

ALIX THE CZAR'S BRIDE

Superb Wedding Ceremony in Russia's Capital.

With Imperial Splendor the Young Couple Were Married Before Kings, Princes and Dukes in the Marble Winter Palace at St. Petersburg—Scenes and Details.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 27.—To the thunder of great cannon, the strains of a thousand bands and surrounded by a glitter of precious jewels, cloth of gold, gorgeous uniforms, worn by all the princes of Europe, and hundreds of superbly gowned noblemen, Princess Alix of Hesse-Darmstadt became the bride of the Romanoff, Czar, Nicholas II. The ceremony was performed by the Metropolitan of St. Petersburg, and all the dignitaries of the Greek Church, in the famous white marble palace.

From the Antikhoff palace, Nicholas and his suite, the Prince of Wales, the grand duke Sergius, the King of Denmark and King George of Greece, arrived at the winter palace at ten o'clock. Two hundred guns from the fortress of St. Peter and Paul across the river Neva, boomed their welcome.

A whole army corps of troops under Duke Saxe filled the streets, and military bands all over the city took up the national anthem, the music swelling until it floated in a great volume over the whole city.

An hour later Princess Alix, attended by the Princess of Wales, the Czarina, the Princess Henry of Prussia, the Duchess of Wurtemberg, the Grand Duchess Xenia and a suite of two hundred noblewomen entered the palace. A magnificent procession then formed, in which every court of Europe was represented, and filed slowly through the palace to the cathedral.

When the procession reached the cathedral, at the extreme end of the Alexander Platz, it was met at the entrance by the Metropolitan of St. Petersburg, the Holy Synod and the court clergy bearing crosses, holy water and the sacred books.

The Metropolitan conducted the Czar to a position upon a dais which had been placed in the centre of the chancel behind the rail.

As the Emperor took his place at the right of the dais the Czarina led the Princess Alix to him and placed her at his left hand. The Czarina then took her place in the chancel at the right of the dais, and the marriage service in use in the orthodox church was begun.

The ceremony was of the most impressive character and lasted nearly two hours. After the Psalms the Metropolitan said a few words of instruction and turned to the Czar and said:

"Hast thou, Nicholas, a good and uncontrained will and a firm determination to take unto thyself this woman, Alix, whom here thou seest before thee?"

To this the Czar answered: "I have, reverend father."

The Metropolitan then asked: "Thou hast not vowed thyself to another bride?"

The Czar answered: "I have not vowed myself, reverend father."

The same questions were asked of Princess Alix with similar answers. After prayer the Metropolitan took two crowns, placing the first one on the head of the Czar, saying:

"The servant of God, Nicholas, is crowned for the handmaid of God, Alix, in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost."

Placing the crown upon the head of the bride, he said:

"The handmaid of God, Alix, is crowned for the servant of God, Nicholas, in the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost."

The prelate then blessed the couple three times. After anthems and prayers the common cup was brought and blessed. The cup was filled and handed first to the Czar, and then to the Princess, each taking a sip of wine.

The Metropolitan then took the couple by the hand, the groomsmen and bridesmaids walking behind and holding the crowns over their heads, and led them three times around the dais, the choir meanwhile singing a troparion. The prelate then took the crown from the Czar, saying:

"Be thou magnified, O bridegroom, as Abraham, and blessed as Isaac, and increased as Jacob, walking in peace and performing in righteousness the commandments of God." Taking the crown from Princess Alix, he said:

"And thou, O bride, be thou magnified as Sara, and rejoiced as Rebecca, and increased as Rachel, being glad in thy husband, and keeping the paths of the law, for God is well pleased." The Czar then kissed the bride and the guests came forward to congratulate the couple. At the conclusion of the congratulations the dismissal was pronounced and the bride and bridegroom and the wedding guests returned to the Winter palace.

As the procession entered Field Marshal hall there were cries of "Long live Emperor Nicholas."

Spokane, Wash., Nov. 26.—A veritable bonanza gold mine has been found at the very summit of the Cascade range of mountains near Slate creek. Two young men from Anakortes named Barron and Gerrish are the lucky finders. The boys got $12,000 with plenty of the same rich dirt in sight. Miners have flocked to the new Eldorado.

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 26.—A terrible tragedy was discovered in the southern part of the city in a house on Woodward street, occupied by Jacob Mohow and Mrs. Kate Donan. The dead body of Mohow and the unconscious body of the woman were found with bullets in their brains. The supposition is that Mohow shot the woman and then committed suicide.

Utica, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Floyd C. Shepard has begun suit here before Judge Williams against Senator Squire of Washington for an accounting of property worth $1,500,000 in Seattle, which was owned in partnership by Philo Remington, William King of Minneapolis, Philo Osgood and John N. Goodwin. Remington had the management of the property and Senator Squire, his son-in-law and executor, has had charge of it since his death.

ONE MORE BANK ROBBED

Clerk Morgan Steals Thirty Thousand Dollars.

The Bank of the Republic Victimized, But Wealthy Relatives Have Refunded the Amount Stolen—Swindler Baker Obtained Large Policies Before Killing Himself.

New York, Nov. 27.—The case of another bank being robbed by a dishonest clerk has been made known. The victim is the Bank of the Republic, at No. 2 Wall street, which the report stated, had lost some $30,000. The thief is D. E. Morgan, a clerk, whose home is in Brooklyn.

He drove fast horses, spent money lavishly and lived in a style far above his position. His pecuniary views were carried on during the summer months.

