FREELAND, NOVEMBER 12, 1894.

The first public act of Governor-elect Hastings is one that deserves commendation. He refused to allow his friends to hold any jubilation exercises in his honor at his home in Bellefonte, and requested that the money which would be expended upon that occasion be donated to the relief of the poor about the town.

The Wilkes-Barre Leader calls the attention of the Democratic county committee to that part of the rules which says they shall meet as soon as possible after election and choose a chairman for the coming year.

As the Democrats will control both branches of congress until March next, and as there can be no extra session save by proclamation of President Cleveland and demanded by some public exigency, the Republicans will have to wait more than a year to enter upon the legislative control of the government with which they have been invested by the people.

In a carefully written opinion upon the recent election that great independent newspaper, the New York Herald, says "the result cannot be considered as in any sense a verdict for McKinleyism or against tariff reform, and the Republicans will make a grave mistake if they assume that the vote was a vindication of protection and a mandate for restoration.

Victor Stevenson is now making great headway as the probable Democratic nominee for president in 1896. At present he has no formidable rival for the position, but the far west, most likely, will want to be heard in the next presidential election, and if the party is wise it will go to the Pacific coast for a candidate.

The opinion of the supreme court in the Gallitzin school case is a broad and unequivocal declaration of that fundamental principle of this commonwealth laid down in the bill of rights, that "all men have a natural and inalienable right to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own conscience."

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

AN AFFAIR OF HONOR.

In the good days of old. Two gentlemen bold. With pistols a duel did fight.

But their bullets collected. In fact, coincided! So fip bowed—which was very polite.

Great Mutual Love. Aunt Maria—Are you sure that Mr. Spooner loves you?

Carrie—I guess you would think so, to hear the silly things he says to me.

Aunt Maria—But how do you know you love him?

Carrie—Because they don't seem silly to me.—Tit-Bits.

Just How You Talk It. Mr. Meeks (anxiously)—Do you think my mother-in-law will pull through, doctor?

Physician (encouragingly)—We can hope for the best, sir.

Mr. Meeks (hopefully)—So she's really going to die, is she?—Truth.

THE "PETER'S PENCE"

Must Be Sent To Mgr. Satolli Hereafter.

Individual Contributions May Be Addressed Directly to the Ecclesiastic—Text of the Letter Sent to the Apostolic Delegate—Various Seminars To Be Founded.

Washington, Nov. 12.—An interesting letter has been received from Rome by the apostolic delegate, Mgr. Satolli, to be forwarded by him to the archbishops, who are to distribute it to their suffragans.

Heretofore the Peter's pence collected each year in every diocese have been sent directly by the bishops to Rome. Now those collections must be transmitted to the delegate.

Following is the text of the letter of the apostolic delegate to the bishops:

"Among other efficient means of fostering and proving devotedness to the Roman pontiff, one deserves notice—we mean the financial support given him that he may the more readily provide for the interests of the church."

"The days of the apostles the faithful have given in this matter a noble example which has continued through all the vicissitudes of time and events. This support is justly called Peter's pence."

"Assuredly in these latter days when the rights of the Roman church are unjustly violated and its former means have ceased, it is a fact worthy of remembrance and commendation that Catholics of almost every nation have been so warm in their attachment to the successor of St. Peter as to come in aid of his honorable destination."

"In this connection the faithful of your great country deserve a meed of praise, for under the guidance and exhortation of their bishops they have given remarkable proofs of their ardor, of their faith and the native generosity of their hearts."

"Unless, then, to urge them to a further continuance of this custom. Our purpose rather, is to point out an arrangement which shall facilitate and, if possible, also increase their generosity."

"Not long ago, as you know, we thought proper to give your diocese and your flocks a special pledge of our affection in the establishment of a permanent apostolic delegation, so that there might be constantly in your midst one who should represent our person and manage your more important affairs in our name with our power."

"Now this institution naturally suggests the new arrangement we should like to make as to the Peter's pence. It is this. The collections for this purpose which each bishop orders in his diocese as well as the private contributions that individual Catholics may wish to make to the holy father in their own names, shall henceforth be forwarded to and placed to the credit of the apostolic delegate residing in Washington. He afterwards will remit the sums to us with itemized details."

"Your generosity will be most acceptable and opportune just now, for the needs increase day by day with our growing solicitude for the faith, and especially since the publication of our late apostolic letter on unity. We cherish certain projects by which we hope, not without good grounds, to foster and hasten that devoutly wished consummation, the reunion of Christendom. Such, venerable brother, is our wish in this matter. We know well and duly prize your willingness to respond to our counsels and desires. And now we lovingly bestow on yourself, your work, your clergy, your people the apostolic benediction as a pledge of God's choicest blessings that an unflinching success may attend your pastorate."

"Given at Rome, in St. Peter's, the 16th day of September, 1894, the 17th year of our pontificate."

"LEO P. P. XIII."

The projects above referred to are seminaries to be founded at various points in the Orient, Athens, Smyrna, Corfu and others. The letter also, it is understood, implies that priests and people are expected to avail themselves of this opportunity to show their pleasure at the establishment of the apostolic delegation.

The transmission of this letter has been to some extent foreshadowed in United Press dispatches from Rome. It must not, however, be confounded with the forthcoming encyclical, which will appear in due course.
