FREELAND, PA., OCTOBER 1, 1894.

Senator Hill, in his speech at the New York state convention, said: "The Democratic party stands as it has ever stood, for that religious liberty which is guaranteed to all by our constitution. Our duty is plain and we shall perform it, and if, perchance, adherence to the right brings disaster, we shall bravely accept our fate and take our place in private station by the side of our proscribed fellow-citizens until reason, justice and true religious freedom shall again resume their sway, as surely they will."

The Catawissa News claims that every living thing in the Susquehanna river will be driven from it when the water in the Harleigh, Ebervale and Jello mines is tapped through the Jello tunnel. The News is upholding those who are trying to restrain the company operating the tunnel for that purpose, and says: "The time is coming, and is not far distant either, when there will be a battle of the ballots upon this very question; then it will be the coal operators against the people. This wholesale pollution of the fairest streams of water God ever placed for man's benefit must be stopped."

Colonel Singler indignantly denies that he has given up hopes of being elected governor. He read the riot act a week or two ago to the Democrats in the third congressional district, and some Republicans immediately shouted that he had thrown up the sponge. Such a conclusion was made only by those who did not know Singler. He is a fighter and belongs to the class that don't run away. The colonel is in the field until the polls close on election day, and every citizen who wishes to register himself against class legislation and unwholesome laws in Pennsylvania must not forget to give his vote to the editor of the Philadelphia Record.

If the Democrats will have enough left to hold a reputable caucus after the coming election they should get together and adopt some sort of a platform which will let the general public know where they stand. In New York they have denounced the income tax, a Democratic measure, and in Pennsylvania they are trying to elect men who publicly acknowledge themselves as protectionists. In Ohio they want free silver, in Massachusetts they demand a gold standard. On scarcely a question of national importance are two state conventions of the same opinion. The party is rapidly going to pieces and will continue so until it returns to the Chicago platform and also rids itself of the leeches who are on its back.

About a year or so ago Congressmen McAleer and Mutchler headed the combine that was going to smash every one of Cleveland's plans unless the president agreed to turn over to them the full control of official patronage in their districts. Both men thought they were so secure of continued power in their own districts that nothing would interrupt their political careers, yet how easily each was disposed of by the Democratic conventions? Puffed up with conceit they considered themselves bigger than the party, but now they realize that they are very little potatoes in the political world. Some of the well-fry kickers, such as Billy Hines, were so unfortunate as to receive renominations, but they will be sent to keep company with their anti-administration leaders.

The Democratic congressional campaign committee, according to our Washington correspondent, claims only six Democrats from Pennsylvania, instead of the present ten. Among the four districts which are considered lost is the twelfth, a remarkable confession from the national party managers. The estimates of the chairman, Senator Faulkner, are very conservative, but if the leaders considered it even doubtful they would not concede the district so willingly to the Republicans. Coming, as this does, so early in the campaign, goes only to prove the claims made by the Tribune for more than a year past, that Congressman Hines cannot be re-elected. Every effort of the party workers should now be spent in trying to save the county ticket from going down to defeat with him.

CENTRE STREET, FIVE POINTS.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, September 28, 1894.

Chairman Faulkner, of the Democratic congressional campaign committee, consented this week for the first time to give out his estimate of the result of the congressional elections. He figures, after making a most liberal allowance for doubtful districts, too liberal many Democrats think, that there will be in the next house 190 Democrats, 156 Republicans and 10 Populists. As instances of his liberality in making allowance for doubtful districts it may be mentioned that he only claims the election of 9 Democratic representatives in Illinois, while the estimate of the Republican campaign committee concedes the election of 11 Democrats in that state; he only claims 5 in Louisiana, while the Republicans concede 6; in South Carolina he claims 4 and the Republicans concede 5. In Pennsylvania each side estimates on 24 Republicans and 6 Democrats. The defeat of the Democratic candidate in your district is conceded by Senator Faulkner. The present congress has 29 Republicans and 10 Democrats from Pennsylvania. The chairman counts on again electing the candidates in the third, eighth, ninth, seventeenth, twentieth and twenty-eighth districts. This means Republicans as successors of Messrs. Hines, Keilly, Belzhoover and Sipe. The Republican committee's estimate on the country for the next congress is 200 Republicans, 147 Democrats and 9 Populists.

Senator Hill is just the sort of a man who makes strong friends and bitter enemies in his own party, but the bitterness of his enemies will concede that he has a wonderful hold on the Democratic voters of New York, which he has demonstrated time and time again. Circumstances having made it necessary that the Democratic candidate for governor of New York should be a man who could bring out the full Democratic vote of the state, which is always a majority, it logically followed that Senator Hill was that man. For that reason Democrats in Washington, whether they be his friends or his enemies, were pleased with Senator Hill's nomination and are confident that he will be elected. A member of the cabinet was asked by a personal friend how he supposed President Cleveland would regard the nomination, and he quickly replied: "Why, just as all other good Democrats do; as the best that could possibly have been made under existing circumstances. The president wishes New York to be carried by the Democrats, and I know he believes that with Senator Hill at the head of the ticket it will be." "But what about 1896?" queried this inquisitive friend. "Let us win the campaign of '94," replied the member of the cabinet; "then we can begin to discuss the probabilities and possibilities of '96."

Public Printer Benedict has made a decided reform in the government printing office by abolishing piece-work and putting all the printers on time. Nothing around that establishment has caused more bickering and jealousy than the piece-work system, which a portion of the men worked under. It made a man's pay dependent more upon luck in striking "phat," or the favor of his foreman than upon his merits or his skill as a printer. By putting them all upon time-work the pay is equalized and it is believed that the work will be better done.

The new tariff abrogated all the reciprocity treaties made under the McKinley law, and the formal notice served upon the state department by Brazil of its intention to abrogate the reciprocity treaty between that government and the United States on January 1, 1895, was merely a compliance with the expressed terms of the treaty, which were that either country should give the other three months notice. So far as this country was concerned, the treaty was abrogated the day the new tariff became a law. Mr. Mendonca, the Brazilian minister, when asked what effect he thought it would have upon the trade relations of the two countries, said: "The rates will not be materially raised by Brazil, and I am expecting this country to make large increase in sending manufactured wools to Brazil as a result of the new woolen manufacturing induced by free raw wool in the new tariff law. Outside of these items few changes will occur by the termination of the reciprocity."

White Haven, August 19, 1894.

To whom it may concern. This is to certify that we have a Home Comfort steel range in our home and find it in every way, so far, as represented by the salesman, H. C. Robinson. Our water-tank boils quickly, it bakes nicely, takes up a small amount of room in the house, is certainly cleaner and neater than cast-iron stoves, no ashes flying, the closets are very nice and handy to warm victuals in and for what time I have used it, would not take two others for it.

Home Comfort Ranges.

People using the Home Comfort steel ranges speak as follows:

Freeland, September 3, 1894.

We have a Home Comfort steel range that we purchased from the company's salesman last month. It has proved itself a comfort. We have had it in use about three weeks and tested it quite thoroughly. For roasting, baking and boiling, in fact any kind of cooking, it cannot be excelled. We therefore cheerfully recommend it to anyone wishing a fine range. It takes about half as much fuel as our cast range did to give the same amount of heat.