When the shortage was discovered his parents came to his assistance and made good the loss, and the young man was discharged from the bank. Vice-President E. H. Pullen, of the Bank of the Republic, acknowledged that the bank had been victimized by one of its employees.

Morgan was the discount and coupon clerk, and had been in the employ of the bank only about a year. An old employee had been displaced to make room for him under the policy of getting younger men for the bank. He is about thirty-five years old.

This makes the third bank defalcation within little more than a week. None of the three robbers have been punished. One of them, Seely, of the Shoe and Leather bank, is missing; another, John R. Tait, who stole from the Chemical bank, has gone scott free, and the third, E. D. Morgan, is also free.

By far the most important development in the disclosures relating to the looting of the Shoe and Leather bank was the fact that Frederick Baker had as recently as Oct. 4 taken out two $10,000 life insurance policies with the Equitable Life Insurance Co. The policies were what are known as incontestable policies. An advance premium of $100 each was paid upon them to make them incontestable. In case of suicide a policy of this kind is not vitiated. Ordinary policies are cancelled if their holders commit suicide within the first year after they are issued. These two policies, Baker made payable to his wife, Anne. The policy for $2,500 that was issued to Baker about fifteen years ago was assigned to his wife on Nov. 13 last.

These acts are considered to point clearly to premeditated suicide. At the Equitable Insurance company the officers were very reticent about what action they would take in regard to the two $10,000 policies issued last month. They were of the opinion, however, that they would be paid.

They declined to say whether the claims would be contested and were not sure whether the company committed suicide or not, although they freely admitted that there was every indication that he had taken his own life.

The Mutual Life Insurance company also insured Baker on two policies some years ago. At the office of the company they said the policies did not exceed $10,000, but they refused to make known the exact amount. It came out that Baker had endeavored to get an incontestable policy for $10,000 from the Connecticut Indemnity Life Insurance company with the suicide clause waived. The company refused to grant the policy. It was reported that Baker was also insured in several other companies.

Shoe and Leather bank officials now state that Seely and Baker stole $354,000, instead of $343,000. An assessment of 20 per cent. has been levied upon stockholders. Connelly, Eckels at Washington has been notified. No trace has yet been found of the fugitive bookkeeper.

Gen. Merritt, one of the attorneys interested in the case, says Seely was an inveterate gambler and lost large sums. Augustus Kagel and others claim that Baker was a trustee for several estates has stolen several hundred thousand dollars, besides that taken from the bank.

Many Wrecks Reported.
St. Johns, N. F., Nov. 27.—The British steamer Louisville, from Montreal, has arrived here. Her officers report having encountered terrific weather in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, her deckload having been washed overboard. The following vessels were lost at Bonavista during the great gale: Schooners Fortune, Emerline and North Star with general cargoes of provisions. Schooner Shamrock, with 700 quintals of fish. Three other vessels names not given. All crews were saved.

Fatally Shot by Lee Gon Yuen.
Philadelphia, Nov. 27.—The first quarrel with a tragic ending that has ever occurred in this city between Chinamen took place in the grocery store of Lee Hung Quong at 925 Race street, where the proprietor was shot in the head and mortally wounded by Lee Gon Yuen, the proprietor of a laundry.

PICKED UP BY THE WAY.

THINGS SEEN AND HEARD IN THE TOWN AND VICINITY.

Matters of a Local Nature Written Up and Placed Before the Readers of the "Tribune" by the Santerer—Something Here May Interest You.

I have been an attentive listener, for some time, to complaints indulged in quite freely by many of the people of Freeland and vicinity who attend plays at Hazleton. These people, it appears, have fondled their hobby frequently since the trolley has been in operation, and while they have and are yet willing to pay for their hobby, they are also preparing to draw the line when they are singled out as the victims of extortion. The trouble lies in what appears to them a scheme to "bleed" the theatre-goers of the North Side, and it would require but little prompting to have them blurt right out that the opera house management does not try to prevent it.

When a company which has a reputation of giving its patrons the worth of their money is billed for Hazleton, they say that lithographs are strewn promiscuously throughout the show windows in Freeland, but when it comes to purchasing tickets it is quite another thing—the diagram is closed before the people of the North Side can get a glimpse of it; still, on the night of the play, such of them who go, can find diagram tickets hawked quietly on the streets to North Side people at exorbitant prices, the presumption being that they will buy rather than return home again without seeing the play, and upon two occasions, in particular, the supposition was correct.

The first instance of it was when the "Power of the Press" played there. The diagram had been open but a very short time when a notice at the ticket window announced "standing room only," but on the evening of the play, tickets in blocks of from five to fifteen were in the hands of persons outside who sold them at 25 and 50 cents above the regular prices, and shortly before the curtain raised these tickets were still being sold and at the ticket window standing room was refused. Strangely enough, many of these tickets found their way to Freeland people, who bought rather than go home, while residents of Hazleton were refused admission.

The second instance was for the play of "Princess Bonnie." On that occasion the diagram was also "cornered" in short order and the usual announcement was to be seen at the ticket window. On the night of that play men were in front of the opera house and at various places along that square selling tickets at 50 cents and $1 above the prices charged by the management. When or how these parties came into possession of them is a part of the business which is not sold with the tickets, but when each of these persons held from $5 to $17 worth of admissions to accommodate the North Side people by extortion, the scheme seems deeply laid and rather suspicious.
