when his mental faculties were in the zenith of their strength, began their encrockment upon his naturally strong constitution. A few days ago a Kentucky Post reporter called upon Judge Rice, who in the following words related the history of the causes that led to his retirement: "It is just about six years since I had an attack of rheumatism, slight at first, but soon developing into Sciatic rheumatism, which began first with acute shooting pains in the hips, gradually extending downward to my feet.

Wooden Swearing.

There is a kind of swearing, which many people are given to, when they are angry. Instead of giving ventio their feelings in eaths, they slam the doors, kick the chairs, stamp on the floor, throw the furniture about and make all the noise they possibly can.

It is practically the same thing as swearing—springs from the same kind of feelings exactly, but avoids saying those awful words. They force the furniture to make the noise, and so I call it wooden swearing.—Texas Siftings.
